IRENE AND DAGUE START TRIP TO DEATH HOUSE UNDER GUARD

Today

Chief Cajeme,
Valley Farmers' Paradise,
One Powerful Swede,
Great Land, Fine Men.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CIUDAD OBREGON, Sonora, Mexico, Feb. 21.

THE CORRECT name of this Yaqui Valley city is Ciudad Obregon, honoring the memory of Obregon, former Mexican president, whose widow now lives here. But all the natives call the city by its old name, Cajeme, and that name will last.

It is that of a Yaqui chief, type of the Indian of high intelligence and powerful will. Cajeme, having arranged to marry a beautiful Indian girl of the Yaqui people, went North on a short trip. While he was gone an army officer stole the girl's affections and stole her.

CAJEME ON his return did what was necessary, according to the Yaqui code. He hunted up the officer and killed him, found the girl and killed her, and fought as long as he could. Then they hanged him.

All kinds of nationalities live in this valley, United States Americans, Germans, Spanish, and they all like Cajeme.

MILLIONS THAT will see this are interested in "boom towns." This is a real one. Twelve years ago this spot held only a railroad siding and one small building. It has 12,000 inhabitants now, and 120,000 acres under intensive cultivation are irrigated from the Yaqui River.

Storage for enough water to irrigate 9,000 acres more could be built at a cost of only $5,000,000. The Mexican government doubtless will do it.

THERE MAY be somewhere on earth a farming country as good as this, but there is none better. They harvest the rice crop in December, plant wheat on the same land in January, and harvest that in June. They ship hundreds of carloads of tomatoes and thousands of tons of green peas at a season when the United States does not produce either.

You drive through eight thousand acres of green peas. The full grown, hard, round peas are shipped north because commercial economy demands it. Of the delicate small, green peas 50 tons a week are packed in the Yaqui Fruit Company packing shed. Two hundred tons a week in the fields are thrown aside, fed to pigs, horses, cows and donkeys. You will see a contented burro standing in front of a small barrelful of fresh peas.

The rice fields and all other crops are worked by machinery and there is none of the hardship of the old rice field days, dreaded by slaves. The peas are packed by hand, a thousand men and women picking one great field this morning.

ARTHUR HOFFMAN and E. J. Saal run the rice mill for Rosenberg Brothers and Company, San Francisco. Three thousand tons of polished rice are piled up in bags in the warehouse. Seventeen thousand tons have been shipped abroad.

Europe gets all of this high grade, long grain rice in obedience to public demand, which values appearances. The rice is hulled, the hulls burned in the furnace to produce power, the inner bran is ground off, then the rice is polished pure white and the greater part of its vitamine value has been destroyed.

One hundred pounds of high grade rice costs three dollars and seventy-five cents. Half a pound of rice will feed a man for a day.

THE RICHARDSON brothers, of whom only one, William E., survives, began the development of this Yaqui Valley delta 40 years ago. Mr. Richardson, with his partner, H. A. Sibbet, continues it. John Hays Hammond and the late Harry Payne Whitney operated the irrigation project. The Mexican government bought it for $9,000,000, American money, and very intelligently controls the waters.

IT IS NOT possible to exaggerate the agricultural value of this farmers' paradise. A devout Arab visited Mecca, looked upon the stone whence Mohammet mounted to heaven on his white mare, and then the Arab put out both his eyes, saying he could never see anything else worthwhile and did not want to forget what he had seen.

A farmer might do the same, having seen this valley. Prof. Mackay, of University of California, who planted a grapefruit orchard here for Mr. Richardson in 1912, should see it now. The grapefruit, bright yellow, are literally as big as the head of a man wearing a hat number 6½.

FRANCISCO ELIAS, governor of Sonora, in which this delta is located, gave land to the Maya Indians, saying "they deserve it" and lent them money to develop irrigation. They repaid the loan from their rice crop in two years.

Fifty thousand acres here are planted in wheat. It is sad to see wheat and rice straw burned, tens of thousands of tons, to get rid of it, when you pay $20 to $30 a ton for straw in New York. A farmer could talk and write forever about this land, but human beings are more interesting than the land.

First you see, and most important, a brand new public school where 472 little girls are taught by excellent teachers. Its principal teacher is Miss Carmen Cueva. The school is named in honor of Carlos M. Calleja, an honorable teacher, who taught the governor of Sonora years ago. The school desks were bought in New York City.

COL. SUCCOP REPORTED FIRED

Mayor Kline Said to Have Dismissed Supplies Head In Row on Food Buying

Mayor Charles H. Kline has dismissed B. L. Succop, superintendent of the City Department of Supplies, according to information considered reliable at the City-County Building.

The letter of dismissal was delivered by City Solicitor Charles M. Waldschmidt, it was reported, after Succop is said to have not agreed with the Mayor that he should resign as a result of the revelations of the alleged lax manner in which contracts for city food purchase were awarded by Succop.

BOTH SILENT

Neither the Mayor nor Director Succop would deny the reports of the firing. The Mayor said all he would have to say on the food situation would be announced next Tuesday when his eagerly awaited report is submitted to Council.

Succop had this to say:

MRS. LAWRENCE HURT IN CRASH

The condition of Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, 42, daughter of the late State Senator Flinn, and herself an Allegheny County political leader, who was injured slightly early this morning in a collision of three autos and a fire truck, was reported improved in West Penn Hospital. She suffered a cut on the head.

Two firemen from Engine Company No. 6 were treated in Mercy Hospital for cuts and bruises. The accident occurred when a tire blew out on their truck at Twenty-eighth street and Liberty avenue, shortly after midnight when they were returning to their quarters at Forty-fourth and Calvin streets. The injured men are George Herron, 50, of 5162 Columbo street, and Lambert Cox, 38, of 4534 Penn avenue.

When Mrs. Lawrence's automobile, driven by Clyde Baer, 39, her chauffeur, collided with the fire truck, the impact knocked her machine into another, reported driven by A. P. Barron, 28, of 259 Main street, which in turn was hurled against an auto owned by the Rev. C. F. Hunt, of Virginia avenue, said to have been driven by his son, Fred. All the cars were damaged.

Fannie Hurst Scores Visiting Novelist

Fannie Hurst, American writer, attacking John B. Priestley, British novelist, for his judgment on some phases of American life, said court-martial by laughter should be his fate.

A reply from the British visitor was waited.

Pershing Ended Troop Dispute

Woodcock Would Leave Liquor Manufacture Up To Individual, He Says

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Two packing cases bulging with "the evidence" upon which the Wickersham report based its amazing conclusions on prohibition were in the hands of the Senate today.

The evidence, or that part of it which the commission dared or cared to make public, proved as paradoxical and conflicting as the report of the commission itself. It ranged all the way from testimony that prohibition is a grand success to testimony that it is an absolute failure, and it was gleaned from persons in many walks in life. Of all the thousands and thousands of words, probably the most important were those of Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition enforcement director in the administration's new enforcement set-up under the Department of Justice.

Col. Woodcock candidly admitted that home-brewing and home-wine-making violates the spirit of the prohibition law, but he saw no way of overcoming it, and, in fact, he gave home-brewing a sort of left-handed indorsement. He indorsed it because he saw no way of adequately enforcing the law against it.

CAN'T BE ENFORCED

The law prohibiting all forms of liquor can no more be enforced against the home-owner or home-brewer, Woodcock suggested, than can the laws against gambling be enforced to prohibit a game of bridge or penny-ante in the home—that is, without creating such a storm that the whole structure might be swept away on a wave of public indignation.

In presenting his theory, Col. Woodcock said:

"I suggest, in reasoning with as much of sophistry, but a gleam of common sense and of prophecy of what may be the final evolution of this troublesome question, not state, not

TRADE BOARDS AID JOB DRIVE

Indorsements of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and the Allied Boards of Trade have been given to the Pittsburgh plan for stabilization of employment as advanced by the Emergency Association of Allegheny County.

Arthur V. Snell, executive director of the Allied Boards of Trade, indorsed the plan in a communication sent Edgar J. Kaufmann, a member of the executive committee of the association.

The first reports from the 400 members of the chamber who are engaged in a personal canvass of more than 3,000 individuals and concerns to raise funds for the association, were received last night at a meeting in the chamber.

Among the member organizations of the Allied Boards which sent indorsements were the Dormont Chamber of Commerce, the North Side Board of Trade, the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade, the Troy Hill Board of Trade and the Chartiers Board of Trade.

King Knights Campbell, Chats About U. S.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Capt. Malcolm Campbell walked into Buckingham Palace this morning, spent 40 minutes with King George, and came out Sir Malcolm Campbell. His Majesty having bestowed upon him the accolade of knighthood.

The honor was in recognition of the captain's feat of driving an automobile 245 miles an hour on the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla., on February 5, Campbell said:

"The King was very gracious. He had a lot of American photographs of the Bluebird, my car, and as we talked about them he kept asking me questions which showed he knows more about technical matters than I had any idea he knew.

"I was delighted to find he had followed my progress so closely.

"He was very anxious to learn whether the people at Daytona took much interest in the record run, and he was obviously very pleased when I told him how splendidly they treated us and how enthusiastic they all had been.

"We chatted about the United States for several minutes and he showed a great knowledge of the country."

Among other things they discussed, Sir Malcolm said, was the Harvey-Dundee prizefight at New York which the captain saw when he came north from Florida. His Majesty seemed to know a lot about boxing, too, the racer said, and was eager to know how the Britisher showed up.

BUTLER IN CITY, TALKS TONIGHT

Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler is in Pittsburgh to speak at the annual dinner of Group 8, Pennsylvania Bankers' Association, in Hotel William Penn tonight.

His schedule of activities in this city was being kept secret by friends. He was to have lunch at the Keystone Athletic Club, after which he was to visit the Helping Hand quarters.

Reno Divorce Won By Society Woman

RENO, Nev., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Mrs. Katherine L. Solley was granted a divorce here from John B. Solley, whose address is care Morgan & Co., Paris, on grounds of mental cruelty. They are socially prominent in New York.

Custody of three minor children was awarded to Mrs. Solley by an agreement made out of court, with liberal rights of visitation. They married at Les Cheneaux Club, Michigan, September 11, 1912.

FOILED ELOPER AFFIRMS LOVE

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Albert Kelsey Darling, the youth who took a pistol and a pair of handcuffs to the home of Miss Elizabeth Converse, in Rosemont, to force her to go away with him, has reiterated his love for the girl.

In his cell in the Montgomery County jail at Norristown, where he awaited release, Darling said he loved Elizabeth more than ever. He was quoted as saying:

"I didn't mean to harm her. I only wanted to get her into my car so we could elope and be married."

Darling was arrested at the girl's home after he was alleged to have tried to pull her from the front door to his automobile. Police took from him a pair of handcuffs and a pistol. He was released late yesterday.

25 Killed in Mine Blast, 50 Rescued

NOTHBERG, Germany, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Twenty-five persons were killed and four seriously injured when a fire damp explosion occurred at a depth of 1,850 feet today in the Eschweiler coal pit near Aachen. Two or three others of a crew of 80 in the pit are missing.

Since the mine is a so-called wet-pit the explosion fortunately was localized and affected none of the nearby pits. There was not much material damage.

DOOMED PAIR RUSHED TO ROCKVIEW

By WALTON WOODS
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 21.—Irene Shrader and Walter Glenn Dague were taken from the Lawrence County jail under heavy guard today and started on their journey to Rockview.

Companions in crime, the two made their last trip together. They were in the car of Sheriff Frank N. Johnston and were whisked at high speed over concrete roads to the death house, where Monday morning they will pay with their lives for the murder of State Highway Patrolman Brady Paul.

MACHINE GUN

Sheriff Johnson was armed with a machine gun which he has learned to operate in the last week. In the same car were armed deputies.

Preceding and following the sheriff's car were machines carrying armed deputies and county detectives. The trip was expected to take about five hours.

A crowd assembled on the streets outside of the jail craned their necks for a glimpse of the blonde and Dague as they were hurried out the jail doors and into the high power car.

Joseph Crawford, aged father of the blonde, was to follow in an automobile soon afterward. He paid another visit to his daughter in jail this morning. He will make a last effort to see her in Rockview and converse with her before she goes to the chair.

Donnie, aged 5½, son of Irene, will remain here at the home of Mrs. H. C. Dicks, where Crawford and other members of the family have been staying during the last days of the former waitress in jail.

RECEIVE BAPTISM

Irene and Dague were baptized yesterday in their respective cells by the Rev. H. O. Teagarden, Methodist minister of Bellaire, O., their spiritual advisor. It was under Mr. Teagarden that Dague was once a Sunday school teacher at Elm Grove, W. Va.

Irene has shown no signs of breaking, according to deputy sheriffs and jail attendants. They denied reports that she had become hysterical upon receiving

Barrymore and Dolores Will Stay in Films

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—John Barrymore and Dolores Costello, his wife, were to leave for a cruise of Mexican waters aboard their yacht Infanta.

Barrymore, who said he had completely recovered from jungle fever, contracted on his last voyage, said they would return in 10 days. Miss Costello will resume her screen work upon her return. She retired several months ago, before the birth of her daughter.

Asked if there was any foundation for rumors that he would retire, Barrymore said:

"I don't know whether I'll retire to my diamond mine in Peru, my vast banana plantation in the West Indies, run for Congress or just travel. But whatever my decision may be, I'll keep on acting."

COUNTY ACTS TO BAR FUND DEPOSITS IN OFFICIALS' NAMES

M'GOVERN ASSAILS SYSTEM

Commissioners Order Draft Of Bill to Put All Sums In Treasurer's Custody

County Solicitor M. B. Lesher has been instructed by the County Commissioners to prepare for presentation to the Legislature an act compelling all county officials who collect public money to deposit the funds with the County Treasurer.

In the absence of any law on the subject, it has been the custom for various county officials to deposit funds of their offices in private bank accounts and turn the accounts over to their successors.

The commissioners' action was taken yesterday when C. C. McGovern, vigorously objected to granting the probation officers of Orphans' Court authority to buy an automobile.

CLASH OVER FUND

Chief Probation Officer C. H. Austen had submitted a letter proposing to buy the automobile with some of the $4,527 that had accrued in interest on restitution money collected over a period of years. Austen stated the car was needed for the collection of fines and costs. McGovern said:

"There are plenty of county cars available if the probation officers need one occasionally."

Lesher, tacitly indorsing Austen's request, said:

"That fund in the probation officers' account does not belong to the county."

HITS PRIVATE ACCOUNTS

McGovern retorted:

"Well, it certainly does not belong to the probation officers, and I think it should be in the county treasury so that if it is not claimed by those entitled to it, the taxpayers would get the benefit of any balance of principal and accrued interest.

"Another thing, the probation officers and other county officials who collect public money should not have those funds deposited in their private bank accounts. The money should all be deposited with the accrued interest in the county treasurer's office.

"As it stands, even that great German mathematician could not separate all the various items of the principal and interest in the various county officials' private bank accounts waiting to be claimed, and tell who it actually belongs to."

Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong seconded McGovern's motion to ask the Legislature to pass a law ordering the depositing of all public funds in the county treasury.

M'GOVERN HITS HALL SITE BILL

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern continues his opposition to buying the Oakland site for a Town Hall.

At a commissioners' meeting yesterday McGovern voted "No" on Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong's motion to "receive and file" an ordinance granting the city's consent to the county's proposal to acquire property for the Town Hall on the site bounded by Fifth avenue, Tennyson avenue, Bigelow boulevard and Ruskin avenue.

The ordinance passed by Council and signed by Mayor Kline was submitted yesterday to the Commissioners and Armstrong said "Received and filed."

McGovern said:

"I want to be recorded as voting 'No'."

Armstrong said:

"So ordered."

A PENNY SAVED— By Quin Hall

'TRICK' IN BIDS ON CITY MEAT

QUOTATIONS REQUIRED

Each bidder is required to give a quotation on all items listed on the sheet, records in the City Controller's office disclosed, whether the meats are to be purchased or not.

When a bidder who does not know what items are not to be bought, gives the regular market quotation on all the meats, his totals are much higher. Therefore, he loses the contract, it was pointed out, to the initiated bidder who marks the unused items at ridiculously low figures.

For several months the A. I. Brahm Company, Pittsburgh, was the only bidder on the small amounts. Quotations as small as one cent per pound for veal loin, veal stew, sirloin and other meats made the totals appear extremely low. When competition entered last August in the form of Swift & Co., the variations became apparent.

BRAHM PRICES RAISED

When Swift & Co., and the Hilldorfer Company began bidding, the Brahm Company, it was shown by the records, increased the price of items the city would not use to around 10 cents per pound.

With its negligible on meats not required, the Brahm company was able to give higher prices on articles the institutions used in large quantities.

CENT A POUND BIDS

Pork, lamb, pork shoulder, veal loin, veal stew, beef stew, sirloin, and roast beef, one cent a pound. None of this was purchased.

On the items the city bought through the Supplies Department in large quantities, the following bids were presented:

Boiling beef, 26 cents per pound; pork loin, 33 cents per pound; veal cutlets, 70 cents per pound, and rib of beef, 43 cents per pound.

When Swift & Co. competed for August business the Brahm company raised its figures to 10 cents per pound on the items previously quoted at one cent.

SWIFT'S QUOTATIONS

Swift & Co. quotations for the same stuff were: Lamb, 38 cents; lamb shoulder, 20 cents; veal stew, 15 cents; beef stew, 12 cents; roast lamb, 24 cents, and sirloin, 28 cents, the regular market price.

On the meats the city purchased the Swift bids were lower, such as:

	Brahm	Swift
Pot roast	28	16
Roast ribs beef	26	24

2 SLAYERS DIE ON GALLOWS

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Two convicted slayers, Emery Stevens, 24, and William Claude Adams, 40, both of Mingo County, were hanged last night in a double execution at the West Virginia penitentiary.

Stevens was convicted of killing Leonard Ooten, a taxicab driver, October 20, 1930. Adams fatally shot his wife, Mrs. Flossie Adams; her mother, Mrs. John Campbell, and his wife's aunt, Mrs. Cynthia McGuire, the latter of Johnson City, Tenn., at Cinderella, October 1, 1930. He was convicted of slaying the aunt.

The two were first sentenced to die on January 23, but were granted reprieves a few days before, after erroneous announcement had been made at Charleston that commutation of sentence had been accorded Stevens.

Coolidge Cites Numerous Abilities of Washington

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 21.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

February twenty-second marks the one hundred and ninety-ninth birthday of George Washington. His stature has only increased with the years. His public life was characterized by complete unselfishness. Indifferent to his own fortunes, his only concern was for his country. He needed no pretense and no art. He was simply and naturally great.

Calvin Coolidge

From every avenue of approach we find a complete man. In all his actions he was precise, accurate, methodical. His diary extends from early youth to the day before his death. It would be difficult to show him mistaken on any important question. The personification of judgment and character, his yea yea and nay nay was a disquisition which had all the eloquence of patrick Henry, all the political wisdom of John Adams, all the economic authority of Alexander Hamilton, and all the judicial finality of John Marshall.

He was the best business man of his day, the ablest general of his era, the wisest statesman of the world and the most exalted patriot of all times. His fellow countrymen look on him as a father and all humanity worships him as the incarnation of the spirit of ordered liberty.

IRENE WILL DIE FIRST, PLAN AT ROCKVIEW

Death House and Chair Made Ready for Execution of Trigger Woman and Dague

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

ROCKVIEW PRISON FARM, Bellefonte, Pa., Feb. 21.—Two cells, end to end in death row and separated by a new steel partition, await Irene Shrader and Walter Glenn Dague. The doomed prisoners are expected to arrive today.

Irene, it is understood, will die first. She will occupy the cell nearest to the death chamber so that she will not have to walk past Dague's cell on her march to the chair. Immediately following her execution and removal to the morgue in back of the death house, Dague will be led out.

Warden Stanley P. Ashe is here, having come from the Western Penitentiary at Pittsburgh to supervise preparations for the executions Monday morning. The Shrader woman will be the first of her sex to meet death in the electric chair in this state.

As he went into conference with Supt. Allen, taking up headquarters in the prison and declining to make any statement regarding final arrangements for the execution until after the prisoners arrive.

EXECUTIONER DUE

Two matrons from the Western Penitentiary are due to arrive here today. There are no women in Rockview, and no provisions for women guards or prisoners. Special accommodations have been completed.

Robert Elliott, official executioner, is due to arrive from his home in Jamaica, N. Y., late today. He will go at once to the death house to confer with Warden Ashe and make a last-minute survey of electrical appliances, checking the current flow, the contact plates and switch arrangements. Leaving everything in readiness, he will retire to his quarters over Sunday.

STUDIES SNYDER CASE

Warden Ashe, who recently conferred with Warden Lawes at Sing Sing upon his conduct of the Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray electrocutions, is expected to follow out in a large measure the same procedure. Mrs. Snyder proceeded her sweetheart to death in that first of all women's electrocutions.

Clothes for the condemned woman is another matter on which the warden has not as yet expressed himself. It is understood, however, that Irene will be attired in a dress similar in design to the one worn by Mrs. Snyder so as to permit easy adjustment of the electrodes.

Dague will wear the usual prison garb of condemned men. A little round spot will be shaved on the crown of his head and the cap fitted into place for the electric contact.

BANDITS ROB 4 GAS STANDS

Bandits who last night and early today held up four gasoline stations, where they obtained about $200 in loot, today were eluding police and detectives who threw a dragnet throughout the district for them.

Two armed men held up J. J. McMillan, night attendant at the Atlantic Gasoline Refining Station, Baum boulevard and Melwood street, and robbed him of $20. It was the third time the station had been held up.

Two armed men drove up to the Atlantic Refining Company's station at McDevitt street and the Boulevard of the Allies shortly after 3 a. m., and while one remained in the car the other forced Elmer Sauers, night attendant, into the office and rifled the cash register of $40.

Harry Bugle and William Woods, attendants in the service station of the Standard Oil Company at West Liberty and Cape May avenues, were held at bay by an armed thug while he took $100 from a safe. He joined an accomplice in a waiting automobile and escaped.

From a cash register in the Penn-Liberty Oil Company's service station at 837 Pennsylvania avenue, two bandits obtained $23 after menacing Steve Stomer, the attendant, with revolvers. They fled in an automobile.

A trail of broken eggs resulted in the arrest of five Negroes who were awaiting a hearing today in connection with the robbery of the grocery store of Nicholas Renac at 2911 Carson street.

They are Loney Hardy, 25, of 62 South Thirtieth street; John Jackson, of 2834 Carson street; Ervin Day, of 2839 Carey way, and Charles Spencer, 22, of 42 South Thirtieth street.

word that Gov. Pinchot had denied a last request for a respite by Attorney Percy Allen Rose. She was calm, as she has been throughout her stay in jail, they asserted.

Even in bidding a last adieu to Donnie, attendants said she was unperturbed and tearless. She called out "Goodbye" as though it were only a casual visit, instead of the last time she would ever see her boy.

Inside the jail, in their respective cells, groomed mentally by clergymen and physically by jail attendants for the last trip they were to make on earth, the condemned pair awaited the sheriff's call.

IDLERS WATCH JAIL

Outside the jail last night, braving damp, chilly weather, waited a little band of idlers, sympathizers and others, eager for one last look at the blonde and her sweetheart. Many of these were children, who, bolder than their elders, peered through the jail windows to the annoyance of the sheriff, who made repeated trips to his porch to disperse them.

A protest to Gov. Pinchot against the use of the day for the observance of Washington's birthday as an execution day, has been made by J. D. Thomas, 1213 Linden place, North Side. Thomas said in part:

"I am protesting on this score because I do not wish to see the Commonwealth desecrate the holiday."

From the Governor's office comes the law which says legal holidays make no difference, that there have been executions on such days before.

The law provides the Governor set the date in this manner—"that the sentenced party or parties be executed within the week to be named in said warrant."

Gov. Fisher set the week beginning with the twenty-third. If the plant breaks down or anything happens, it might be the twenty-fourth or any day succeeding.

Tradition has it that the execution is set for the Monday following the pardon board hearing.

GRAVE SITE SECRET

Both Irene and Dague sent word to Powers they would neither confirm nor deny the story of Crawford's death, and made it plain they did not care to discuss the incident.

Powers departed, and with him went Irene's last hope of a reprieve from the Governor. It was understood Powers would have asked the Governor for a stay until the commonwealth recovered the body, had Irene or Glenn verified the report.

HEARING LIKELY ON JUDGE BILL

If brought to his attention, Representative Charles W. Staudenmeier, of Schuylkill County, chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the state House of Representatives, will grant a hearing on the Allegheny County Bar Association's protest on the bill of Senator James J. Coyne to create two new judgeships in Allegheny County, he said last night.

The legislative committee of the bar association, of which Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay is chairman, recently went on record as opposing the bill, taking the stand that creation of the new posts would add to the expenses of the courts in Allegheny County. Visiting judges during the past year have cost less than two additional regular judges, and the county has been spared the expense of additional court attaches which would be necessary if additional judges are added, it was contended.

The move to add the judges is regarded as a means of paying off political debts of the past campaign. Former Judge Frank I. Gollmar, Pinchot campaign chairman, and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt are regarded as being slated for the new posts if created.

Hoover Sees 450,000 Jobs Soon on U. S. Projects

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—President Hoover has announced 450,000 persons would be working on government construction projects within the next 30 days.

The figure was compared by the President with 150,000 persons employed on construction work prior to the depression.

In addition to the work now under contract, President Hoover said that in most of the current appropriation bills before Congress there is a clause making any construction appropriation immediately available. He said:

"This will make available approximately $300,000,000 in case it is needed. Some of it, of course, will not be used but it will be there for use if necessary."

President Hoover said he had received his information on the number of men being employed on government contracts through a general survey made by departments.

BONUS VETO SPEEDED BY HOOVER

President to Return Bill To Senate by Thursday; Mellon's Counsel Sought

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—President Hoover today began work on a brave, but futile document—his veto of the World War Veterans' Loan Bill.

It will be submitted to Congress about the middle of next week, not later than Thursday, and that body promptly will re-enact the measure in the face of his disapproval, thus making it law, regardless.

Mr. Hoover is delaying transmittal of his veto message only because he recognizes the great political importance which will be attached to its contents, and he wants four or five days for very careful consideration of the nature of his arguments against the bill and the phraseology with which he will present them.

Otherwise, it would have been returned immediately following its receipt yesterday, for the President already is on verbal record in the matter.

In vetoing the soldiers' loan bill the executive is following the precedents set by Presidents Harding and Coolidge, both of whom disapproved so-called bonus legislation. In Harding's instance, the veto was sustained, but Coolidge was overruled and the adjusted service compensation measure enacted. It is to a further liberalization of this act which Mr. Hoover is objecting.

The advice and counsel of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Under Secretary of Treasury Mills, Budget Director Roop and Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, will be sought by the President in drafting his message, the nature of which was forecast in a letter he wrote to Senator Smoot (Rep.), of Utah last Monday.

SAY HYMIE WAS DEATH WITNESS

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—"Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin was in the apartment where former Councilman William E. Potter was shot to death at the time of the slaying, Deputy Sheriff Fred C. Alber said today.

Heretofore, evidence had placed Martin in the death suite only the day before the killing.

Martin is charged with Potter's murder. The case against him has consisted only of his identification as the renter of the murder suite and as one of Potter's companions, seen downtown on the day of the killing.

Alber asserted Mrs. Betty Gray, who occupied the apartment below the one in which Potter kept his fatal appointment, had "told plenty," but he would not reveal her testimony. It was Mrs. Gray's tip that led to the arrest of Martin in Pittsburgh.

One Slain, 2 Shot In N. Y. Gang Clash

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—One man was dead today and two others wounded as the climax of a row between rival gangsters. The dead man was not identified. Police said four men opened fire on him and his two companions as they left a cafe.

AIDE TAKES BULLET FOR MONARCH

Second Man Shot in Attack Outside Vienna Theater; Two Assailants Captured

VIENNA, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Precautions for the safety of King Zog I, 36-year-old self-made monarch of Albania, were redoubled today as police investigated an attempt against his life as he left the opera last night.

The king's adjutant, Maj. Topolai, received one of the 12 bullets intended for the monarch, and was killed instantly. Another bullet wounded an Albanian court official, M. Lipozova, in the hip.

The two assassins, who gave their names as Asiz Cami and Nadk Tielezzi, were captured by chauffeurs of cars standing behind the royal vehicle. Questioning brought no other explanation than they had acted through political motives.

A blood feud exists among the Albanian mountaineers against the King, and there have been frequent attempts to kill him. He rarely emerges from his palace at Tirana without secreting his movements.

He came to Vienna last month to seek treatment for an indisposition which was diagnosed as a disorder brought on by his smoking 150 cigarets a day. In Tirana it is said his mother prepares his food to prevent his being poisoned.

Maj. Topolai and M. Lipozova were leaving the opera, "I Pagliacci," by a side entrance to divert attention from their royal master, who went out the front door to his waiting car.

As he prepared to enter the car the two assassins took aim. Maj. Topolai rushed in front of the king and was killed as he was about to draw his own gun.

After the king returned to his hotel suite Herr Schoeber, foreign minister, called and expressed his regret at the incident. He promised precautions for Zog's safety would be redoubled.

King Zog before the World War was head of the Zogolli, a ruling family of the Mati district. He fought in the Austrian army during the World War. Afterward he became his country's premier and was elected president, holding that office three years before proclaiming himself king in 1929.

He has never been crowned, rumor having it that he is afraid the coronation would bring a new attempt against his life.

FOOD SHOW PAIR WED TONIGHT

The wedding of Miss Grace Ryser, of Imperial, and John W. Shaffer, of McKees Rocks, will feature the program at the food show tonight in Motor Square Garden. The ceremony is to be performed at 8:30 with Mr. and Mrs. James A. Grafton, of Coraopolis, who were married at last year's show, as attendants.

The Rev. Dr. Ira Freeman, pastor of the Lorenz Avenue Baptist Church, will officiate. The couple will receive many gifts from the scores of exhibitors, according to J. V. Loughran, show manager.

Forty-nine cakes were entered by women in the baking contest conducted yesterday. Miss Mary L. Thomas, 7415 Monticello street, was the first prize winner; Mrs. D. A. Wilkinson, 7 Sheridan avenue, Bellevue, second, and Mrs. L. H. Ebert, 1821 Chellis street, North Side, third. The cakes were sent to the Veterans' Hospital in Aspinwall.

Melba's Condition, 'Extremely Critical'

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—The condition of Dame Nellie Melba, famed Australian singer, who has been ill for weeks, has become extremely critical, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Sydney today.

Her strength is said to have ebbed to the point of exhaustion. Relatives have been summoned to the bedside.

AMONG MEN from foreign countries that help develop this delta there is Z. O. Stocker. Born in South Carolina, he lived 18 years in Atlanta, Ga., nine years in San Antonio, Tex., and has lived 32 years here. He is a patriotic American, but says this is the place.

Olof Dahlquist is one of the first 12 men that ever planted rice in California. He is a Swede. The other 11 associated with him in the Sacramento Valley were Danes. He agrees with Mr. Stocker that this is the greatest piece of land on earth, and adds that Charles the Twelfth, of Sweden, was the greatest man that ever lived on earth. It would please you to see that powerful Swede, chest at least 56 inches.

KARL FEUCHTER, from Wurtemberg, who makes every kind of farming pay, talks only German and Spanish. H. C. Grigsby, from San Jose, Cal., farms 5,000 acres. He has the finest house in the Yaqui Valley.

James J. Ryan, U. S. A., worked for the Richardson Brothers for $75 a month, 18 years ago. Now he owns 1,000 acres, rents 1,500 more, and is worth $150,000.

HEINRICH MATZEN, locally known as Enrique, uses up his spare time threshing piles of rice straw a second time and taking an excellent profit. Because the first threshing is done carelessly, his results would surprise poor Ruth, gleaning by hand in the fields of Boaz.

This Yaqui Valley, 60 miles long, 45 miles wide, runs perfectly level west to the Pacific Ocean. You should see this West Coast and the rest of Mexico. The Mexican nation could feed 100,000,000 more people and have room and food left for other millions.

ARGUMENTS ON DECENCY SLATED

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—A crowded courtroom today awaited closing arguments in the trial of 29 members of the cast of Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book," who are charged with taking place in an indecent performance.

Judge Justin McCarthy is expected to hand down a decision today on the character of the review.

Two police officials, Deputy Commissioner James B. Scanlon and Capt. Willard Malone, both of whom took part in the raid, took the stand yesterday and gave sketchy details of the dress worn by the chorus girls. Pressed for details, Capt. Malone said:

"Well, they didn't have very much on."

Both officials had difficulty in finding names for various garments worn by the chorus, and stage whispers from the benches occupied by fair members of the cast helped them out.

J. M. ROBERTS, JEWELER, DIES

John M. Roberts II, 71, president of the John M. Roberts & Son Company, and a pioneer jeweler of Pittsburgh, died in his home, 5139 Forbes street, last night after a lingering illness.

Mr. Roberts

Mr. Roberts was one of the oldest jewelers in Pittsburgh, the house of which he was the head having been established in 1832 at Fifth avenue and Market street.

He leaves his widow, Malindy J. Loughrey Roberts, and the following: J. Loughrey Roberts, treasurer of the John M. Roberts & Son Company, who lives in Forbes street; Mrs. George Michael, of Murray avenue; John M. Roberts III, of Mt. Lebanon, vice president of the John M. Roberts & Son Company; Mrs. Fred I. Smith, of Hartford, Conn., and Miss Lillian Roberts, at home.

Mr. Roberts was a former president of the Pennsylvania Retail Jewelers Association, a member of St. John's Lodge, F. & A. M., a Knight Templer, a Shriner and a member of the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church.

GARAGE FUMES KILL PASTOR

Funeral arrangements were being made today for the Rev. John W. King, 52, of 407 Russellwood avenue, pastor of the McKees Rocks Methodist Episcopal Church, who was found dead last night in the gagare in the rear of his home, a victim of carbon monoxide poisoning.

The Rev. Mr. King was working on the engine of his automobile while the doors of the garage were closed, it was said. The engine was running, deputy coroners reported, when the body was discovered.

The Rev. Mr. King, who had been pastor of the McKees Rocks church two years, went there from Springdale. He was born in England and came to this country when a boy. He was a graduate of Boston University. He leaves a son, James Ray King, of Coraopolis.

EX-STAGE STAR FOUND DEAD

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Mrs. Helen Grayce Appell, and widow of Nathan Appell, founder of a theater chain, was found dead on the floor of her bedroom here yesterday. She had last been seen alive Sunday, neighbors told police.

An autopsy was to be held, but authorities said a natural death was indicated. Neighbors had not become suspicious because the light in Mrs. Appel's room had been on every night, but when they discovered daily newspapers had not been taken in they summoned officers.

Brigham Young's Son Dies After Operation

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Brigham Morris Young, son of the Mormon pioneer, is dead. He succumbed yesterday after an operation for appendicitis. He was born in this city in January, 1854, the son of Brigham and Margaret Pierce Young, and was an active worker in the Latter Day Saints Church.

SQUIRE, OFFICER FILE APPEAL

Justice of the Peace Thomas R. Gracie, of Brentwood, and George Hilpert, his former constable, today were seeking a new trial, following their conviction in Criminal Court of a charge of conspiracy to defraud Anton Pollak, who testified he had been induced to pay $100 "to fix it up," after being arrested on a liquor charge. Joseph Oliver, a third defendant, to whom the money actually was paid, pleaded guilty, but has been released on bail pending final disposal of the case against Gracie.

Gracie was required to put up $2,000 bail by Judge James H. Gray before he filed the motion for a new trial. His previous bail had been half this amount.

Steamer's Race With Death Loses

Off the Florida Coast, the freighter Munorway signalled one of her officers was gravely ill with no doctor aboard. Capt. E. W. Sundstrum of the Momus sent a lifeboat through a storm and took off the man. The Momus steamed for the nearest port, but he died en route.

Bogus Priest Gets Prison Term For Church Theft

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—John Holmes, 49, Philadelphia, was sentenced to Sing Sing for 15 months to two and one-half years for grand larceny.

Holmes pleaded guilty to the charge that by garbing himself as a priest he obtained entrance to the church of St. Thomas the Apostle and stole $108.

LEAGUE PLANS PLEA TO CLARK

Refused a permit from Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh to hold a demonstration at Liberty avenue and Grant street Wednesday, leaders of the Trade Unity League are planning to appeal to Director James M. Clark. The league was reported as intending to stage the demonstration without a permit, if Clark refused it.

The demonstration is contemplated to be one of many to be held throughout the country Wednesday as a protest against unemployment.

DRY CHIEF ASKS HOME OPTION

county or district option, but home option.

"Any of the other plans of settlement leaves a troublesome and die-hard minority. Home option, about the same as individual opinion, eliminates the minority.

"If a citizen possesses liquor, or makes liquor in his home, and in such way as not to be observed by the public, and if he properly supports his family, this policy would require that he be not disturbed.

"If he fails in a single public duty, if he breaks the peace in any way, if he fails to take care of his family, if he fails to keep himself fit to perform any public duty, the state steps in and punishes.

"This plan makes unlawful all commerce in liquor, does not compel the dry to support a state dispensary, leaves the wet in the full enjoyment of any right which he believes he has, which may be exercised without affecting anyone else.

"The courts and agents ought not to be expected to prevent the making of liquor in the home for non-commercial purposes. They ought not to be expected to stop the consumption of such liquors any more than the courts and police are expected to stop a game of bridge in a private home, with no commercial aspect.

Whether Attorney General Mitchell and other cabinet officers who appeared before the committee indorse Woodcock's solution of the problem was not disclosed.

MITCHELL NOT QUOTED

Nowhere in the young library of documents and transcripts of testimony was there any that quoted Mitchell. He appeared before the commission several times, but his views were given in confidence, and the commission withheld them, along with a mass of other testimony that Judge William S. Kenyon referred to in his individual report a month ago as so startling in its bearing on graft and corruption that a congressional investigation was warranted.

MAN SHOT DEAD IN CAFE ROW

John Katokis, 33, a chef in the Imperial Restaurant, at 1110 Walnut street, McKeesport, was under police guard in McKeesport Hospital today following the fatal shooting last night, in the kitchen of the restaurant, of a Negro dishwasher known as "George," according to the coroner's report.

The Negro is alleged to have slashed Katokis on the forehead and nose with a razor during an argument in the kitchen. Katokis then seized a revolver and shot his assailant, killing him almost instantly, deputy coroners said. Three customers and a waitress were in the restaurant at the time.

Physicians at the hospital said the chef's condition was fair.

Police said the trouble started when Katokis objected to the presence of a Negro whom the dishwasher had invited into the kitchen.

Plan Ex-Governor's Funeral Services

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Wyoming was to pay final homage to her late governor, Frank C. Emerson, in funeral services today.

Seventeen guns were ordered fired at one-minute intervals at Fort Francis E. Warren to denote the nation's condolence to the state. The body will be borne on a caisson from the executive mansion to the capitol building, there to lie in state for one hour before the start of the march to Lake View Cemetery.

Congress Intended No Ban On Home Wine, Mabel Says

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—It was the express intention of Congress, in passing the Volstead act to exempt home wine-making, Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general and now attorney for the grape concentrate interests told the Wickersham commission, it was revealed today.

Citing Senate debate prior to the passage of the Volstead act, Mrs. Willebrandt said:

"It is clear from the circumstances surrounding the insertion of this exception (Section 29) that it was the intention of Congress to give to the householder all the leniency as to fermented beverages—in contradiction to brewed or distilled beverages—that properly could be given.

"Brewed or distilled beverages were made by commercial concerns, and consequently Congress extended no privilege to them."

The annual missionary convention of the Sheraden Gospel Tabernacle Christian and Missionary Alliance, Sherwood avenue and Bergman street, will close tomorrow with services at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

The convention has been conducted in conjunction with the Luther Horn evangelistic campaign, which is to be conducted throughout the coming week. Addresses tomorrow will be delivered by the Rev. W. A. Pruett, of French-Indo China; Miss Julia Derr, of India; the Rev. H. D. Stoddard, of Birmingham, N. Y., and the Rev. Luther Horn, of Mobile, Ala.

Giving Series

THE REV. JOHN P. TREACY

OHIO MINISTER SPEAKS HERE

The Rev. John P. Treacy, assistant rector of St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church, Cleveland, O., will present a series of sermons in the Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church, Alder street, on Sunday nights during Lent.

Father Treacy is a graduate of St. John's Seminary, Boston, Mass., and of the Catholic University, Washington, D. C. Sunday night, February 22, Father Treacy will speak on "Co-Authors of Humanity."

Salvation Army Sunday Services

"The Psychology of Conduct" will be discussed tomorrow night by Adjt. George Brooks in the Salvation Army headquarters, 425 Second avenue. At the 11 a. m. service a holiness meeting will be held. "Herod Hinders the Lord From Helping Him" will be the subject of the Sunday school lesson at 2 p. m., with "Righteousness Exalteth a Nation" as the subject of the Young People's Legion at 6 p. m.

'Mind' Is Subject In Science Churches

"Mind" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read tomorrow in all Christian Science Churches. The golden text will be, "The earth sall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

Song Service Held By Natrona Church

A special song service has been announced for tomorrow night in the Natrona Methodist Episcopal Church. Thirty men will form a chorus, which will include solo and quartet parts. The Rev. A. E. Yeager is pastor of the church.

Pastor to Talk On Reconciliation

"Resignation and Reconciliation" will be discussed tomorrow morning by the Rev. J. Sala Leland, of the Fourth Methodist Protestant Church, Frankstown avenue. His evening subject will be "A Remarkable Answer."

MASS MEETINGS HIT REVISION IN BLUE LAWS

Musmanno Bill Calling For Referendum Scored In Contemplated Protest

Mass meetings will be held tomorrow throughout the Pittsburgh district to protest against several bills for the modification and repeal of the Sunday Blue Laws, which have been introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature.

The protests will be directed against a bill introduced by M. A. Musmanno for the repeal of the Sunday Blue Laws by compulsory local referendums and against a bill introduced by Samuel J. Perry of Philadelphia, which is almost an exact duplicate of the Musmanno bill.

Meetings will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Allegheny Reformed Presbyterian Church, Mt. Lebanon Methodist Episcopal Church, Homewood United Presbyterian Church, South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, and the First Presbyterian Church of Carnegie.

Tomorrow evening meetings will be held in the West View Junior High School, the Ben Avon United Presbyterian Church, Butler Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Ames Methodist Episcopal Church and the Oakmont Methodist Episcopal Church.

The meetings have been arranged by the general secretary of the Sabbath Association of Western Pennsylvania, Dr. Robert M. Blackwood.

CHURCH TO LAY CORNERSTONE

The cornerstone of the new All Saints' Episcopal Church, McClure and Davis avenues, North Side, will be laid tomorrow afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, bishop of the Pittsburgh Episcopal diocese.

Bishop Mann will be assisted by the Rev. W. J. Marshfield, rector of the church. The building will be of Gothic architecture. The ground was donated by the senior warden, David B. Oliver. The old church building was razed last year to make way for the Ohio River boulevard.

Stewardship Meet At Ingram Church

The Rev. Dr. Charles C. Cribbs, of the First Presbyterian Church of Ingram, will speak tomorrow morning on "The Word of His Judge." At the evening service Dr. Cribbs will be in charge of the stewardship contest.

Sharpsburg Church Announces Program

"Stirring Up the Gift" will be the morning subject of the Rev. K. L. Cramer, of the First Baptist Church of Sharpsburg, North Main street. At the evening service Mr. Cramer will speak on "Sin."

Homestead Holds Inter-Racial Meet

An inter-racial and brotherhood meeting will be held tomorrow in the Homewood A. M. E. Zion Church, Tioga street. The Rev. David P. Thomas, pastor, will be in charge of the services.

Farewell

DR. PERCIVAL BARKER

FINAL SERMON BY DR. BARKER

Dr. Percival H. Barker will tomorrow deliver his farewell sermons in the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church, Fifth and Penn avenues. At the morning service his subject will be "Christ in a Changing World," and at the evening service he will speak on "The Greatest Argument for Christianity."

Dr. Barker will begin his new ministry in the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, Buffalo, N. Y., on the first Sunday of March.

CHURCH HOLDS HOMECOMING

Special services tomorrow will feature the celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of the dedication of the Schenley Heights Methodist Episcopal Church, Bryn Mawr road and Iowa street.

A homecoming service will be conducted in the Sunday school by the Rev. W. Sproule Boyd, of the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. At the 11 o'clock service the pastor, the Rev. J. E. Morrison, will speak on "The Eternal Church." The Rev. Jacob S. Payton, superintendent of the Pittsburgh district, will speak at the evening service.

SYNOD TO OPEN BIBLE SCHOOL MEET HERE

Lutheran Hosts to Hold Eleventh Convention in Perrysville Avenue Church

The central conference, Pittsburgh Synod of the Lutheran Sunday School Association will hold its eleventh annual convention Monday in Mt. Zion Lutheran Church, Perrysville avenue and Waldorf street, North Side. Sessions will open at 1 p. m., with a devotional and song service conducted by H. Charles Seelhorst, vice president. Speakers will include the Rev. Paul E. Kevser, of Columbus, O., field secretary of the Parish and School Board of the United Lutheran Church; the Rev. Dr. J. Kirkwood Craig, superintendent of the Allegheny County Sunday School Association, and the Rev. Ralph D. Heim, of Thiel College.

FINAL SERMON BY DR. BARKER

Dr. Percival H. Barker will tomorrow deliver his farewell sermons in the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church, Fifth and Penn avenues. At the morning service his subject will be "Christ in a Changing World," and at the evening service he will speak on "The Greatest Argument for Christianity."

Dr. Barker will begin his new ministry in the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, Buffalo, N. Y., on the first Sunday of March.

APOLLO WOMAN SETS RECORD

An unusual record has been attained by Mrs. Mary J. Jackson, known as "Aunt Mary" Jackson to hundreds of persons in the vicinity of Apollo, Pa. Mrs. Jackson, 80, is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Apollo and for 12 years has attended every Sunday morning service, Sunday school and Wednesday night prayer meeting. She resides in Pennsylvania avenue, Apollo.

In spite of her advanced years she is an active woman. She lives alone, reads without glasses and takes active part in all church activities. Her husband, John Thompson Jackson, served in the Union Army during the Civil War. Mrs. Jackson is a life-long resident of Armstrong County. She has two children, Mrs. Myra McElroy, a teacher in the McKeesport schools, and E. S. Jackson, of Beaver Falls.

Meeting to Oppose Blue Law Change

"The Stewardship of Life" will be discussed tomorrow morning by the Rev. Samuel Hill, of the Butler Street Methodist Church. At the evening service a mass meeting against the anti-Sunday bill will be held in the church, at which Dr. W. L. C. Samson will speak.

ALMA BLAMED RETURN OF DOPE ON MATE'S SCORN

'PLEASE HELP,' SHE CRIED TO 'RIC'

Star Shielded Physician After He Refused Her Drugs; Tells Suffering

By ALMA RUBENS.

CHAPTER XX.

When I walked into a prominent Hollywood hospital I was firmly convinced that I had sufficient will power to overcome the dreadful dope habit, deep as I was in its clutches. I explained my case to the physician in charge and he seemed a most sympathetic person.

Much to my surprise I had hardly become settled in my room when in walked a nurse with a hypodermic needle in her hand.

"What's that for?" I demanded. "I don't want that. I'm trying to break myself of the habit. That's what I came here for."

Miss Rubens

"Now, don't get excited," she replied in that coddling tone of voice generally used in coaxing children. "Just take this like a nice little girl. And you'll soon be all right."

I was furious.

"I won't take it!" I cried. "I won't take it!"

"You must," she insisted. "If you don't your heart is liable to collapse. You'll die."

"All right," I said. "Let me die then. But I won't take it. I made up my mind to break off the habit and I'm going to begin right now."

She became angry. Her mouth settled into a narrow little slit and I could see the fighting lights shimmering in her cold, steel-blue eyes.

"Oh," she exclaimed, in carefully modulated tones that bespoke of an iron will. "If that's the way you feel, we'll have to give it to you forcibly."

She called another nurse and although I fought them until I was exhausted, they finally threw me onto the bed and one of them jabbed me in the thigh with the instrument.

When I awakened I was in a sanitarium.

In this private institution they practiced what is known as the "cold turkey" method of dealing with addicts. That is they put a patient to bed and instead of tapering off their dope supply gradually, left them to get along the best way they could without it, no matter what their condition or degree of addiction.

Craved 'Shot'

This was really what I wanted to do. This was what I had firmly made up my mind to endure when I went to the hospital in Hollywood. However, the effects of the injection had so weakened me and nauseated me that my morale was undermined.

I craved a "shot" in the worst way.

The terrible deprivation pains were overwhelming me. My legs and arms were drawn up in a most horrible manner. Their muscles had become knotted and the cramps were driving me insane. My eyes were watering and I drooled at the mouth.

Morphine acts as a depressant. It slows the heart action. And when it is taken away from an addict suddenly, the heart action increases correspondingly and the vitality is lowered.

Such was my condition. My heart was palpitating so badly that the moment I would get my cramped limbs straightened out beneath me, I would become dizzy and collapse on the floor.

I rang for an attendant. They paid no attention to me. Finally, my suffering became so acute that I shrieked in pain at the top of my voice.

A nurse came, but when I explained matters to her, she merely shook her head and said she was sorry; she couldn't do anything. The doctor had forbidden her to relieve me, she added.

This went on for three days and three nights. I suffered all the torments of hell. I died a thousand deaths!

Just when I thought I was surely going to expire, in came my mother. I recognized her and that was about all. I was absolutely a person ruled by insanity. She tried to calm me, but my nerves had reached such a state that only one thing could have quieted them.

And that one thing was a drug.

Taken Home

She insisted on taking me home, and, as I was not formally committed, the authorities allowed me to go.

We reached home shortly after 9 o'clock in the morning. We met Ric coming down the stairs.

"Ric, Dear Ric, Please help me," I cried.

Suffering as I was, I believe if he had been just the least bit kind at that moment, I would have died before I ever took another narcotic potion.

But he was not in that kind of a mood. He paused, half way down the stairs, looked me over coolly for an instant, then turned on his heel, remounted the stairs and slammed his own bedroom door behind him.

If it had not been for my mother, I would have fallen. I had been four days without morphine! My condition, physical and mental, was terrible, a thousand times worse than I could possibly describe.

Mother helped me to my own room.

I went straight to a little bureau drawer which I had kept locked, opened it, took out a packet of morphine and a hypodermic, fled to the bathroom. Within another minute I had injected a double dosage of the soothing narcotic into my veins. What a relief!

While I was doing this, mother pounded on the door. She begged me not to do it. Instinctively she knew what I was doing. Then she called Ric. He did not answer her, and I was too busy to have paid heed to either.

When I had completed the operation, I calmly walked out, passed my mother into my own room, and went to bed. I slept until late in the afternoon, when once more the dope monster began gnawing at me.

I had had enough suffering for a while. I fixed another "shot," got dressed and visited Dr. C., in his office. My morphine was running low.

He professed great surprise at seeing me. As a matter of fact, he was not in the least cordial. When I explained my predicament, he said he would give me one more prescription, and that would be the end.

He said that "they" had been looking him up since I went to the hospital and he dare not have any further dealings with me.

I advanced no argument. All I wanted was the morphine. I didn't have the money to pay him, so I left a little ring as security.

When I returned home I was beset with further trouble. Either mother or Ric had trailed me to Dr. C.'s office. Later, I found out they had interrogated him when I left and he swore by all that was holy that he had turned me down flat.

Mother Pled

Mother begged me to go to some other sanitarium. I halfway promised to do so as soon as I had recovered from the shock of my first experience in such an institution.

Ric didn't come near me, although I heard him come in and slam his bedroom door behind him. A little later, he went out again and I didn't see anything more of him for several days.

The next morning, bright and early, I had a visitor. My mother admitted him. He presented a card setting forth that he was a federal narcotic agent. This was Mr. M. He told mother he wanted to speak to me about "Dr. C." I was still asleep, but she called me.

When I got dressed and came downstairs, M. told mother he thought it would be better if he talked to me alone. Coming as she did from an old line of Irish police stock, my mother, ever imbued with respect for anything that even resembled a police shield, went about her housework.

M., who said he came from San Bernardino, professed to be deeply interested in Dr. C. He asked me a lot of questions about him, none of which I truthfully answered. As badly as he had treated me, still I shielded him.

Suit Asks $15,000 For Boy's Injuries

Mr. and Mrs. Horace S. Bracken, of McKeesport, asked $15,000 damages for injuries to their son, Victor, 12, in a suit against J. F. Broadbent, of McKeesport, filed in Common Pleas Court. The boy was thrown to the street when a wagon on which he was riding was struck by an automobile driven by Broadbent at Grover and Irwin avenues, McKeesport, January 26 last, the suit averred.

Deputy Constable Jailed Over Raids

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 21.—Robert Glass, a deputy constable of Ellwood City, has been arrested and lodged in the county jail by Sergt. Price, of the state police. His arrest is said to have followed an investigation made of alleged fake raids.

FATHERS, SONS HOLD BANQUET

The second annual "Dad-Lad" banquet, given by the men's classes of the Union Baptist Church, Carrick, under the leadership of Preston M. Evans, took place at the church last night. The main speaker at the banquet, which was attended by 212 dads and sons, was El Comancho, adventurist and trapper of old western days, who gave a vivid account of his experiences.

The oldest "dad" present was Nehmiah Highley, 79, and the youngest of the sons was Jimmy Morgan, 3.

Twins Win Prizes For Charleroi Parents

CHARLEROI, Pa., Feb. 21.—Awards amounting to several hundred dollars were won by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kosarki, Charleroi, when twin sons were born to them at the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital.

SUNSHINE MELLOWS

Heat Purifies

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat

The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body.

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED"—an extra, secret heating process. Harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos are expelled by "TOASTING." These irritants are sold to others. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

College Club Hears Talk By Doctor

At the moment we begin to enjoy talking about physical ailments at that moment we begin to grow old, Dr. Auleene Marley Jamison said in her talk to the College Club yesterday. With "Give the Child a Chance" as her subject, Dr. Jamison remarked that happiness is the goal sought by everyone and that one's reactions depend largely on sound physical health. Joy and happiness are the birthright of every child and are necessary if he is to have mental health, she observed.

If anyone wishes to make progress in developing personality it is necessary to enjoy health mentally and not drag in morbid thinking and reactions, she went on, adding that a personality of beauty and power comes through effort and growth and is not inherited.

Personality is the result of the satisfactions the individual has found through life and it is through personality that self-expression is found. Most disciplinary problems are not problems of children, but of parents, she stated, adding that children are generally the counterparts of the thinking, feeling and speaking of their adults.

She declared it is not sufficient that parents become "baby-conscious" of their own families; what information they have must be disseminated, for 10 years hence the child of today's poverty and ignorance may be influencing in most unexpected ways the child of plenty and knowledge.

FLORAL PRINTS ARE BUDDING INTO FASHIONABLE EMINENCE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—If it's in print, it's correct, might well be the slogan for the new frocks for Southern wear. This is merely to reassure those who were of the firm opinion that prints were quite passee. Nothing could be more removed from fact. Little floral and leaf designs in delicate colors and prints will obtain for early spring at any rate. The large splashy prints will no doubt make their return call when the summer rides high in the cloudless heavens, for that type of print seems to lend itself more to the summer months.

* * *

BUT FOR THE SPRING days, the small delicate prints in precise patterns seem to be the unerring choice of women the world over. Which means that this type of design seems to express artistically as well as suitably the vernal season with its delicate foliage and flowers. Prints of this type are nice for simple little sports frocks, they break the monotony of the sports frock that is developed in a monotone coloring, without trimming. And that's the latest news about prints.

* * *

TODAY WE SHOW you a sketch of the very newest frock for Southern wear. It is by Molyneux, who is featuring models of this genre in his collection for Riviera wear. It is of printed shantung in a biscuit color and has a delicate printed pattern of stiff little flowers and leaves in black and gray. More like a gilet than a bodice is the upper part of the frock, with its surplice opening and lack of sleeves. The printed skirt is set onto a close and rather deep yoke.

Half a War, Half a Bonus

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

If the bonus wrecks the country it gives the administration a chance to blame it on the politicians who are blaming it on the administration.

And it will be a new kind of head-on wreck. We're tired of the side-swipes. Anyway, you can always get a quick Mexican divorce.

Government will spend one billion on state highways this summer.

It means bigger and better detours.

It means arrows pointing with authority.

It means puddles studied with powerful dignity and federal reserve.

When the average citizen looks at a puddle he seems to plow through it, circumvent it or dry it up with language heated for the ceremonies.

But, when the government lamps a puddle it may either fill it in with rare concrete of the Ming dynasty or it may deepen it and make it a harbor.

Now, the usual thank-you-ma'ams, which are bumps in the road, may mean nothing to the rustic boobister. But to a government, seeking to preserve the landmarks of history, a bump in the highway has legislative grandeur and possibilities.

Can not Cal Coolidge write an editorial to fit the bump? And can not Gutzom Borglum carve it with a firm hand on the enduring and imperishable gumbo?

They can. Will they? They will. A bump on a federal highway attains prominence and official status. We might even put an Indian on it and make it a government reservation.

Then a billion dollars worth of roads must be lined with first, second and third-class hot dog stands, with superintendents appointed in order of seniority.

There will be offices to be strived for and commissions to be validated.

We are going to have the finest roads in the world. When we can find them. And when they are opened. The work goes ahead slowly. The spades and shovels know they are hacking away on government time. The pick-axes and sledges rise and fall with the statuesque synchronism of a gold pen signing an international peace treaty.

It's noon. The boys are resting from their hard work in the morning debate. They have been talking over the labor they have planned for the afternoon. The water boy passes around the lily cups.

It's difficult labor growing old enough to be pensioned on government time. The mills of the gods grind slowly. But if they hamburger sausages, it's all right.

In the meantime a man in the woods has invented a mouse trap superior to others. The world beats a path to his door.

Pattern 2114
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern
By ANNE ADAMS.

2114

Underthings must be as skillfully designed as frocks, since a well-fitted dress may be utterly ruined by a wrinkled and old-fashioned slip. The model shown today is seamed and moulded to the figure above the hips. The graceful flare, so necessary under spring and summer frocks, is added well below the hipline. Pattern 2114 is lovely made of crepe de chine, wash satin or a fine cotton fabric in white, flesh, tea-rose or pink.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

PERSHING LAID GERMAN GAINS TO ALLIED TACTICS

OPEN WARFARE NOT TRIED IN TRENCHES

Dispute Over Disposition Of U. S. Troops Settled Without Arousing Rancor

MY EXPERIENCES IN WORLD WAR

—By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING—

Commander-in-Chief, American Forces.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER XLI.

"Speaking in the name of the American Army and in the name of the American people," I told the Supreme War Council during the second day of its session at Abbeville, May 2, 1918, "I want you to realize that we are ready to bear as large a part as possible of the burden of the war. We all want the same thing, but our means of attaining it is different from yours.

"America declared war independently of the Allies and she must face it as soon as possible with a powerful army. There is one capital point to which I wish to call your attention: that is the importance to the morale of our soldiers of fighting under our own flag.

Gen. Pershing

"America is already anxious to know where her Army is. The Germans have once more started a strong campaign of propaganda in the United States, the purpose of which is to insinuate that the Allies have so little confidence in the American troops that they are obliged to distribute them among their own divisions.

"The American soldier is as proud as any other, and the time will soon come when our troops, as well as our government, will ask to fight as an autonomous army under the American high command.

"I understand that in Prime Minister Lloyd George's proposal we shall have to examine the situation again in June before deciding for July.

"That is all that I can agree to at present to show my desire for solidarity with the cause of the Allies."

Lloyd George had previously taken up a revised program submitted by myself, and after some discussion he proposed that:

"America give us 120,000 infantrymen and machine gunners in May—the same number in June, with a supplement of 50,000 infantrymen and machine gunners if we 'scrape together' the tonnage to transport them."

Wants Troops in Hurry

He further proposed that the situation be examined again in June before deciding whether there was reason to extend to July the program decided upon for May and June. He then called on the Council to accept his plan.

Inasmuch as the proposal submitted by Lloyd George contemplated the shipment of the numbers mentioned in British tonnage, leaving American shipping entirely free for us to use as we should decide, an agreement was soon reached, substantially as set forth in the following cablegram to the Secretary of War:

"Following agreement adopted by Supreme War Council May 2 at Abbeville. Will cable more in detail later. 'It is the opinion of the Supreme War Council that, to carry the war to a successful conclusion, an American army should be formed as early as possible under its own commander and under its own flag. (Then it was thought the war would run to 1919.)

"'In order to meet the present emergency it is agreed that American troops should be brought to France as rapidly as allied transportation facilities will permit, and that as far as consistent with the necessity of building up an American army preference be given to infantry and machine gun units for training and service with French and British armies; with the understanding that such infantry and machine gun units are to be withdrawn and united with their own artillery and auxiliary troops into divisions and corps at the discretion of the American commander-in-chief after consultation with the commander-in-chief of the allied armies in France.

"It is also agreed that during May preference should be given to the transportation of infantry and machine gun units of six divisions, and that any excess tonnage shall be devoted to bringing over such troops as may be determined by the American commander-in-chief.

British Transportation

"It is further agreed that this program shall be continued during June upon condition that the British government shall furnish transportation for a minimum of 130,000 men in May and 150,000 men in June, with the understanding that the first six divisions of infantry shall go to the British for training and service, and that troops sent over in June shall be allocated for training and service as the American commander-in-chief may determine.

"It is also further agreed that if the British government shall transport an excess of 150,000 men in June, such excess shall be infantry and machine gun units, and that early in June there shall be a new review of the situation to determine further action."

As stated in a cable from the Secretary of War, received May 12, this agreement provided less priority for infantry and machine gun units than recommended by the Supreme War Council.

It was certainly much more favorable to the ultimate formation of an American Army than we had reason to expect in view of the recommendations contained in Note 18 of the Military Representatives, which, as we have seen, had been practically approved by the President. In the excitement over our agreement with the British the full purport of this commitment was not emphasized by the Allies during the discussion.

Nobody more than I realized that the military situation was most threatening. Following the powerful enemy offensive of March 21 had come that of April 9, and another attack had been made by the enemy toward Amiens, while in the fighting farther east Villers-Bretonneux had been taken and retaken several times.

Wanted Amalgamation

As the British casualties since March 21 had been some 280,000, and those of the French 60,000 to 70,000, both Allies were prompted to make this strong appeal for Americans to reconstitute their units not only physically but morally.

From the practical standpoint of increasing the efficiency of the Allied armies the argument was against the unqualified acceptance of Allied proposals. The nationals of no country would willingly serve under a foreign flag in preference to their own. The national sentiment involved was such that we could not possibly afford to enter into such an agreement, except in an extreme crisis.

Moreover, the added strength of a distinct army would be much greater than to have its personnel parceled out here and there. Another serious objection to our men serving in the Allied armies was the danger that the low morale and the pessimism in their ranks would react adversely on our officers and men; in fact, this had already been the case to some extent, especially among our men with the British, where the contacts had been close.

As to personal relations, it was gratifying always to find an attitude which apparently regarded these discussions, though often heated, as simply official difference of opinion.

There was at the same time a very distinct impression in my mind, and in the minds of many of our officers familiar with the arguments on both sides, that the Allies, while greatly in need of assistance, were inclined to advance the plea of amalgamation as a means of keeping us in a subordinate role.

Frowns on Open Warfare

Still, after these questions were settled, even temporarily, there was no personal rancor or ill-feeling in evidence, although no doubt at times each side thought the other difficult to deal with.

Other proposals regarding the employment of American troops under Allied command were made from time to time, all of which I opposed vehemently. An understanding of the Allied attitude, however, enabled me to maintain the high regard in which I held my associates in arms, especially when their many acts of kindness and friendship were considered.

After the decision at Abbeville everybody seemed content, and Gen. Foch, parting with me, said: "Mon General, nous sommes toujours d'accord." While this remark no doubt expressed satisfaction that an agreement had been reached, it did not mean the Allies had at all given up their views on how American troops should be trained or used.

As to training, the fact that neither the British nor French had trained their armies for open warfare, either offensive or defensive, was at least in part one cause of the tremendous success of the German drives with divisions trained expressly for that kind of warfare.

That the French intended to impress their conception on us is indicated by a memorandum of instructions for the guidance of their officers on duty with us emanating from the French General Headquarters May 1 that fell into our hands. It shows also that the French still regarded the possibility of open warfare as more or less visionary. Speaking of Americans, it said:

"It should be borne in mind that they have an extremely highly developed sense of 'Amour-propre' based on their pride in belonging to one of the greatest nations of the world. Consequently an air of superiority over them should be assiduously avoided, a fact which in no way prevents the absolute subordination required by the service for carrying out the rules of hierarchy. * * *In case of necessity French officers should not hesitate to exercise their authority. * * *Americans dream of operating in open country after having broken through the front. This results in too much attention being devoted to this form of operations."

French Views Changed

The attitude the French assumed toward us in the World War was in marked contrast with the views held by them when their troops so generously came to America to aid us in the Revolution. The French commander at that time received very explicit instructions from his government on this subject, as the following sent to Rochambeau shortly before he sailed for America will show:

"It is His Majesty's desire and he hereby commands that, so far as circumstances will permit, the Count de Rochambeau shall maintain the integrity of the French troops which His Majesty has placed under his command, and that at the proper time he shall express to Gen. Washington, commander in chief of the forces of the Congress, under whose orders the French troops are to serve, that it is the intention of the King that these shall not be dispersed in any manner, and that they shall serve at all times as a unit and under the French generals, except in the case of a temporary detachment which shall rejoin the main body without delay."

After the session I suggested to M. Clemenceau and Mr. Lloyd George that sending a regiment might help to stimulate the Italian morale, and asked their opinion. They both thought it would be a wise thing to do just at this time.

I had opposed scattering our forces in this way, but the appeal of Italian officials and the recommendations of Americans who had visited Italy indicated that under the circumstances an exception could well be made for a small force.

When I told Premier Orlando that this might be done, with the possibility of increasing the number up to a division later on, he was much pleased.

Meet About Supplies

Meanwhile, the President had been pressed by Italian representatives to send them troops, and word came by cable a few days later that he thought we might brigade some of our troops with the British and French divisions then in Italy. But to leave them independent was far preferable, and the subject was not taken up with the Allies, my idea being that if we should find it necessary to send more troops to Italy it would be best to build up a division of our own.

Another matter taken up informally with the Prime Ministers after the conference was that of pooling Allied supplies. I explained its advantages and emphasized the saving in tonnage that would result. Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Orlando did not commit themselves entirely, but accepted it in principle, as M. Clemenceau had done, and each agreed to designate an officer with business experience to meet with us at an early date to study the question.

Sir Travers Clarke

Gen. Dawes

With this beginning at least a step had been taken toward our objective, even though the principle might not be extended as far as we thought desirable. A few days later M. Clemenceau called a meeting in his office of the representatives, Gen. Sir Travers Clarke acting for the British and Col. Charles G. Dawes for the Americans.

Tomorrow: British protest against our sending a Negro division to serve with them.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion, dark rings under your eyes, pimples, a bilious look in your face, dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel, to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

STEEL DEMAND IN SEASONAL TREND

By B. E. V. LUTY.

Steel demand has been swinging in substantially its usual seasonal manner. December was a low month, as always. The January increase was slightly above the average and possibly February is not showing altogether as much increase over January as was expected, but it is a fact that generally February does not witness as much improvements as either January or March.

Steel production this month may be forecast at around four per cent increase over the January rate. The official report for January indicated a rate of production of all steel ingots at about 29,000,000 tons a year, while the February rate may be estimated at fully 30,000,000 tons, which would be 46 to 47 per cent of existing capacity, assuming an increase of about 2,000,000 tons in capacity since the official ascertainment was made of 63,000,000 tons capacity on December 31, 1929.

GAIN IN PACE SHOWS

In the last few weeks some disappointment has been expressed that steel has not improved more rapidly and particularly perhaps that it has not continued the full pace of gain shown in the forepart of January. The feeling has probably been due to expectation that the turn of the year would make a great difference but that is not by the book. It is true that regularly in the last few years there has been seasonal improvement at this time, but it has not been large, and the comparison is with a period of activity, whereas this is not a period of activity.

In seeking precedent it is better to go farther back to the long period before the war when steel was having a succession of ups and downs, round trips generally taking from two to four years. During that period nobody in the steel business regarded January 1 as a crucial date. It was then a matter of recovery from depression, and March and October represented the times when recovery was expected to begin, if it was to begin at all. Thus the time for substantial recovery has not been left behind.

RAIL RELEASES

Increases in steel mill activity have been spotty, not greatly affecting the total. There is in particular a larger percentage of total steel made going into rails than the average in an ordinary year, for this is the time of heavy rail deliveries. Rail releases may not be heavy compared with other years, but even at that rails account for an unusual percentage of the steel now being made, well above 10 per cent and possibly close to 15 per cent. Fabricated structural steel absorbed about 10 per cent of the steel made last year, but is now taking a somewhat smaller proportion. The current rate of steel production as just estimated is three-fourths of last year's average rate while the tonnage of steel passing through the fabricating shops is somewhat more than one-fourth under last year's average.

Railroads Handle Reduced Freight

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Freight traffic handled in 1930 by the railroads of this country measured in net ton miles, (the number of tons of freight multiplied by the distance carried), totaled 422,116,659,000 net ton miles, according to complete reports for the year just received by the bureau of railway economics.

This was a reduction of 70,196,763,000 net ton miles, or 14.3 per cent under that for 1929, and a reduction of 55,066,833,000 net ton miles or 11.5 per cent under that for 1928. This reduction in the amount of freight traffic handled during the past year resulted in large part from business conditions that existed in 1930.

'Caulker'

P. A. FREYVOGLE

CAULKING AIDS HOME HEATING

Difficulties in heating houses are not always attributable to faulty heating plants, F. A. Freyvogle, painting engineer, declared in discussing the importance of caulking, which frequently is neglected.

The cracks around door frames, window frames and cornices on the outside of buildings are frequently responsible for loss of heat and should be filled with a caulking compound which never becomes brittle, Mr. Freyvogle declared that this will protect interior walls, curtains and draperies, and that it will shut out wind and moisture. Caulking will also save the rotting of wooden window frames or the rusting of steel frames.

He pointed out that stone, brick or cement buildings are porus and that they should be protected with a transparent moisture-proof coating on the outside to keep out dampness which often damages plaster and wall paper.

Burke Funeral.

Funeral services for Robert A. Burke, 84, of 305 Elysian avenue, who died in West Penn Hospital Thursday night, will be held tomorrow at the T. B. Moreland funeral home, North Highland avenue and Rippey street. He was born in old Allegheny and served in the Civil War. For many years he had been active in the affairs of McPherson Post No. 117, G. A. R., and was a member of the Presbyterian Church and Western Star Lodge No. 24, I. O. O. F. He leaves a son, Alderman Charles A. Burke, and a daughter, Mrs. W. M. C. Gray, of Washington.

Fixed Trusts to Hold Important Place

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

FIXED TRUSTS ARE destined to play an important part in the investment world for many years to come. They offer the advantage of diversification to individuals whose funds are limited. They materially simplify the tax problems of large estates. They make it possible for security buyers of all classes to secure a fair degree of safety while participating in the growth of American industry without necessitating the study of a large number of individual companies.

These conclusions have been reached as a result of a study of fixed trusts. The major points developed in this study have been discussed in a series of articles of which this is the twelfth.

Like most newcomers in the investment field, the pioneer fixed trusts have been subject to abuses. These are being corrected as public understanding of the intricacies of the offerings is increased.

Bad Features Corrected

THE SPONSORS OF SOME of the early fixed trusts derived hidden profits which were unjustified by the services performed. They brought a perfectly legitimate idea before the public for the first time although some of them were inclined to be lacking in frankness in presenting details of their offerings to customers. In recent months the pressure of competition has been forcing modifications in fixed trust set ups. Progress is being made toward the elimination of hidden profits. Greater frankness is being shown by sponsors in telling customers exactly what they are buying.

This is demonstrated by the fact that some of the trusts which formerly deprived shareholders of interest on reserve funds are arranging to correct this unfair situation. There is also a tendency toward improvement of price-fixing policies, and toward the correction of other abuses. It must be remembered, however, that there is still room for the perfection of many trusts. Investors should take the trouble to find out just what they are paying for service and how the loads on trusts in which they are interested compare with those of competing offerings.

All Costs Important

PROSPECTIVE BUYERS OF fixed trusts should find out how much it costs them to get their shares in excess of the value of the underlying securities. They should know how much it costs each year to hold their investments and how much it will cost to get out. In some trusts these costs are included in the original price. In others direct or indirect charges are levied at other times. All charges during the life of the trust are factors of the cost and should be considered as part of the expense of fixed trust service.

The methods of fixing prices also are important and have a bearing on costs. Whether the charges are computed on the net cost of investments before or after including accumulations and reserve funds increases or reduces charges. The disposition of savings in brokerage costs and the policy followed in adjusting quotations to nearest or highest eights is a further factor. The method of computing market costs of securities in the portfolio must also be considered.

Understanding of Types

THE BUYER OF FIXED trusts should have a clear understanding of the dangers of the dilution of his principal by the operation of the distributive type of trusts and he should realize that, in buying a trust with a reserve fund, he is supplying capital a portion of which will contribute little or nothing to income and which will not be a factor in appreciation.

Elimination of clauses should also be studied and it should be realized that purely mechanical elimination of stocks may come too late to be of service in preventing losses.

The provisions made for the continuous payment of trustee fees are also worth investigating to make sure that the trustee will not have a lien on the investment portfolio in case the original firm should go out of business or lose interest in the offering.

More Business Leaders Indorse Relief Program

Additional indorsements of the Pittsburgh plan for stabilization of employment, as advanced by the Allegheny County Emergency Association, were received today at association headquarters. Among the indorsements were these:

E. W. MUDGE, President, Westmoreland-Connellsville Coal and Coke Company: I think the Pittsburgh plan for the stabilization of employment is a most worthy movement. It is based on sound economic principles and is practical from every standpoint. To me it is the most effective way of putting men back to work in the shortest period of time. If we give the plan unstinted support we will see the wheels of industry quickly moving us ahead to normal conditions.

R. D. O'NEIL, Vice President, Vulcan Detinning Company: The system of using numbers instead of names in the distribution of work by the Allegheny County Emergency Association will eliminate the political favoritism which has marked employment efforts here previously. The plan undoubtedly will stimulate business throughout the Pittsburgh district.

J. K. WOODWELL, Secretary, Joseph Woodwell Company: We believe the Pittsburgh plan of employment stabilization will prove an excellent thing for the whole community. It is a constructive step in the right direction.

LEON RAINS, Vice President, A. M. BYERS Company: Our firm thinks the employment plan of the Allegheny County Emergency Association is a splendid one. It is conceived on the right basis and is following the right principle.

SAMUEL DEMPSTER, Chairman of the Board, W. J. Gilmore Drug Company: The program of the Emergency Association is a very good one. There is no doubt that the funds contributed will be judicially expended to get the maximum results. All, who are able to do so, should give consideration to the appeal. The plan is certainly a step in the right direction.

DAVID GLASS, Treasurer and General Manager, Keystone Lumber Company: We think the Allegheny County Emergency Association's employment plan is a mighty fine project and that it will be a big benefit to all classes. It certainly will stimulate business in the Pittsburgh area.

J. WILSON PORTER, JR., President, Porter & McDowell Company: The Pittsburgh plan of employment stabilization is a wonderful one and is the most logical thing to do if business is to be revived in this district. All those who have the welfare of the Pittsburgh area at heart will subscribe to it.

T. W. DAWSON, Vice President, H. C. Frick Coke Company: The Emergency Association's plan for employment stabilization is an excellent one and is the best devised so far as I know.

R. L. BELKNAP, President, Campbell-Horigan Granite Company: It has been a pleasure to indorse the Emergency Association plan. It is assisting those who need work and incidentally the city secure some much needed improvements.

C. L. PIERCE, JR., President, Hubbard and Company: The plan of the Allegheny County Emergency Association of giving needy men employment, which is what they want, rather than mere charity, which they do not want, is a most constructive program with which we are in hearty sympathy and support.

Rum Prisoner Dies In Jail Hospital

KIRNER'S BOOK TRADE GAINS

Kirner's Catholic Book Store, founded in 1881 by F. M. Kirner, who gave up his profession as school teacher in Newark, O., to enter business here, has experienced increasing demand for church and school supplies and Catholic publications in which it specializes.

The business was first located at 3701 Butler street, but steady growth of demand, both wholesale and retail, necessitated acquisition of downtown quarters. After several store locations in the Golden Triangle had been tried, the present spacious and suitable quarters at 309 Market street, were acquired.

Upon the death of the founder, a son, Frank Kirner, took charge of the store and now conducts both a wholesale and retail business in Catholic publications, periodicals, school books, candles and sanctuary supplies.

Will Study Cost Of Lead Output

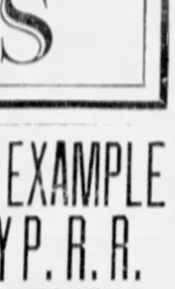
GOOD EXAMPLE SET BY P. R. R. EXECUTIVES

Decision to Double Rate Of Electrification Seen As Great Business Aid

By MERLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Business recovery can be quickened by the decision of large and influential corporations to push forward promptly developmental programs which they intend ultimately to carry out.

The decision of the Pennsylvania railroad to double the rate at which its electrification program will be carried out sets an inspiriting example for other executives.



Mr. Rukeyser.

In spite of the oft-repeated wails about the plight of the railroads, the transportation leaders know that their industry is here to stay, and have found through long experience that the best time to make huge capital expenditures is in time of business depression, when money can be borrowed cheaply and when materials are low and labor is efficient.

Back in 1914 when the outbreak of the war in Europe paralysed the South by cutting off for a time the normal foreign markets for cotton, important stimulus was given to the business situation south of Mason and Dixon Line by the courageous determination of Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern Railway, vigorously to carry out his program for rebuilding and double-tracking parts of the line. He had already raised funds for the purpose, and he resisted the current pessimism, and instead used the lull as an opportunity to get ready for the subsequent economic renaissance of the South.

As a matter of fact, with the melodramatic and confidence-shaking incidents in connection with the depression already behind us, alert executives should lose no time in capitalizing present opportunities for scrapping obsolete plants and equipment, and getting ready for a period of intensified competition by installing the latest and best machinery and power connections.

COURT REDUCES STOCK VALUE

A reduction of $7 a share in the valuation of stock of the West Penn Steel Company held by Miss Marie McGinley, daughter of the late John McGinley, executive of the company, and other stockholders who contested merger valuation of the stock was ordered in a final decree handed down by Judge Elder W. Marshall in Common Pleas Court.

The West Penn Steel Company was merged with the Allegheny Steel Company May 6, 1929, under a plan by which West Penn shareholders were to receive 7½ Allegheny shares for each West Penn share. Holders of 2,182 shares, including the McGinley estate holdings of 897, refused to surrender their stock under this plan and filed an equity suit to fix a valuation on their West Penn stock.

Judge Marshall fixed the value at $428 a share last November and exceptions were filed by the Allegheny company. The final decree yesterday fixed the value at $421 a share, said to be a considerable advance over the value fixed by the merger.

Settlement Ends Woman's Balm Suit

RIDGWAY, Pa., Feb. 21.—An agreement reached in Elk County Court brought to an end the breach of promise case of Minnie Kraft against A. C. Brehm shortly after the jury was drawn. The amount of settlement was not announced.

Miss Kraft had asked for $50,000 from Brehm, a building contractor. Both are St. Marys residents.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

Forbes

This Proves Many People Not Hard Up

—By B. C. FORBES—

Mr. Forbes

PEOPLE HAVING money apparently are readier to use it than are banks. This column recently told of a Middle West utility company that sold a new issue of stock in one day and had to turn down many additional subscriptions.

Now President A. F. Hockenbeamer of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company tells me:

"We sold 64,000 shares ($6,400,000) of 5½ per cent preferred in January. The sales force consisted of only two people—one man and one woman—who devoted but half their time to stock selling. Advertisements in our local newspapers, as usual, did the rest. Quite a different picture from that in 1914, when we first launched customer ownership.

"Demonstration of the soundness of our banks what a fine showing they made after the close of the year), fine spring weather, and the 15 or 20 points' advance in the stock market have imparted a visibly more cheerful feeling among business men and among the people generally. There is a good deal more optimism in the air.

"Looking ahead for a few years, I anticipate some remarkable developments in the San Francisco Bay area."

CYRUS S. EATON, Ohio "mystery man" who shot up from obscurity to financial fame, cutting a spectacularly wide swath in utilities, rubber and steel, has not been having smooth sailing since the bottom fell out of America's boom. Like many others, he became more extended than proved comfortable. One result is that the company he organized to attract money from the public, Continental Shares, has stopped dividens on all of its stocks. Mr. Eaton is best known to newspaper readers as the uncompromising opponent of the Bethlehem Steel-Youngstown Sheet and Tube merger. That fight has already cost a pretty penny—and Wall Street rather thinks the final score has not yet been settled.

PRESIDENT F. A. SEIBERLING of the Seiberling Rubber Company, Akron, returning from a tour of the United States, tells me:

"I have covered the country from border to border and coast to coast in 28 days, 14,000 miles of travel. Our slogan is 'Business for profit in 1931,' and I talked to 19 groups of dealers at points along the line, particularly about the new super-tire we are bringing out. Our meetings were enthusiastic. I am trying to get our dealers out of their price-minded state and to lift them to a higher plane of merchandising based on quality. We are making a fight for the independent dealer as against others who have entered the business.

"I found conditions over the country generally much the same, my impression being that the Midwest, and particularly the Pacific Coast, have less gloom in their thinking than we of the East and particularly those of us in the industrial centers."

PRESIDENT CARL B. EIMER of the Amsterdam Development and Sales Company, commenting on a recent column about the new style American executive, writes:

"I wonder if styles in executives do not change from generation to generation? An argument used to be carried on between my father and my brother, who died a few years ago. It was always my brother's idea of an executive to sit at a large glass top table and push buzzers for other people to do the actual leg work.

"On the other hand, my father built up a large business and a fairly comfortable fortune by waiting on his customers personally and seeing that orders were carried out under his direct supervision. Since some of these customers were Thomas A. Edison, Peter Cooper Hewitt, various college professors and world famous chemists, naturally they expected to be waited upon by one in authority, and one who knew his business. Even when my father had between three and four hundred people under him, he used to go around the plant personally every day to see that things were running right, and my brother used to criticize him severely for not leaving these details to his subordinates. Personally, I think the contact with customers and employes is most wholesome, imparting first-hand knowledge not to be had otherwise.

"Don't you think that the majestic executive of a few years ago was the product of great prosperity and natural laziness? Now with hard times, executives have to get out and hustle as well as the average subordinate."

THE BUSINESS world eagerly hopes Congress will receive its marching orders on March 4. Its absence is preferred to its presence."

TRUST OFFICER SEES SLUMP AT END

Grimes Believes Trusts Are Responsible for Better Trade Outlook

Murray Grimes, trust officer of the Allegheny Trust Company, firmly believes that the grip of depression in which the nation has been held has been broken.

As a trust specialist and estate analysis expert, Mr. Grimes has been in the closest contact with the financial markets. It is his firm belief that the voluntary or living trust, and the testamentary trust, or trust created by last will and testament, are in a very large measure responsible for the brighter outlook observed today.

A voluntary trust placed with a trust company, having a trained and skillfully organized trust department, may not appeal to the "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," but it does appeal to the sound, forward thinking investor, who regards highly the safe and sure acquisition of personal independence, while, at the same time, he has access to ready cash, should an emergency arise.

The recent Wall street crash left thousands of men and women with their hands full of "frozen" securities, utterly unable to retrieve needed cash without a tremendous loss. On the other hand, there were thousands who had money invested in "legal" securities under the skilled supervision of a trust company, who had a sure and steady income at definite periods, and, if needed, had immediate access to a part or to their entire trust fund.

PEOPLES GAS OPENS PLANT

The new Wilkinsburg building of the Peoples Natural Gas Company is to be opened today for public inspection. The building is located at Penn avenue and Hay street, on the site of the former postoffice. The structure is a one-story affair in the front, with two stories in the rear, and occupies a space of 34 feet by 138 feet.

All activities of the gas company in the Wilkinsburg, Homewood, Brushton, Edgewood, Swissvale and Forest Hills districts will be centered in the new building, which, in addition to the appliance, sales and billing departments, also houses service shops, meter proving laboratory, meter repair room and a large underground garage.

Today's opening is informal, there being no ceremonies or program. Aides will be on hand to explain the numerous interesting features to visitors. The office formally opens for business February 23.

OIL PIPE LINE UPHELD

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Nothing should be done which will retard or prevent the use of pipe lines for the oil industry cannot continue discharging its obligations to the American people without them, in the opinion of Frank Phillips, president of the Phillips Petroleum Company and member of the American Petroleum Institute's pipe line committee.

In a statement opposing the proposal of railroad executives to subject pipe line common carriers to the same restrictions as the railroads as regards transportation of commodities in which they directly are interested, Mr. Phillips declared a better course of action would be for the railroads to seek relief from their own burdens and restrictions rather than the enactment of laws designed to kill off competition.

International Fibre Names New Officer

H. B. Salkeld, president of the International Fibre and Chemical Corporation, announces the election of Lester Bernstein as vice president of the corporation with headquarters in the Oliver Building.

Mr. Bernstein spent several years in the American tropics on Isthmian Canal surveys after graduating from Lehigh University. He was later identified with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

During the World War he served with the general operating committee of Eastern Railroads here. Since July, 1919, he has been identified with the Philadelphia Company. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Greene Mines Yield 4,800,033.44 Tons

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Feb. 21.—A total of 4,880,033.44 tons of coal were mined in Greene County during 1930, according to the annual report of John McKenna, state mine inspector.

During the past year 3,856 men were employed in the industry in the county. Eight fatal accidents occurred. There are 21 mines in the county, 18 of which operated last year.

REPRODUCTION OF STONE COLONIAL

PURCHASE AIDS COMMUNITY

The purchase of the Wabash bridge and tunnel, announced by the County Commissioners, and the opening of that route to traffic during the current year, has caused a stir in Mt. Lebanon real estate, particularly in that section dominating the head of the Banksville road, which it is proposed to convert into a lowgrade, high speed boulevard, connecting with the Wabash bridge and tunnel. From the Virginia Manor community, located at the southern extremity of the new boulevard, the driving time to downtown Pittsburgh at Fifth avenue and Liberty street should not exceed 10 minutes.

The opening to traffic of this major thoroughfare, in the ordinary course of events, should result in rapid increment in land values along this route, once its importance is visualized, just as values increased along the arteries served by the Liberty Bridge and tunnel shortly after it was opened to traffic.

The great problem of suburban residence is access to the business district of the city by rapid transit. That problem along the new boulevard needs no further answer than the completion of the improvement.

FREEPORT GETS CUBAN FIRM

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The problem of insuring the American steel industry of a nearby supply of manganese appeared nearer solution with the announcement that Freeport Texas Company has expanded into the manganese deposits in Cuba.

The minority interests of Cuban American Manganese Corporation are represented by David M. Goodrich, chairman of the board of B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, with whom the Freeport Texas Company has been in close collaboration in the development of processes and properties. Freeport Texas Company has previously confined its operations almost entirely to the production of sulphur of which it now is the second largest world producer.

Plans have been completed for the immediate erection of a Cuban plant to treat 1,000 tons of ore a day by new patented processes for the concentration or "beneficiation" of manganese ores which will increase their metallic content to the percentage required by American steel mills, Eugene L. Norton, president of Freeport Texas Company, announced.

CHANGE STIMULATES CONSUMPTION

—By J. H. VAN DEVENTER—

Style changes have been found effective in stimulating consumption. That is why we have them. Manufacturers and merchants have discovered that people will not wait for things to wear out before replacing them, if something new and attractive is produced which makes the old products seem out of date or less desirable.

This stimulating effect of change has been used to get business even during the depression. One cosmetic producer found that sales were slowing up, so he designed a complete line of new packages and containers embodying a modern decorative motif for the old product. As soon as the new packages were displayed by the dealers, sales jumped to a level higher than the best record of 1929. One might ask whether people were buying containers or the product contained by them. Nevertheless the package often sells the product.

A department store manager, sensing the psychology of change, recently had a complete revision made of floor space and showcase and counter arrangements. Sales were immediately stimulated. He believes that such revisions in the physical appearance of old established stores are necessary if they are to compete with the interest displayed by the public in new ones.

A sales manager of a machinery house tried the experiment of rotating salesmen's territories. He believes that prospects get used to the personality and sales approach of the salesman who calls upon them repeatedly, and that it is good business to have them meet a new man whose sales technique is not known to them. He reports the experiment as being successful.

Model changes have been one of the most effective sales stimulators in the automobile business. But the makers are beginning to wonder if yearly changes in such expensive products are not going a bit too far both from producers' and consumers' standpoint.

Changes would not be successful in stimulating demand unless people wanted them. And finding out what people want before they know what they want is one of the secrets of merchandising.

1930 Water Wheel Capacity Gains 7%

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The total capacity of water wheels at water power plants in the United States on January 1, 1931, according to the annual report just released by the Department of the Interior through the Geological Survey, was 14,884,667 horsepower, an increase of 1,076,889 horsepower, or 7.2 per cent, during 1930. This increase has been exceeded only in 1929 and 1926, when the increases were 1,276,000 and 1,138,000 horsepower, respectively. These figures indicate that the utilization of the country's water power resources is proceeding at a fair rate, notwithstanding the continued improvement in the efficiency of steam plants. The states that show an increase of about 100,000 horsepower each during the year are widely distributed—New Hampshire, New York, South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Washington.

Bituminous Coal Stocks Show Increase

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Commercial stocks of bituminous coal used largely for industrial purposes amounted to 37,200,000 tons on January 1, 1931, according to the quarterly survey just completed by the United States Bureau of Mines, Department of Commerce. In comparison with the amount on hand at the beginning of the previous quarter, this is an increase of 1,300,000 tons but it is 3,100,000 tons less than the quantity in storage on the same date last year.

In addition to the stocks in the hands of consumers there was 8,940,000 tons of bituminous coal on hand on the docks of Lake Superior and Lake Michigan on January 1, as compared with 9,804,000 tons on October 1.

BUSINESS INDEX TAKES GAIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Business changes from week to week are still slight and not uniformly upward. On balance January averaged a little better than December, and the first two weeks of February have shown a resumption of the rising tendency, says The Business Week for the week ending today.

The business index has risen from 77.5 per cent for the week ended February 7 to 78.5 per cent for the latest week. This compares with 90.6 per cent in the corresponding week last year. Steel activity continues to increase slowly; building contracts, especially in the residential field have lately shown a fairly distinct improvement, and merchandise carloadings are doing a little better.

Commodity prices are somewhat steadier this week, but most other statistical indicators are still negative or non-commital. Securities buyers seem disposed to stake something on the fair chance that business has been resting on a real, not a false, bottom these past two months, and the shorts are far less sure of themselves than in a long time. The odds will be pretty clearly against them for the next two months unless the bulls try to discount a much more rapid business improvement than seems probable at the moment. The congressional cloud is clearing, but the foreign atmosphere is still fairly foggy, and there is still no evidence of the expansion of bank credit that must precede increased construction and commercial activity by several months.

SURPLUS CARS INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Class I railroads, on February 8, had 654,179 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced today. This was an increase of 7,429 cars compared with January 31, at which time there were 646,750 surplus freight cars.

Surplus coal cars on February 8 totaled 252,216, an increase of 11,924 cars within a week, while surplus box cars totaled 330,371, a decrease of 6,206 cars for the same period.

Reports also showed 30,844 surplus stock cars, an increase of 1,276 cars above the number on January 31, while surplus refrigerator cars totaled 15,088, an increase of 581 for the same period.

TRADE VOLUME WELL UNDER NORMAL

Stocks of Retailers Are Below Seasonal Average; Collections Unimproved

While the volume of business as a whole continues well below normal, there have been more inquiries in most lines, and buying has shown a slight increase, although usually for immediate needs, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review.

It is the general opinion that retailers stocks are well below the average for this season of the year and that replacement of merchandise cannot well be delayed much longer. Jobbers of dry goods, wearing apparel, and shoes, report buying of spring merchandise still light, although a slight improvement has been noted. Hardware continue to move slowly, while there is a slight improvement in demand for paint, and wallpaper is showing more activity.

FURNITURE SALES

Construction work still continues rather inactive, and the demand for lumber and other building materials is still slow. With February sales in progress, the movement of furniture is at a somewhat higher rate, and the demand for floor coverings is showing some improvement. Trade in groceries and provisions is rather quiet, with prices averaging somewhat lower. Conditions in the agricultural sections have been materially improved by more rainfall than for several months.

There has been a slight increase in the rate of production of crude oil, but a slight reduction in the amount of oil in storage is reported. Demand for bituminous coal continues slow and the rate of production averages about 20 per cent lower than last year at this time.

There has been but little change in the collection situation of late, some lines reporting a slight improvement, while others report collections somewhat slower, and little improvement is expected before March.

EXPORT TRADE DECLINES 25%

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—American exporters deserve high praise for their attitude in the face of declining markets, according to W. L. Cooper, director, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Congress, Department of Commerce. Speaking at the formal opening of the Bureau's branch office at Charleston, S. C., Mr. Cooper pointed out that the majority of American firms engaged in overseas trade are intensifying rather than relaxing their efforts abroad. His organization, he declared, is neglecting no opportunity to further our foreign business and it is believed that the new office at Charleston will play a useful part in stimulating the foreign demand for Carolina products.

In examining our export trade for the past year, Director Cooper declared, due consideration should be given to the marked price recessions of all products and that practically all exporting countries have felt the effects of world depression in the same or even greater degree than the United States. Using 1928 (a more normal year than 1929) as a basis of comparison, American export trade last year showed a decline in value of approximately 25 per cent. A similar comparison of British exports in these two periods shows a loss of 22 per cent; Japan's export trade fell 21 per cent while Canada and Australia registered export losses of 34 and 31 per cent, respectively. It is to be noted the speaker pointed out, that these countries are far more dependent on their export trade than is our own. American export trade for years has represented about 10 per cent of our production and it is probable that when the final figures are in this same proportion will prevail for our foreign business in 1930.

ACTIVITY GAINS IN PLATE GLASS

Little Change Shown in Rough Rolled and Wire Branches of Industry

Greater activity in the plate glass field and a further readjustment of window glass selling prices were outstanding among the week's developments in the flat glass industry, according to American Glass Review. In the rough rolled and wire glass branch of the industry comparatively little change was shown in marketing trends.

The demand for plate glass, while showing no appreciable increase, has improved gradually throughout the month. The stimulus, both in number and size of orders, is to be attributed entirely to revival of activities in the automobile industry, as consumption by other principal consuming industries continues in unusually light seasonal volume.

PRICES REVISED

Reflecting this gradual pick-up in demand from the automobile industry additional plant capacity was placed in operation this week when full time production got under way at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company's plant in Creighton, Pa. The market for this product continues firm. With manufacturers' stocks reduced and output understood to be at a rate about in keeping with demand, the outlook in this branch is rather satisfactory.

Featuring this week's activities in the window glass industry was the announcement of a further price readjustment by leading producers. The revised discounts, effective from February 19, are in the interest of stabilization in this section of the market. This revision of selling prices for window glass, it will be recalled, is the second to be made during the winter.

MEETING HELD

Demand for this commodity is holding the slight gains shown earlier in the month, although practically no change for the better was to be noted this week. Production schedules, likewise held without change of consequence.

Conditions in the several branches of the flat glass trade were discussed at a meeting of the eastern division of the National Glass Distributors' Association in New York on Wednesday of this week. The meeting, which was well attended, was the first to be held this year by the eastern division.

Briggs Will Benefit by Increase in Motor Production

Greater activity and strength in Briggs has been caused by the fact that the company will benefit by the steady increase in automobile production. The company does considerable business with Ford as well as Chrysler. Interests close to the management have been optimistic on the outlook for some time. They believe the directors will be able to continue extra dividends of 50 cents a share a year, in addition to the regular rate of $1.50 annually. That would give a large return at current levels.

Although it had been known that earnings of Chrysler for 1930 would not be decidedly satisfactory, considerable scale buying in stock had taken place during recessions. The stock was being bought on its past record. Some of the traders who were prominent in the issue on several occasions two years ago are said to have accumulated a long line again. The management reduced expenses during the business recession last year by 31.37 per cent, which should be an advantage when when more normal conditions return.

Public interest in the market has expanded materially in the past week or so. The advancing trend has attracted outsiders again after a lapse of months. Evidence of the greater public participation in the market is seen in the increase in the volume of dealings. That always is a sign of outside participation. Confirmation of that fact has been obtained from a number of the leading commission houses which have extensive wire connections with many sections of the country. They report the public interest increasing in practically all sections, but particularly in the Middle West.

Denial by officials of the Steel Corporation of rumors which recently cropped out to the effect that the big steel company was seeking to acquire A. M. Byers, did not appear to influence much selling in that stock. These denials, which made their appearance in the early afternoon yesterday, came on top of a further sharp advance in Byers to new high levels for the year. The stock at top levels was up some five points on the day to 69¾, where its price contrasted with the year's low of 37, showing as it did an appreciation of approximately 90 per cent in the open market value of the issue in a period of a few weeks.

Possibly the relatively low yield offered by the dividend return on leading stocks at current levels, plus absence of prospect for any early increase in rates of payment, offers one of the reasons for the tendency of buying to flow into the lower-priced descriptions on this advance. The rank and file of leading stocks are offering an average yield of, roughly, 4.5 per cent at current levels. Steel, for instance, paying $7, is selling to yield about 4.7 per cent; General Electric, paying $1.60, returns a yield of 3.1 per cent, and American Can, paying $5, including $1 extra, offers a return of 4 per cent. Consolidated Gas yields about 4.9 per cent, and Electric Power and Light, earning $1.99 last year and paying $1, yields 1.8 per cent. Money rates have doubtless made their low levels for this occasion and in all probability will show signs of stiffening as business commands more funds when needed.

No little interest centered in the vigorous bullish demonstrations being staged in certain leading stocks such as General Electric, International Telephone and one or two others. One hears various explanations offered for the remarkable strength that has developed in those issues in the last day or two, with the seemingly apparent strong character of the buying held up as suggesting the confidence of interests close to their management. But among the stories going the rounds was one to the effect that some good-sized short positions still remain uncovered in the market. This is reported to be especially the case in the two aforementioned stocks, in which groups operating on the long side are reputedly gunning for big short positions supposedly open a few points above currently prevailing levels.

American Aviation Demand Holds Up

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—World demand for American aviation equipment held up considerably better last year than did domestic demands. The Commerce Department estimated the value of aviation exports for 1930 at $8,800,000, which was about 4 per cent less than during 1929.

STOCKS AFTER HESITATING MOVE UP

Strong Buying in Coppers, Utilities Quickly Erase Profit-Taking Symptoms

Strong buying support in the utilities and coppers quickly erased the symptoms of mild profit-taking which had appeared in the initial dealings and the list embarked on a rather general advance. United States Steel rose more than a point to a new 1931 high, and General Electric, Radio and American Telephone also reached new peaks for the year with fractional advances.

Auburn snapped back into prominence with a rise of more than 10, crossing 209 against its year's low of 101½ and its previous high of 205. Macy, Case, American Smelting and Johns-Manville were up 2 points, while Kennecott, Anaconda, Consolidated Gas, United Gas Improvement, American and Foreign Power, Atchison, Union Pacific, Allied Chemical, Mack Truck and Chrysler rose 1 to 1½.

Commission houses regarded yesterday's advance by the industrials into new high ground as technically important and they were also impressed by the fact that the market had been able to push above the low point reached in the autumn break of 1929.

Trading was active despite the imminence of the holiday.

FOOD PRICES DROP HERE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Retail food prices were reported today by the Department of Labor to have dropped 4 per cent in Philadelphia and 3 per cent in Pittsburgh and Scranton during the month ending January 15.

Pittsburgh with a decline of 16 per cent led the other two principal cities of Pennsylvania in the decrease of the cost of food during the fiscal year ended January 15. The drop in Philadelphia and in Scranton was measured by the department at 14 per cent.

Surveys of 51 cities in the nation showed an average drop of little more than 3 per cent for the month and 14½ per cent for the year.

Baldwin Locomotive Gets Soviet Order

New Device Fights Fog

The federal lighthouse service has devised a new method of sending out fog warning signals which permits fog-bound vessels to determine their distance from lighthouses or lightships.

Soil Values Differ Widely

Illinois farm lands vary so widely that crop yields from the most productive are worth about 10 times as much as those from the least productive, a 26-year study by the agricultural college reveals.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

High Ideals Don't Always Make for Happiness

When we have skyscraper ideals and set them on the mountain top are we two-timing ourselves?

Lauralee wants to know. Once she wouldn't have asked that question. Once before she left the campus for the wide, wide world she thought life was "sweet." Then she found that it was full of brambles and bog holes . . . and as for marriage . . . what could it offer that was worth a college woman's time?

So she's beginning to wonder.

Are you perhaps wondering too?

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Does marriage pay for the educated woman of 1931? That is a question over which I have pondered many a time. And that is the reason probably why I am 24 years of age and have never been engaged . . . nor have I ever contemplated marriage.

Had Beautiful Ideals

"I graduated from the university at 21 filled with enthusiasm for life—having a very 'sweet' viewpoint of the world. Four years I had worked for my degree and teacher's certificate, acquiring also a fair knowledge of the more cultural subjects. I majored in fine arts, based on the love and appreciation of beauty. It was drilled into me—and I gradually established a philosophy of life that was based principally upon beautiful ideals. I was ever searching for the fine things in life, believing in beauty . . . forgetting about the hard, cruel facts of actuality. When I say that my philosophy was based on appreciation of beauty, I don't mean upon expensive treasures, for I have learned that there is beauty of line, light and color in the least expensive things. But this art training course gave me a fine sense of harmony, and I was always thinking and hoping in terms of harmony.

"Upon graduation jobs were scarce, and there were hundreds of teachers on the city waiting list. Then I took a brief business course. In a few months I was employed as secretary to a prominent man. In his office I learned that life wasn't so 'sweet' as I had thought. He treated his help as slaves. We had to cater to him, we had to lie, to make up excuses to keep him out of difficulties and listen to his swearing.

Wants to Be a Success

"I soon learned that you can't please everybody, else . . . that we must assert ourselves, or be failures in every venture.

"You have said that we must hurt others—or we'd never be a success in life. I believe that is the main reason for my failure. I have never intruded on other people's success or happiness to attain my desires. I've simply denied myself. I had gotten to where I had too 'sweet' a view of life.

"As for marriage, I have heard too many complaints of modern marriage to ever think of it myself. And somehow I've always held the idea of being a success at some line of work—my education broadened my desire to be worthwhile, made it seem my duty—before marriage. And I've vowed never to marry unless I could have the few comforts that I now enjoy. But I believe in the old-fashioned idea of One Perfect Love. I'm that much of a romanticist. I wouldn't marry for money. I live in a world of ideals too much. Perhaps I think too much in fine proportions. College seems to have limited my possibilities for a happy and successful marriage. Are my ideals and beliefs too high?"

Not in Love

I have had more than one proposal and I have many boy friends. I love all my friends, and couldn't have nicer ones. Then why am I not "in love" with some of these college boys? Well I ask—How many modern college boys are able to earn a living these days for two? They have the cultural background and were congenial, but where is the man who can be "ideal" in both phases of life—cultural and material? Marriage will pay if the college woman can find a man who can afford to let her continue to live in her environment of college days. But it is natural for a college woman to feel that she cannot sacrifice certain things for marriage as the non-college woman can?

I'm not living the life of a princess now. I do my washing, clean house, iron and consider myself a rather useful person. I never pet or smoke or drink, although I tolerate the last two and condemn no one. I have my own character and qualities, but never condemn others. Yet, I feel that my life so far has been a failure. But I have bright hopes for the future. I am not disillusioned yet. I want success, however, before marriage. Am I wrong to want so much of the cup of success?

"LAURALEE."

Must Face Hardships

Am I setting my ideals too high? you ask. No one can set their ideals too high, provided they're the right ideals. But yours aren't. Frankly—and I presume that you expect me to be frank or you wouldn't have written—you're blaming life for not giving you the sort of thing you want. But the thing you want is based on cowardice. You want to escape all distressing reality, anything that makes life really difficult, anything that strips you of your childish illusions. You claim to worship beauty. You have never seen beauty, my dear. You have only seen prettiness. Beauty is a grim, gaunt wonder—and we only learn to know her through hardship and suffering and infinite sacrifice and courage.

There's no use in fussing to "have your own way" unless your own way amounts to something. Does yours? Are you really trying to further any cause save your own comfort and conceit?

"People like you." Of course. You're probably sweet and charming. But how many people need you? Of what value is your life in the scheme of things?

You've thought much about what a man should do for you. But what could you do for a man?

'The Heart Knoweth Its Own Bitterness' -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

HER LITTLE GREY EYES ARE HER CROSS !!
THE FIRST GREY HAIR !!!
THE AGING MATINEE IDOL CONTEMPLATES YOUTH !
TOO THIN ! AND TOO FAT !
HER NOSE !
THIS YOUNG WOMAN HAS EVERYTHING. SURELY SHE IS CONTENT! BUT NO—EVEN SHE HAS A SECRET SORROW!
OH THE BITTERNESS OF DEPARTED HAIRS!

Each Heart knoweth its own bitterness—and nobody else does! Each heart is buried forever out of the sight of each other person, and its own secret resentment over a particular cross along with it. Two people pass like ships in the channel, and to each the other has everything just right from top-sail to keel. And each harbors a secret bitterness over a defect that none of the rest of the port is conscious of.

You would think the young person in the middle of my picture was content—would you not? She 'pears to have everything—big bright eyes—not too chubby, straight nose, naturally curly hair, dimples—OOOOH. But there's something wrong—something that gnaws her heart. Maybe her hair is red, and she adores brunettes!

The aging stage star smooths his thinning chestnut waves, and sighs at the sight of a smooth-faced youth. The girl with small grey eyes and lots of talent, burns for huge brown eyes, and would much rather be dumb and beautiful than plain and clever. Her small eyes are her everlasting bitterness! The first grey hair is to some women gall and wormwood, in spite of all their reasoning powers brought to bear on the ache. Maudie wishes for a little of Mamie's fat, and Mamie fervently wishes that she COULD give some of it away and come closer to the ideal of Maudie's meager legs!

John's waning hair causes him secret anguish and real pain. Though the woman who loves him, loves him just AS MUCH as if he had all those departed hairs!

There is this balm for the Bitterness of the Heart. What you have and are, is just exactly what some other person would give anything to have and be!

NELL BRINKLEY.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Dog Bites Should Be Properly Cauterized.

Dr. Copeland

Every year many thousands of persons are bitten by dogs. Not all of these bites are made by mad dogs, of course. Frequently much unnecessary alarm is aroused. However, in view of the seriousness of a bite from a diseased dog, it is well to keep the animal under observation.

The number of bites from dogs has increased within the past few years. But the number of dogs found with rabies has decreased, as have the number of deaths from hydrophobia.

It is of interest to note that in 1926 there were 8,608 dog bites reported in the City of New York, while in 1929 there were 12,279 dog bites. In 1926, 463 dogs were found rabid and in 1929 only 157 were found to be truly mad. In 1927 there were six deaths in the City of New York due to hydrophobia, as against two deaths in 1929.

Rabies or hydrophobia is a disease caused by a germ. The disease in animals is spoken of as "Rabies," and in man is known as "Hydrophobia." The germ causing this disease is carried in the saliva of the animal. When the animal bites, the skin is torn and the germ enters through the broken skin.

Every dog bite should be immediately placed under the care of a physician. Regardless of whether the dog was mad or not, the wound should be immediately cauterized. This is exceedingly important and often proves to have been the deciding factor in the saving of a life. Prompt cauterization of all bites with fuming nitric acid is the emergency treatment and it should never be overlooked—if it is possible to apply it.

Where it is definitely known that the animal was mad, the victim must be sent immediately to a hospital. Here he receives the treatment known as the "Pasteur treatment." This treatment covers a period of three weeks and is usually successful, particularly if there has not been too long a delay in the cauterization of the wound.

Treatment by "anti-rabitic serum," as it is called, has saved much suffering. It has done much to diminish the number of deaths from the disease.

If all dogs were not allowed to run free, and the animals that are particularly vicious kept muzzled, this disease would probably disappear entirely. This has been practically demonstrated in England, where dogs are not allowed to run out unless muzzled.

Answers to Health Queries

MISS B. S. Q.—What causes bad breath?

A.—This may be due to decayed teeth, diseased tonsils, nasal catarrh, indigestion and constipation.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Persuades Noel to Alter His Views.

Noel's query was most disconcerting to me. It was one thing to decide privately which flowers I meant to wear to Mary's party—my husband's from sentiment and inclination, or my employer's from policy. It was another thing to voice that decision prematurely, and especially to the boy for whose sake and Mary's I was trying to placate his father.

But before I could answer the boy's innate fineness made him shrink back at the thought of the crass question he had put.

"Oh, don't answer that!" he exclaimed, with a horrified little shudder. "I had no business to ask it. That's a fine way to reward all your kindness to me. I'll put another question instead. If you were in my place would you let Mary wear my father's flowers—I don't mean 'let'——" he stopped confusedly—"but would you be willing?"

"I'll be honest with you Noel," I spoke from my heart. "I should hate it—but I think my common sense would triumph and that I should insist upon her wearing them."

"All right! She shall wear them if I can persuade her, and I think I can."

"I know you can, Noel," I told him smiling. "And I am sure you'll not regret it. Now what do you want for luncheon? I'll have it sent up when Mary and I go down. After tonight's party you won't have to be a prisoner up here. But I don't want to have you meet your father until tonight. He is too proud to make any scene then, and once Mary has had her longed-for party undisturbed you can risk an encounter with him."

"I must have it." Noel's breath quickened. "It is unthinkable that I should go on this way. And if he goads me too far he will have only himself to blame if I——"

His voice trailed away into silence, but I noticed that his hands were clenched and his eyes held the smoldering wrath of a gentle soul roused by gross injustice. I surmised that his threat meant no physical violence toward his father but rather the determination to use the weapon which the great producer himself had put into his hand—the cruel, threatening letter, with its unfounded accusations against Mary, which Philip Veritzen would not have reach the public for any money.

I did not repeat the question about luncheon. He undoubtedly would say that he wished none. I slipped away, leaving him staring into space, and knocking lightly on Mary's door, took her away without his noticing our departure. Once in the dining room I selected from the luncheon dishes the ones which I knew Noel liked and ordered the meal sent up to him.

Harry Underwood came into the dining room before we were finished.

"Have you seen anything of Lil?" he asked. "Or are she and her friend still engaged in searching for evening frocks for their daughters?"

"Didn't they come back to Mrs. Brixton's apartment before the riding party returned?" I asked, amazed.

"Nary a come back," he answered, reaching for the menu card. "But Mrs. Brixton's maid is a dour looking person, capable. I fancy, of chaperoning house parties far more sophisticated and unruly than those charming children whom I accompanied this morning. When I left she was preparing luncheon for them and they had rolled up the rugs and were tap dancing. You should see Marion. She's picked up some steps at school evidently and she's mighty clever."

His voice was filled with pride which is his for his young stepdaughter, and it betrayed even more gratification when Lillian came into the dining room a few minutes later, full of apologies for her tardiness, and he repeated his dictum.

"Tap dancing!" Lillian repeated. "Well, if she tap dances in the gown I've bought her just now I shall remove her from the hall by force. It's the duckiest thing, Madge, dips to the ankles all around and just the color of gold. Helena bought Carolyn one almost like it of palest blue. We just had to get them, Madge. When I took a look at the gowns the two other girls had, they were spread out on their beds for pressing, Helena and I saw that our girls would look like dowds. Mary's gown is so spiffy, too. They would have been the only ones in schoolgirl affects. Of course, it's all nonsense—they're not old enough for these gowns, but they'll do next year in college, and I, for one, could not be the Spartan parent, could I, Harry?"

"If you had tried stinting Marion!" threatened Marion's stepfather, and Lillian shot him an affectionate, grateful glance, then looked at me in a silent warning, which she translated into muttered speech an instant later.

Horoscopes

Sunday, February 22

Sunday's horoscope favors all spiritual, mystical and unusual things, but promises little of success or satisfaction in other directions. Dealings with secret bodies, occult or spiritual investigation may be fruitful, and poetry, music or drama of a novel nature may be stimulated.

Those whose birthdg. it is may have a year in which things of intrigue, strategy or expediency may prosper rather than matters of direct action. Negotiations with close corporations, mergers or secret societies are well aspected; and contracts made with subtlety may be successful. A year of singular adventures or experiences may be expected.

A child born on this day may be clever and resourceful in a subtle or strategic sort of way. It may be endowed with peculiar or curious habits or talents.

Monday, February 23

Monday's astrological chart shows an eventful and intriguing trend of affairs, with many outstanding and interesting occurrences or adventures. There may be an unlooked-for change in connection with new undertakings or large positions involving close corporations, secret bodies or avenues of diplomacy. These should prosper financially and bring advancement under a friendly Jupiter and employment should likewise offer promotion or preferment.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a very interesting and eventful year, with many subtle or secret angles assisting to progress and prosperity. Employment or new undertakings may entail sudden change and be financially gratifying.

A child born on this day may be talented and efficient, but may find that tactful, diplomatic and strategic methods may bring it unusual or peculiar successes and affiliations in life.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Addressing Greeting Cards.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it considered all right to typewrite the address on the envelopes of Christmas cards and other greeting cards, or should they be addressed in one's handwriting?

We have had quite a discussion about this.

RALPH.

Christmas cards, since they are such social items, such very personal items, should be addressed by hand. As a matter of fact, seeing the handwriting of a friend on the envelope that encloses a greeting card is the first joy we have in receiving it. If the envelope address were typewritten we might think we were receiving only an ordinary announcement.

An Honor to Be Discriminately Awarded

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for a bride to be given in marriage by her stepfather or must that be done by a blood relative?

THANKFUL.

That depends on circumstances. If the bride feels that her stepfather has been especially "fatherly" to her, and if she has an especial devotion to him, and if her mother agrees that he is the one to present her daughter in marriage, this may be done. But if there is a male relative, such as an older brother for whom it would seem consistent to present his sister in marriage, then the girl must think most carefully about conferring this honor.

The Father's Place as Host.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As we are all steady readers of your column, we would like to ask your advice on a problem that has caused quite a bit of dispute in our family.

We have two grown children, a boy and a girl, and they sometimes entertain with small parties. The problem is; their father says he is not supposed to stay at home on these occasions and I, the mother, think he should at least stay home for a while, so the children will know that he is interested in their guests and what kind of people they have for friends.

We hope you will settle our dispute for us. J. T.

How honestly and deeply I do hope you will be able to persuade your husband to stay with you and your children when the children are having their young friends come to your home. I know so well how precious it will be to you and to them to have their father greet their friends.

And how important it is, as you intimate, for your husband to know the friends of his daughter and son, and to enjoy the thought that they want him with them when they have guests.

Of course, I don't think it's at all necessary for him to stay at the gathering all the evening . . . this is quite out of place and forced, but if you can convince him that, as a gracious host and as a "family father," he should be on hand to greet these young people, it will be grand. Good luck to you.

Household Hints

Place rolls of cardboard in the rubber boots after removing. It will hold them erect, prevent cracking and let them dry out thoroughly.

Perhaps that dim electric light means nothing except the bulb could stand being wiped off with a damp, soapy cloth and then polished dry.

After the bottle of glue has been opened, the second opening is not such a successful one. Rub a little fat or oil around a good cork and insert it instead of the stopper that comes with the bottle. This will not stick.

Never place a small scatter rug at the top of a flight of stairs. Many bad accidents have occurred through this poorly placed rug. Even if the rug is tacked down it is dangerous as a person may catch their feet on its edge and cause a fall.

Leather chairs require a little extra attention every few months in order to lengthen their lives. Wipe all dirt and dust from the chairs with a damp rag and then rub with a cloth that has been dipped in white of egg, well beaten. Rub well with soft clean cloths after the egg has dried and the leather will look like new.

Knock That Cold In A Jiffy

Relief Now Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a little cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL, to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go, the cold breaks up, poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

SKIN IMPROVED IN 3 DAYS WITH RESINOL

"When I decided to try Resinol Soap and Ointment, my complexion was a sight from pimples and blackheads. I had a horrid, muddy looking skin and when I used powder it looked even worse. After three days' use of the Resinol treatment I could see an improvement and now I no longer have to be ashamed of my face. All my friends are telling me how good my skin looks." (Signed)—Mrs. Minnie Norfleet, St. Louis, Mo.

You, too, can have a clear, smooth complexion by using Resinol Soap daily with a touch of Resinol Ointment to heal the occasional pimple. At your druggists. Free sample. Write Resinol, Dept. 75, Balto., Md.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

In infancy bow legs can be remedied by the wearing of shoes especially made for such conditions. In adult life, when bones are solid and unchangeable, no treatment other than surgery will straighten curved shanks.

Have you seen the new hair pieces, plaits, curls, puffs and what-nots to be pinned to the rear portion of the feminine head to replace the casual little buns of natural home-grown hair? They are as light as feathers, they are easily dressed, and they combine effectively with the new hair ornaments that are alluring.

No woman can afford to indulge in anger or other unpleasant emotions. They raise the dickens with her appearance. Fill her system full of poisons that interfere with pulse, circulation and digestion, and destroy the good color and fine texture of her complexion. An even disposition—no inclination to fly off the handle—is the best of all beauty preservers. It forces time to keep its distance, wards off wrinkles, is generally swell-elegant.

The secret of the comfortable shoe is not only in plenty length and plenty width, but in proper support of the arch of the foot. The fit should be snug over the instep and so snug at the heel that there will be no rubbing or friction to produce blisters.

There is a beauty epidemic right now of blue-green eye shadows. Pretty dreadful and spreading fast. With jet black brows and lashes and greenery eyelids a gal looks more than scenic. Orchid shadows are fascinating. Especially when laid over a foundation of vaseline.

Despite the fact that the blonde sisterhood may throw bricks at us, we rise to remark that auburn hair is considered the most beautiful, jet black hair comes next and silvery white is third. The old masters had a decided preference for red hair. They painted red heads oftener than they painted brunets and blondes came along last. There is, of course, a difference of shading from bright carrot down to deep tones that are red-brown. The true Titian is a red-gold that glistens in the sunlight like copper wire.

DUKES PLAN FENCING, SOCCER, ROWING

DON'T IMAGINE FOR an instant that Duquesne University is thinking of letting down even temporarily in its progressive athletic policy just because it has reached a couple of big objectives in getting a football tilt with Pitt and a two-game basketball series with Carnegie Tech for 1932. You haven't heard anything yet. The attainment of those two goals appears only to have had the effect of making the Bluff school put on more steam.

Buff Donnelli.

Far from resting content with their success, the Duke athletic officials are putting greater power than ever into their drive to advance their university in college sports. They are now actually setting the pace for other local schools by going in for some additional pastimes which the rest have not yet adopted. One of these is fencing, another may be soccer, and a third may be rowing. In all of these activities, long popular fixtures in other parts of the collegiate map, Duquesne is likely to be the Pittsburgh pioneer.

HAVING ALREADY INSTALLED boxing, with Pitt and Carnegie taking up the glove sport at the same time, the Dukes, besides planning a track team, will next add fencing to their program. The plan has been finally approved and adopted, equipment is being purchased, and it won't be long until what is expected to be a big class of beginners is taking lessons in swordsmanship from a competent tutor. Incidentally, Carnegie Tech also may put in fencing within a short time.

Graduate Manager John D. Holohan has recommended that the Bluff school follow up the installation of fencing by adopting soccer. The latter is a big-time sport at many universities throughout the country, and is played by the Pittsburgh grade schools, but it has never gained a foothold among the local colleges.

MANAGER HOLOHAN BELIEVES the time is ripe for Duquesne to foster the kicking pastime, and he is urging its early adoption both for intramural play and for varsity competition. He figures that the Dukes are in a fine spot to take it up, having an ideal coach available in the person of Buff Donnelli.

Donnelli is a star player himself and knows soccer from A to Z. He was the mainstay of the old Heidelberg amateur champions, and is now shining at inside right for the Morgan team, for which he kicked the winning goal against Cleveland last Sunday. He holds such a high ranking among the country's amateurs that he has recently received offers from three big Eastern professional teams. And aside from his rare ability at playing soccer, Donnelli's year of experience as freshman football coach at Duquesne ought to help him to teach it.

ROWING MAY STILL be some distance in the future at Duquesne, but it is being seriously considered. There is no good reason, apart from the expense involved, why rowing should not be a college sport in Pittsburgh, as the city's waterways afford every facility and an unusual number of fine courses. Its adoption by the local colleges has been suggested several times without going over, but there is a strong chance now that Duquesne will eventually take it up and develop a series of crews. The Dukes sure are stepping along in earnest.

BILL M'KECHNIE'S gamble on Harold Haid, the New Castle pitcher, whom he bought for his Boston club last fall from the Cardinals when the latter were preparing to send the hurler to Rochester with an arm ailment resulting from overwork in the bullpen and in relief roles, bids fair to turn out profitably for the Braves.

Harold Haid.

Having managed the Cards for a time while Haid was on the staff, McKechnie knew Harold to be a fine pitcher when normal and a good man to have on a ball club. So Bill bought the pitcher, and when the season ended Haid went to California to undergo treatment during the winter at the hands of Dr. Spencer, the Los Angeles specialist.

RESULTS HAVE BEEN most gratifying, according to a letter received by Harold's brother, William J. Haid, of 6349 Walnut street, Pittsburgh, from Beverly Hills, where the pitcher has been making his home with his mother and sister.

The hurler reports his salary arm has improved to such an extent under Dr. Spencer's treatment that it feels almost as good as new, and says his physical condition in general is much better. He now weighs 186 pounds.

SO THAT HAID may continue taking treatments until his arm is thoroughly sound again, the Boston club has made arrangements for him to remain on the coast and work out daily with the Los Angeles club while the rest of the Braves are training in St. Petersburg, Fla. Harold will come East in time to join the Braves for the opening of the National League season. He writes his brother that he hopes to have the best year of his life, not only for the sake of his own future in the majors, but to repay Manager McKechnie and President Fuchs for their kind treatment.

THE QUESTION OF baseball's greatest infield has come up again, and Donie Bush, former Pirate skipper now directing the White Sox, steps forward to disagree with those who vote for Tenney, Lowe, Long and Collins; Chance, Evers, Tinker and Steinfeldt; McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker; Grimm, Maranville, Wright and Traynor, or any of the others that generally rank high in the balloting.

Donie thinks the award belongs to Gandil, Collins, Risberg and Weaver, the infield of the Black Sox in 1919. "The best the game has ever known, in my opinion," he says. "Boy, there was an infield. It was smart. It could do anything on the defense and packed plenty of punch. Risberg, perhaps the poorest of the crowd, was just a kid and coming. They hadn't yet reached their peak when the scandal broke and all but Collins were through."

THE POSSIBILITY THAT the research work of some old masters may exhaust the present game of chess is pointed out by no less an authority than Jose Capablanca, who held the world championship six years, and who recently broke all records for simultaneous chess by playing 200 men at 50 boards at one time.

Jose Capablanca.

"I honestly believe that research types like Dr. Lasker and Dr. Alekhine will completely exhaust the present game in, say, 20 years," Capablanca says. "In their research efforts they have worked out a solution for practically every move on the board. To save the game from being exhausted, I think the board should now be enlarged by the addition of two new pieces. What a game that would make!"

AS TO WHAT the so-called chess brain could accomplish in other directions, Capablanca can't see any extraordinary possibilities. "Because a man can play brilliant chess doesn't necessarily mean he has a mind that can tackle anything successfully," he says. "In fact, I know some chess players who are dumb in matters that are quite clear to other folk. Often, it is a brain that is peculiarly adapted to this particular game. That is all. It requires patience, too, the temperament to linger endlessly over games like Lasker and Alekhine. That was how Alekhine beat me. It took three months to finish that match. He wore me out, physically and mentally."

PITT, DUKES PLAY TONIGHT

ADVANCE PARTY DEPARTS FROM OGDEN, UTAH

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

OGDEN, Utah, Feb. 21.—The Pirate pitchers and catchers had passed far beyond the half-way marker of their long journey when they pulled out of this Utah city today. The athletes were happy in the knowledge that the morrow would see them in California. The big party is scheduled to dock at the Paso Robles training camp about 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Union Pacific folks turned the special cars over to their Southern Pacific contemporaries at Ogden, the latter road to have the Pittsburghers in its care until the jaunt is ended.

WOODS JOINS PARTY

Reaching Oakland about 8 o'clock, Pacific Coast time, the Buccos will hustle from their comfortable sleepers to a day coach train that will roll them southward to the Almond City. This last lap of the junket will consume about six hours.

Charley Wood, of Pacolet, S. C., and Wichita, Kan., was on hand to greet the tourists when their flyer reached Cheyenne last night. The clever lefthander has been suffering from influenza, but he was able to make the trip to the training camp as per schedule.

The holdout situation is a bit puzzling, but Manager Ens says he doesn't look for any great trouble. There is some speculation as to whether Larry French will be at the camp in time, but if Larry fails to show up Sunday, he will be the only absentee among the pitchers, as the others are all reported signed or satisfied.

PLAYERS DIVIDED

Some of the players appear to think that Larry is signed, and as good as delivered, while others are skeptical.

Manager Ens put his ball-gamers through an enjoyable round of calesthenics yesterday afternoon when the flyer made a 10-minute stop at North Platte, Neb. The pilot expects to get in some more exercise before today is over.

The health of the players is excellent. Aside from a cold or two, the Buccos are in fine fettle to begin the long training season.

Manager Ens had no further reports on Paul Waner, who is suffering from a leg infection in a St. Louis hospital. Ens is somewhat disturbed over the new development on Brother Paul, but he is hoping for the best, and will not cross any bridges before they appear.

KISKI SWIM TEAM COPS

Kiski Prep swimmers defeated Downtown Y. M. C. A., 30-29, in a close aquatic meet here last night. It was the locals' first defeat. Jimmy Marks starred with a victory, second place and fine work on his relay team. The summary:

45-yard free style—Won by Romoser, Kiski; Burke, Downtown Y., second; Smith, Kiski, third.

Out to keep its record unsullied and to strengthen its hold on first place, the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery polo trio of the Pittsburgh Polo League clashes tonight with the Shady Side Academy riders in a regular league match.

The Academy trio is tied with the Three Hundred and Eighth Cavalry for second place, each team having won and lost one game. Last week, the Cavalrymen handed the Academy riders a decisive defeat.

Tomorrow, the Artillery will meet the Mill Creek team, of Youngstown, O., in an indoor arena in the Ohio city. The Youngstown trio defeated the Artillery two weeks ago by a score of 23½ to 16.

Local Swimmers In Meet at Erie

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 21.—University of Pittsburgh, Duquesne Library, Hill Top and Uniontown Y natators will represent the Pittsburgh district in several A. M. A. swim championships to be decided at a meet to be staged in the Erie Y. M. C. A. pool here this afternoon.

The A. M. A. championship events to be decided are 220-yard senior breast stroke for men, 300-yard medley championship for men and 150-yard back stroke for juniors.

ROSENBLOOM WINS

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, New York, lightweight champion, last night decisively defeated Tony Cancella, Detroit, in a 10-round overweight bout here, newspapermen decided.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE RIVER TARIM HAS NO MOUTH—The Tarim, mighty river of Eastern Turkestan, attains a width of 500 feet. Before it spends itself in numerous marginal or lateral lakes, a large part of its waters is absorbed in artificial canals or systems of irrigation. It finally dwindles away in hollows formed by sand dunes. Without the Tarim, the land through which it flows would be uninhabitable. THE FAMOUS PORTLAND VASE—The Portland Vase, owned by the Duke of Portland, is easily the most famous glass vessel in the world, and is one of the priceless treasures of the British Museum. It is said to have been the receptacle for the ashes of Emperor Alexander Severus, who ruled the Roman world in the third century. The vase was placed on sale at Chrystie's in London in 1929, but was withdrawn after a bid of $152,000 was rejected by the owner. It is estimated to be worth about $250,000. "UNCLE GREEN" SLEEPS SITTING UP—The old Southern Negro, of Indian Springs, Ga., who answers to the name of "Uncle Green," now is 92 years of age, having seen service in the Civil War. Because of asthma, contracted when he was a young man, he cannot sleep in any other than a sitting-up position. He has the peculiar habit of keeping his money securely hidden in his tangled hair, which has never been cut and now is more than three feet long. DOC GARFIELD, THE MAN WITHOUT A SKULL—While working under a high-tension feed line of a railroad in New Haven, Conn., October 7, 1919, Garfield came in contact with a 11,000-volt wire, and his skull was so badly burned that a great part of it was removed, leaving only a skin over the membrane. Because of the apparent impossibility of this operation being a success, he has been called to clinics all over the country to exhibit the unbelievable skill of medical and surgical science.

TOMORROW: THE GREATEST VANTAGE POINT.

ST. JOHN'S FIVE TOPS TECH

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—St. John's College rallied in the second half to defeat Carnegie Tech, 24 to 18, for its seventeenth victory in 18 starts this season at Brooklyn last night.

After getting off to a 4-to-0 lead, St. John's relinquished the pace to the visitors, who went ahead at 5 to 4 on field baskets by Smith and Stentz and a foul by Nease.

Carnegie Tech pulled up on even terms at 10-all on a field goal by Fergus with three minutes of the first half remaining. Siegel tossed in a field goal for Carnegie Tech to make it 12 to 10, and just before the close of the period a foul by Posnak cut the Carnegie Tech advantage to one point, making the count 12 to 11. The lineup:

St. John's—24.		Carnegie—18.
Kinsbruner	F	Nease
Posnak	F	Smith
Begovich	C	Stentz
Schuckman	G	Fergus
Gerson	G	Leonard

Substitutes—Neary, Webster, Maguire. Siegal, Armentrout. Field goals—Nease, Smith, Stentz, Fergus 2, Siegel, Kinsbruner, Posnak 3, Begovich 2, Schuckman, Gerson. Foul goals—Carnegie 6, St. John's 8. Referee—Kinney. Umpire—Meehan.

GROVES TOP JACKETS

WAYNESBURG, Feb. 21. — Its attack effectively checked during the first half, Grove City made a strong finish to defeat Waynesburg, 30 to 22 last night. At half-time the teams were deadlocked at 11 all.

W. P. I. A. L. CONFAB TODAY

The annual meeting of the W. P. I. A. L. for the purpose of arranging for the sectional elimination championship tournament got under way in the Fort Pitt Hotel this morning, with representatives from the leaders in all sections of the league present.

The draw for the first round of the tournament, which was only tentative in purpose, was made Wednesday night at a meeting of the eligibility committee of the league. The draw will be checked over today, and plans made for any play-offs that may be necessary in sections where ties for the lead have resulted.

Things popped in City League senior basketball circles again yesterday. Today, Westinghouse High once more is in first place, though tied, in Section I, and Allegheny has regained the topmost post in Section II. Westinghouse is a member of a three-cornered deadlock with Schenley and South, while Allegheny gained a slight lead when Perry stymied folks by tripping South Hills, 42-32.

Westinghouse grapped a neat 29-14 win over Peabody. Schenley downed Connelley Trade, 26-19, while Allderdice, in the cellar position, brought down the stock of the defending champion, Fifth Avenue High, 22-10.

OLIVER BEATEN

In Section II aside from Perry's victory, Allegheny trimmed Oliver, 34-23, and Carrick whipped Allegheny Vocational, 30-21.

City Junior League games resulted in victories for Fifth Avenue, Knoxville, Allderdice, Latzmer, Connelley, Arsenal and South.

The fight home waged for W. P. I. A. L. honors grew closer as virtually every team saw action. Monessen knocked off South Brownsville, 18-12; Scott, of North Braddock, beat Turtle Creek, 30-29; Bellevue bumped Avalon, 23-21; Duquesne defeated Homestead, 30-26; Greensburg won from Jeannette, 20-6, and Charleroi trimmed Monongahela, 20-15.

Clairton nosed out McKeesport, 24-23; Braddock whipped Rankin, 28-18; McKees Rocks lost to Stowe, 32-27; Ben Avon toppled Leetsdale, 23-12; Mt. Lebanon smothered Crafton, 20-9; New Castle tripped Butler, 21-16; Beaver nosed out Midland, 24-22 and Edgewood lost to Swissvale, 21-15.

UNIONTOWN LOSES

Scottdale beat Connellsville, 25-16; Uniontown, champ in Section X last year, bowed to Mt. Pleasant, 34-26; Marshall defeated Elizabeth, 22-11; Trafford nosed out East Pittsburgh, 17-16; New Kensington set down Tarentum, 25-10; Arnold copped from Freeport, 27-13; Freedom bumped Rochester, 23-20, and Aliquippa toppled Beaver Falls, 28-15.

East Washington set down Claysville, 25-14; Burgettstown beat Hickory, 37-23; Ellsworth won from Bentleyville, 25-20; Canonsburg bested Trinity, 39-15.

CECIL, DUNLEVY PLAY TODAY

By TOM BIRKS

All soccer roads will lead to the Bridgeville Speedway this afternoon when the Cecil and Dunlevy teams of the Keystone League tangle to decide which will meet Bridgeville in the final of the West Penn cup.

The game has been called for 3 o'clock with Referee Lumsden in charge. Dunlevy and Cecil have made many appearances in the final, and both are cup winners. This appears to be one of the best semi-finals in the history of the cup.

The grounds, however are sure to be very heavy following the rainy spell, and this is expected to slow down the game. Tomorrow, Morgan travels to Cleveland to meet the Slavia club in the second round of the National challenge cup.

Weibel's Funeral Is Held in Erie

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 21.—Former teammates, friends and personages important in the athletic world attended the funeral here this morning of Dr. John D. Weibel, former Notre Dame football star and later assistant coach at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and Duquesne University, Pittsburgh. Weibel died in Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, Tuesday following an operation for the removal of his appendix.

Weibel was line coach at Duquesne in 1927, coming to the Pittsburgh school with Elmer Layden, one of the famous Four Horsemen. Weibel was the left guard on the famous Irish eleven of 1925, when the Four Horsemen rode to their fame.

A number of former Notre Dame stars, including Layden, now athletic director at Duquesne, and Joe Bach, assistant coach, attended the services, which were held at St. Peter's Cathedral.

Between Rounds

The finishing official bulletin was given out for publication by the boxing commission last night, but the secret meeting from which newspapermen were mysteriously barred, on the squabble between Jackie Rodgers and Johnny Deutsch, his manager.

"At a conference in the local office of the State Athletic Commission Friday afternoon, February 13, attorneys for John Deutsch, manager, and Jackie Rodgers, boxer, effected a compromise which paves the way for Rodgers to become free in a managerial sense. Louis Little represented Rodgers, Leonard Mazer represented Deutsch. The meeting was held to hear both sides of the controversy which arose between the manager and the boxer, and if possible, to effect a compromise.—HAYLY J. ROYLE."

Later it was learned that Rodgers had agreed to pay Deutsch a total of $1,000 for his release, $500 downpayment and $100 out of each of two fights Deutsch had arranged for him at Motor Square Garden.

Ike McLemier and Gene Baker, heavyweight rivals, box the main bout of a show at Johnstown next Monday night.

Umberto Arce, Porto Rican Negro heavyweight, will take the place of Ernie Terrestone, of Detroit, against George Panka, of Homestead, in the 10-round main bout in the Moose Temple next Friday night. Terrestone cancelled because of an attack of influenza. Arce has beaten Jack Pirrone and Frankie Wine, among others.

Frank Klaus, of Braddock, former middleweight champion of the world, has under consideration an invitation to attend the Carnera-Maloney fight at Miami, March 5, as the guest of Bill Duffy, owner of the New York Americans Hockey club, who is making up a party to leave from New York for the battle.

COUNTY LEAGUE SEASON ENDS TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The Allegheny County League schedule will be concluded tonight when the Charleroi Merchants entertain the Fintex first half champions in a battle at Charleroi High School. This contest originally was scheduled for Columbus Temple, but was moved to the Magic City by mutual consent. This contest will not be the only one involving a County League champion, the Duquesne Lafayettes, second half winners, playing Pitcairn P. R. R. in an independent game at Pitcairn.

Two old basketball rivals clash in the only game listed in the West Penn League, the Schneiders, first half champions opposing Frank Stansbury's Community House passers on the Community House floor.

Two more attractive games have been added to the schedule of the Goldenson Vanities, who boast a string of 37 straight victories. Next Wednesday they play the Youngwood, Pa., Pals in the preliminary to the St. Johns-St. Joseph's game. Wednesday, March 18, the Goldensons appear in a benefit game for the Carrick Police Relief Fund at Carrick High School.

RANDALL LACES YAROSZ, WHO GETS NOD

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor.

Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, turned in his thirty-eighth consecutive victory as a professional boxer in the 10-round main bout in the Moose Temple before a packed house last night.

But what a "victory"! His opponent, Tiger Joe Randall, local Negro welterweight, outgeneraled and outpunched him in every round but the first and eighth and handed him a bad body beating over the route to gain revenge for a defeat suffered at Teddy's hands at Hickey Park, Millvale, last summer, when a bad heel handicapped the Tiger.

At the finish the judges disagreed, and Referee Red Robinson's vote gave Yarosz a triumph that was a joke. The crowd futilely muttered its disgust as it left the premises. Judge L. K. Meininger also voted for Yarosz, while Judge Frank Brown rightly called it for Randall.

DECISION IS SOUR

The showing was the worst Yarosz has made in any local appearance, and so poorly did he fare that at the finish his manager gave out the information that Teddy had been ill for several days and really wasn't fit to do himself justice. Which should take away none of the credit from Randall's unexpectedly good fight after his long layoff following a second operation on his trick heel.

The sour decision in the main bout followed a one-round knockout victory for Mose Butch, of Oakland, 122¾, over Freddie Hill, of Detroit, 124, in the semi-final. Hill was a setup for the local southpaw and never had a chance. A right to the jaw dropped him soon after the fight got under way and he then went down for the count from a left to the body. The "fight" was over in 1 minute, 35 seconds.

FINE IS WINNER

Harry Fine, of the Hill, 140, was too rugged and aggressive for Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, 134½, and chased and punched the latter all around the ring in the second bout, which he won handily, but the crowd did not take kindly to his rough tactics and booed the referee's decision in his favor after the judges had split, with Meininger voting for Fine and Brown for Hebner.

Joey Spiegel, of Uniontown, 144½, southpawed his way to an easy victory over Al Munro, Negro, of the Hill, 142½, in the six-round opener.

MANAGER ENS GETS REPORT ON WANER'S CONDITION

When the Pirates stopped off in Chicago en route to their Paso Robles (Cal.) training camp, Manager Jewel Ens received a telegram from St. Louis bearing latest news on the condition of Paul Waner, his outfielder, operated on there for a leg infection. Note the effect of the message on the local skipper.

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN, The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The first stumbling block that Tex Rickard met at Toledo when he set about making his plans for the Willard and Dempsey battle was the scarcity of lumber for his arena. War demands had left the supply of war material quite scanty. Cantonment buildings and one thing or another had crippled the supply, around Toledo at least, and Tex had to scrape here, gather there, making all sorts of offers for lumber. He brought Jim McLoughlin, his Reno arena builder, on from San Francisco to erect his plant.

Tex Rickard.

Tex kept harping on the difficulties concerning the purchase of lumber, but only for publicity sake. He would have gone to Timbucktoo, if it came to that. Once he started, he always saw a thing through, as the move from San Francisco to Reno had proved. He certainly could take reverses on the chin.

Tex arranged to have Willard and Dempsey train within a short distance from each other. Usually the champion and the challenger are far removed when it comes to the selection of camps.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ANGLE

Tex insisted that Willard arrange his training so as to be finished three-quarters of an hour before it was time for Dempsey to start his grind. This gave news men the opportunity to take in both camps in a single afternoon, which added greatly to the press output. It afforded the chance to make daily comparisons of the men and Tex was highly pleased with his own idea, as it began to work out just as he had planned. And then he did something which went to prove that he was foxy and knew his business.

He refused to allow newspaper photographers to take views of Dempsey from above. He wouldn't tolerate any elevated camera stands. These pictures always make the boxer look small, no matter how large he may be, and Tex was smart enough to know about that photographic angle. He thought that he was "building" Dempsey. He didn't realize what a jewel he had.

"Let 'em take all the pictures they like from the ringside," he said. "Ike, you have those feller shoot 'P' at Dempsey, not DOWN. Jack will look like a giant if they shoot from the ground up into the ring. And if there are too many photographers around, keep that big Bill Tate doing something else. Don't let him box with Jack when those picture fellers are around. He's too big and he'll show Dempsey up.

"But you go over to Willard's camp and see that they build all the high stands you can get around the ring. Let 'em shoot down at big Jess. Make him look small all the time. Don't ever let one of those fellers take a picture of Jess from the ground."

LESSON IN BALLYHOO

That was Tex. He thought of every angle that would help boost a show. I'll bet there never was a promoter who even thought of that picture angle, although I must say that Jim Coffroth was the first man who made a specialty of boosting the underdog. He paid Hype Igoe $100 for drawing a design for a fence poster for his Jeffries and Monroe fight and when Hype walked in with the completed sketch it showed Monroe on the floor with the shaggy Jeff standing over him in warlike attitude.

"Don't ever have the challenger on the floor, Hype. Always draw the champion down with the challenger lording above him. A fence poster like that fires the imagination of the fight fan and draws him in on fight night. If he thought Jeffries was going to crush Monroe, he wouldn't come to my fight. Draw it over again and I'll give you another $100."

It was a real lesson in ballyhoo, Tex Rickard, wherever he got his knowledge, was a wizard at putting over the same thought. He wound up making himself believe that Dempsey could whip Willard when he had started off feeling sorry for Jack and fearing that the authorities would not permit the bout to go on.

TEX BOOMS BUSINESS

Business flourished. Ticket orders were coming in by the bale.

It was right about this time that Rickard instituted one of the cleverest stunts ever connected with big league boxing.

He put choice tickets for the bout into the ticket offices of every large railroad in the country. Tremendous publicity!

The idea was a pippin and sales bounded along at a great rate for a time. Then came the shock of Rickard's career. It had started with word from the railroad ticket offices that they were not guaranteeing purchasers of tickets transportation.

What was the meaning of this? Tex soon found out and got his jolt. The railroads sent him word that he nor anybody else could not charter any special trains into Toledo. Government order. The rolling stock was being used for the transportation of troops and supplies and such luxuries as Pullman accommodations to a mere ring fight was not to be considered at all.

This caused a dreadful panic all along the line of Rickard forces. The commander-in-chief didn't bat an eye. He'd take his chances on the automobile trade. He could see visions of long lines of buckboards, surreys, carryalls, covered wagons, lizzies, Rolls Royces and airplanes, if it came to that, marking a long trail to Toledo. Bother the special trains! But when the railroads refused to meet the demand for specials they almost wrecked the big show. Tickets purchased out of town, especially those bought at any great distance from Ohio, were stuffed back through the ticket windows and money back demanded. Tex could have refused to kick back, but I never knew him to refuse to refund a man his money if for any reason the fellow didn't want to take in one of Tex's fights. But don't imagine for a moment that Tex broadcast this railroad difficulty. Not a bit of it.

GAMES TONIGHT.

Pittsburgh at Buffalo.
Windsor at Cleveland.

BUFFALO, Feb. 21.—The Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, who have achieved five victories and two ties in their last seven International Hockey League engagements, will attempt to strengthen their hold on a title play-off berth when they meet Buffalo's league leaders at the latters' Fort Erie (Ont.) arena tonight.

In the event that the Steel City skaters win tonight they will be in possession of a league record for the season. The best winning streak to date is a seven-game spurt by London, and no team as yet has traveled more than seven games without accepting a setback.

Despite the fact that the pace-setting Bisons have gained five wins and a tie in six previous meetings with the Jackets, they have been conceded no more than an even chance of adding to their list of triumphs over the visitors. The locals were hard pressed to gain a tie the last time the Schooley skaters appeared here, and during the last five weeks Pittsburgh has been traveling at a faster pace than any other club in the circuit—Buffalo's leaders not excepted.

In fifth place a week ago, the Jackets have advanced so rapidly that second place may be at stake when they meet the Windsor Bulldogs in Pittsburgh next Thursday. Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the Pittsburgh club, who is to direct his team here tonight and in Syracuse tomorrow, today said that he expected his stalwarts to put the finishing touch to the business of clinching a playoff berth when they renew their warfare with the London Tecumsehs in Pittsburgh a week from tonight.

Interest in tonight's game is very high, and a capacity crowd is expected to witness a battle that gives every promise of being close and hard fought. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh		Buffalo
Cox	G	Tauzher
Fraser	D	Lederman
Reise	D	Cain
Rodden	C	Voss
McCrory	W	Marlin

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

When old-timers reminisce about the mystery stories of earlier Pittsburgh, the Lantz farm robberies, which had the elements of the pulp-paper thriller, are always recalled. The Lantz brothers, Abe and Ike, and their sister Sally, raised cattle on a farm near Middletown, 25 years ago in a country so isolated that the dogs, rather than bark at strangers, were silent in welcome to them.

Mr. Pfarr

The log house of the Lantz's was furnished with articles brought over the mountains by wagon train early in the last century. Their cattle business was prosperous and much of the money they hid in tin cans, in the vegetable garden, anywhere.

The secret of the cache soon spread and the Lantz's were the victims of a series of brutal robberies. No sooner had a herd of cattle been sold and sent to market than two young thugs would drve up to the isolated farmhouse in a buggy, overpower the brothers and sisters and shove their bared feet against the log fire to force them to tell where the money from the latest sale of cattle was hidden.

Finally, they hired a guard but the robbers, with daring simplicity, surmounted this barrier by always taking the guard by surprise.

Only once did a robbery fail—and that was the time a robber came alone. The guard shot him dead as he stood in the doorway of the cabin.

* * *

The coroner, detectives and reporters came then to the lonely farm. Ernie Roeser was one of the reporters. He hurried to the scene, in the thick of winter, in a cutter behind two fast-stepping livery nags. Later he regretted that the harness lacked sleighbells.

The coroner's jury met on the farm and reached a verdict. Then the coroner's deputy sought means of transporting the body of the robber from the farm. Roeser's sleigh was the only one with room, so they strapped the corpus delicti into the seat alongside Roeser and bade him be off.

"I tried to appear unconcerned," Ernie says, "but I was quivering inwardly. Night was coming fast, snow was falling, and as I sped the horses across a raised culvert the sleigh tilted and I realized that the sleigh seat was hardly wide enough for both of us. Cutter sleighs in those days weren't very roomy.

"I summoned courage to look at my companion. If there had been bells on the harness it might have been better. But there weren't, and every circumstance made the ride more grisly and ghostly—the snow-padded roads, the horses' hoof beats, the shadows of naked trees across the roads, the blinding snow.

"The poor nags I laced unmercifully. I couldn't take my mind off those eyes that wanted to stare at me. I looked again and noted how the buckshot of the guard's gun had scattered. I wondered how buckshot could scatter so at close range.

* * *

"And then I saw the false mustache which the robber had worn. Later I hunted for days, with Skinny Patterson, to find the glue pot in which the glue for the mustache had been melted.

"But that's past the ride. The final oddity I noticed struck me about 30 seconds after I pulled into town. I discovered that Overholt whisky did not have the same jolt it used to have, or that the barkeeps in the country were watering it, just like city folks. It must have been so, for there wasn't a kick in six slugs, taken quickly in succession."

600 Attend Feast Of Christian Union

More than 600 persons attended the eleventh inter-Presbyterial banquet of the Young People's Christian Union of the United Presbyterian Church in McCreery's last night. The principal speaker was Judge William H. McNaugher. Others were the Rev. H. W. Eddy, of Cleveland, and Mack Shaw, of Chicago, national officers. The Rev. E. V. Condron, of Springdale, was toastmaster, and James Fulton, editor of the Monongahela Forum, was chairman.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.) Pennsylvania State College asked the Radio Commission for a new construction permit authorizing an experimental radio service on a wave length of 3,256 kilocycles, with 7½ watts power.

Hollywood Studio Signs Sport Celebrities For Short Films

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 21.

Hollywood studios are engaging in a stampede to sign up sport celebrities for short subjects.

The success of Pathe's Knute Rockne films and of the Grantland Rice Sportlights has played an important part in starting the new craze.

Bobby Jones' contract with Warner Brothers already has drawn headlines throughout the world.

Now the film moguls are trying to persuade Helen Wills to turn professional for a lucrative Hollywood contract. Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer and at least two other studios have made offers to California's girl tennis wizard, but she is not expected to forfeit her amateur standing.

Helen Wills

M. G. M. already has signed up Fred Cady, Los Angeles Athletic Club swimming instructor; Duke Kahanamoka, famous Hawaiian swimmer, and Bill Tilden. The latter arrives here in two weeks to make a series of three shorts. They will tell a story, but also will be instructive.

Other studios are just as busy on the sport shorts. Universal will make Rockne's new series, also a group with Babe Ruth.

Leo Diegel and Coach Howard Jones, of the University of Southern California, already have made pictures for Tiffany.

Never before have short subjects received so much attention in the film colony.

NOT FOR THE BLURB

Harpo Marx looks like the new columnist's friend. His latest story is about an author who sent him a book just as it came off the press.

Several days later, Harpo wrote back: "Thanks for the book. It will always be a first edition."

LATEST GOSSIP

Most studios have stopped making foreign versions to wait for the results of an experiment. Two kinds of films have been sent to the foreign market: One with American stars and dialogue duped in, and another with a complete cast of foreign players. The European public will be allowed to demonstrate its preference . . The real romance of John Wayne, young Fox leading man, is said to be with Josephine Saenz . . . After three years at M. G. M., Eddie Nugent will free lance. . . . Father Neal Dodd, motion picture chaplain, is recupering from an illness at Palm Springs. . . . Jack Oakie, now making his first western, reports that the cowboys cheer every time he stays on the horse. . . . Director Frank Bacon is writing an article for a national weekly magazine on the subject: "If Edwin Booth were to come back to life and settle in Hollywood, how would he fare in competition with modern screen stars?" Bacon's answer is that he would be just another actor.

WALL STREET WIZARD REACHING FOR MOON IS THE OLD 'DOUG'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Despite the ballyhoo this new Fairbanks film at the Penn is a very fine example of picture-making. The old "Doug" is really there—but not the old "Doug" of the silent pictures. It is rather the man who was William Brady's pick years ago as the coming young comedian of the American stage. That was when the silent pictures were just beginning to sprout.

George Seibel

"Reaching for the Moon" has the faults of the pictures built for our popular screen stars. The hero is an impossible person doing impossible things. But that is just what Douglas Fairbanks always was and always will be. So by reversing the lines, and having this Wall Street hero play Douglas Fairbanks, it all seems plausible enough.

IN LOVE WITH BEBE

As the young Napoleon of finance, Doug falls in love at first sight with Bebe Daniels. She has crashed his office, where he is barricaded behind an entanglement of telephones, and he takes down all the receivers. And when he gets word that she is sailing on the "Amerique" in just 10 minutes, he catches the boat.

There are wild things on that boat. The wildest came off after Doug has invited Bebe to a cocktail party in his cabin. Every one who drinks of that cocktail becomes a raging lion—and Doug does everything but walk on the ceiling.

AND A GOOD STAGE SHOW

Robert Conche directs the symphony orchestra with his juvenile abandon, and Dick Leibert plays a dozen popular songs for the vocally inclined as prelude to a good stage show.

Bert Gordon provides most of the fun, assisted by Vera Kingston. The melody is supplied by Eileen Dougall, and the Dale Sisters preside very graciously as mistresses of ceremonies.

Some novel dances by the Chester Hale Girls lead up to a finale rich in color and lighting, an effective climax for a lively and clever revue.

FULTON AND SHERIDAN OFFER LAUGH FILM, 'FINN AND HATTIE'

By JAMES A. BAUBIE

"Finn and Hattie" — what a breakfast dish! And what an entertainment dish! This wise-cracking talkie, which opened yesterday in the Fulton and Sheridan Square, is vivacious and wholesome.

It would be, because little Mitzi Green is prominent. There isn't a thing she says, and she says a good many things, that doesn't bring a laugh. Then, too, there are Leon Errol, Zasu Pitts, Jackie Searl and Pittsburgh's own Regis Toomey, who used to make them laugh at Pitt's Cap and Gown shows.

Mr. Errol protrays F. P. Haddock, a prosperous business man of a small town in the Middle West; Miss Pitts is Mrs. Haddock, and Mitzi is their daughter—one "happy" family.

They go on a trip to Europe and the fun starts at the railroad station where the town's folk are giving Mr. Haddock a send-off. He attempts to make a speech, but his daughter turns his speech into a one-act comedy. You have heard Andy try to talk over the telephone, with Amos telling him what to say. Well, Mr. Haddock's speech sounds like one of those conversations.

On the train, Haddock boasts of his wrestling prowess to the brakeman. Then the brakeman proceeds to throw him all over the car. Undaunted, Haddock tells a hotel porter he will teach him to become a wrestler. Again he is thrown for a loss. And it goes everlastingly on, with Mr. Haddock inevitably being the loser.

Hot Water Upset, Child Dies of Scalds

Raymond Gardiniti, 2, of 507 Seventh avenue, Carnegie, died last night in his home several hours after he had upset a bucket of hot water on himself, according to a morgue report.

MARION DAVIES STARS IN NEW COMEDY IN ALDINE

Marion Davies, the screen comedienne of charm, is appearing in the Aldine in her newest starring production, "The Bachelor Father." This is an entertaining film adaptation and elaboration of the stage play of the same name, which David Belasco produced on Broadway.

The film tones down the original version a bit and also adds some embellishments. A transatlantic flight is brought in to add thrills and excitement at the climax.

FROM THE BOWERY

The story has to do with a wealthy and elderly Englishman who gathers his children of earlier allegiances about him in his big English home. One of these is Tony, a harem-scarem girl from the New York Bowery. And what a great time the old gentleman has in trying to make a lady of her! However, he grows to love her. Then he discovers she isn't his daughter, after all. However, it is happiness at the finale.

Miss Davies, as Tony, has plenty opportunities to display her talents for light comedy. She also carries on well in several dramtic and emotional scenes. She is responsible for much laughter and amusement.

THE CAST INCLUDES

C. Aubrey Smith has the title role, the part which he created on the stage. Others in the cast include Guinn Williams, Nena Quartaro, Doris Lloyd, David Torrence and Ralph Forbes. It is Mr Forbes who has the romantic lead opposite Miss Davies.

BOYHOOD IN AMERICA IS GLORIFIED IN STANLEY FILM

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Something happily different in screen drama is "Father's Son," new feature in the Stanley. It is the comedy of a boy sliding down the hall bannister and the tragedy of a boy disappointed when a surprise gift turns out to be an umbrella instead of a rifle. It is, in substance, American boyhood visioned through sane and human eyes.

Based on a Booth Tarkington story, it is a picture that never loses the Tarkington touch. Thus, much of it is amusing and all of it is near to the heart of American family life. Its story of a boy's everyday adventures is told with simplicity. Its story of a man who eventually attains a boy's viewpoint is told without the assistance of made-to-order movie sentiment and melodramatics.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

The burden of the drama—or rather, comedy drama—rests with a capable acting trio: Leon Janney, Lewis Stone and Irene Rich. Young Janney portrays a boy, alive with youth. He climbs trees, catches flies in church, goes to the circus and rides on junk wagons. Mr. Stone plays a father who can't understand why a boy does all these things. And Miss Rich is seen as a mother who can understand.

There are others in the cast, of course, including a fat boy, who finds castor oil is the reward for illness, and a Negro lad, who goes under the name of Vestibule. John Halliday is present also as the doctor-pal of the young hero.

Briefly, "Father's Son" is a friendly picture. It has been accorded sympathetic direction. It is alive with the carefree laughter and the puzzled wistfulness of boyhood.

WELCOME, MR. POWELL!

Dick Powell is back as master of ceremonies on the stage. He came back yesterday with a new white suit and a new "cold." Otherwise, he is the same old fellow, with the happy smile and the likeable personality. He received a pleasant welcome.

The new revue is titled "Town Topics" and its special star is Ruth Etting, of Ziegfeld-show fame. She highlights her song program with "Ten Cents a Dance," the selection she used to sing in the current Ed Wynn musical comedy, "Simple Simon." And she gets enough applause to stop the show. A number of other entertainers are on the bill.

NEW MUSIC SHOW, COMEDIES MONDAY

There is considerable that is unique in the stage career of Madge Kennedy, star of "Michael and Mary," the A. A. Milne comedy that comes to the Alvin next week. For one thing, for the number of years she has been on the stage, Miss Kennedy has appeared in more long-run successes, and thus fewer actual productions, than any other actress of renown.

The Davis has a new bill of vaudeville and pictures, beginning today. Appearing on the stage are Florie Lavere & Co., Gracella & Theodore, Con Colleano and Ray & Harrison. The screen feature is "Right of Way."

The Harris today begins a new policy of motion pictures exclusively, bill to change twice weekly. The feature at present is "The Costello Case," to be followed by Walter Huston in "The Criminal Code" as the next attraction.

George Sharp is negotiating for several dramatic stars to come to Pittsburgh as guest artists with his company at the Pitt. If his plans materialize, there will be a series of guest-stars running well into the late spring.

"Manhattan Nights," featuring Billy Hagen, Mildred Crozier and Olga Petrone, opens in the Academy tomorrow night with a midnight show. Beginning Monday Anniversary Week will be observed in the theater.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY DAILY MIRROR, INC.)

The Broadway Zoo

The Broadway Menagerie, ladies and gentlemen, the greatest of all the zoos. Be careful, please, and don't get too near the cages. Now in this one, folks, we have Rudy Vallee, a rare species, who snaps at you if you ask him what he considers silly queries. A girl reporter, frinstance, interviewed him the other day, and in response to one question he said: "I'm surprised at you, really. Those questions are all answered in my book! You should have read it before interviewing me." To which the frightened young lady replied that she never even knew he had written a book. Then she proceeded back to the editorial rooms to even matters via her typewriter. This Vallee cage reminds me that when he was in Miami recently he aroused the audiences to a frenzy by playing and singing "On Miami Shore." It is a stirring melody and the Myamuh natives loved him all the more for playing what they still believe is their local national anthem. When as a matter of fact "On Miami Shore" is a collitch song written for a river in Ohio!

In this cage we have various species. Here, frinstance, is Charlie Journal of the Montmartre. Charlie has eaten a Welsh rarebit at 2:30 a. m. every morning for the past 15 years and never had the tummeeake. And here is the dope who tried to figure out when a woman is old—never knowing that you could tell by looking at her neck. If it slopes she is getting on.

In cage No. 3 we have The Forman Sisters, Hilda, Louise and Maxine, who just clicked in a new Broadway show. They warble harmoniously and impressed the initial audiences until one of the Sunday papers gave them a story. They are quoted as chirping that they dislike New York. Well, that's their opinion, and you can't get sore at anyone for being blunt. But they are supposed to have added that they would rather gather up eggs and drive the cows back home in Meadville (their home town) than be a success on Broadway. "Life at home," they would have you believe "is real fun." Maybe it is, but now you know why we have them in this here cage.

Over here in cage No. 4 is Cal York who reports that the story is pretty well authenticated in Los Angeles that the engagement between Clara Bow and Harry Richman was a clever press stunt on the part of Richman's producers. York says he is inclined to believe it, and that he gives them credit for a smart idea. Well, take it from one who just spent the weekend at Richman's Beechurst mansion, the engagement was plenty on the up 'n' up. If it wasn't then Clara wasted a lotta time inscribing over 165 handsome photos of herself and Harry, all of which packed pashy sentiments such as: "To the only real man in the world"—"To my great lover—from Toots"—"To my man—Your baby, Clara"—"To the only man I ever really loved," etc.

In the cage we have a chap who calls himself Throckmorton, probably a gag tag. He is described as a cub reporter on an evening paper. He kept me in stitches (until we caged him) with his fantastic story the other day about A. Capone being in New York to arrange a truce among gangs. He also named other gang lords as being there, when most of us know the chieftains he named, are and have been in Havana and other southern points. For a moment I thought his story about Capone was aimed to belittle the contemporaries who had the Capone articles sewed up, but after reading his piece, realized he wasn't clowning. At any rate, we put him on oatmeal without cream to punish him. Chiefly because Capone hasn't left his Palm Beach estate for four weeks proving his story a hammyteurish fake.

Ah, here is a cage you will adore. This is Helen Morgan's piano-player—and what a great pleasure it was to bag him! He is here because he is the type of guy who plays the piano—for a soft-voiced singer as La Morgan—and never takes his big foot off the loud pedal. It wasn't a cinch to catch him, either, believe you me, but here he is—and if they ever free him, I'll give up dramatic criticism, as Bob Garland always says.

This empty cage is begging for a tenant, and I trust it won't be empty long. I have a candidate for it, however. His name is Marc Lachman and he is the explorer for "The New Yorkers" show and for Mr. Dillingham, Wesley Ruggles and other people who matter. He is a good press agent, all right, all right, but he sure can make you mad at times. Particularly when he soluches in a cozy chair and let the phonograph run-down while it is playing a record. It is most irksome, really. There you are trying to open a bottle of Scotch or mineral water in the hotel bathroom, and Lachman will simply sit and sit and sit instead of changing the record or the needle, or winding the damb thing up. His shoe laces always dangle, too.

In this cage is an Albany radio paragrapher, who, apparently fed up with being obscure, tried to get some afternoon off by making foolish cracks, such as "Winchell doesn't dare print that in his column. It may have been all right to broadcast it on the air, but we defy him to show us that he printed it!" At first the dope was dismissed with a shrug of the good shoulder, on the ground that it is always unfair to hit a chap who isn't your size. But Miss Cambridge, the best secretary a columnist ever had, happened to run across another of his blurbs in which he boasted that Winchell is "afraid" and without even telling her boss that she answered the challenge, she looked up the paragraph in question (in the files), tore out the column, ringed the article, and then sent it to him hoping he was properly crushed. There he is now folks, biting his nails trying to think up an answer.

And this maniac is the Broadway Fellow who lost his mind trying to believe in people.' His last rational words were grand. He described two false friends in this manner:

"They were so crooked that if one stood at the top of a circular stairway, and the other at the bottom, they could look each straight in the eye!"

Heinroth to Lecture On 'Music and Jazz'

Tonight, instead of the usual recital program, in the Carnegie Music Hall, Dr. Charles Heinroth will deliver the first of a series of six lectures, the subject being "Music and Jazz." The lecture will be illustrated by two phonograph records reproducing "A Rhapsody in Blue," by Gershwin, and "The St. Louis Blues," by W. C. Handy. The subjects for the remaining lectures of the Lenten series are: February 28, "Why Wagner Persists;" March 7, "The Architecture of Music;" March 14, "Monssorgsky—the remarkable Russian Musical Primitive;" March 21, "Schubert as a Symphonic Composer," and March 28, "The Cultural Value of Music."

REFUSE OFFICE NEW FITTINGS

The County Commissioners yesterday denied the official court stenographers authority to buy new furniture for the stenographers' offices in the court house.

When the request, indorsed by President Judge James R. Macfarlane, was presented at yesterday's County Commissioners' meeting, C. C. McGovern said:

"Those court stenographers get huge salaries and sell transcripts of testimony for high prices. Let them use the old furniture."

ENRIGHT FEATURES 'THE RIGHT OF WAY,' BRIAN M'DONALD

Brian McDonald, Pittsburgh boy, who has entertained on the radio and in musical comedy, made his debut as master of ceremonies in the Enright yesterday. The new screen feature is "The Right of Way."

Conrad Nagel and Loretta Young are co-featured in the film. And the story is that of a prominent Canadian attorney, who loses his memory and fades from civilization. Eventually he returns to his home only to find his wife has married a former sweetheart. Which situation leads to the climax.

The stage show is titled "Hello, Home Town." Besides McDonald, featured entertainers include Burns and Kissen, comedians, and Irene Vermillion and Company. The bill also offers an organlogue and short screen subjects.

'UNCLE TOM'S CABIN' AND 'SNOOP AND PEEP' FEATURED ON AIR TONIGHT

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL A. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Old Simon Legree and Eliza pull on their act for WJAS listeners at 10 o'clock tonight in a CBS production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Sound effects and they'll have to be good. Jo Hayes, C. Brown and Phil Mather.

Have we ever told you that Maher is another Pittsburgh trained artist making good on the network? Phil has many friends here. He was quite a figure at KDKA in early days.

Old Liberty Bell is to toll 13 times for KDKA at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon.

If you've never heard "Snoop and Peep"—the boys who solve crime with rhyme—tune WCAE at 7:30 for a good laugh.

In a special NBC release giving credit to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, the "demon detectives" have promised to solve the mystery of KDKA's missing grand piano. Listen for it soon.

We have never heard anything sweeter on the air than Jessica Dragonette's interpolation of the "Merry Widow Waltz" last night. Her sponsors are overlooking a big bet in not having her do more work of this nature.

THANX, LOIS!

Dear Mr. Martin:

I follow your column very closely every night. Soon as my father comes home I rush for the Sun-Telegraph and turn to the radio section. I'm glad you don't print your column in the same section as the movies because then I would have to wait until my brother and sister are finished reading them to get the radio news.

I like Stephen Leyshon's announcing and wish you would say a little more about him in "We Now Present." Daddy also likes his announcing. I believe too that National Broadcasting should use Milton Cross and Alwyn Bach more than they do.

Have you ever noticed that Lou Kaufmann announces his "ings" with a hard "g"? Please tell him.

We follow your column for accurate information. If it were not for your column radio would not be half so interesting.

L. O. B.

QUESTION A DAY:

What is the real name of the man who plays Ambrose J. Weems in the "Cuckoo" series?—V. W. McKinley Park.

Answer—Willard R. Knight, but better known about the studios as Raymond Knight. Ray will be in the city Thursday as guest speaker of an Engineers' dinner. He is funnier in the studio than over the air and always carries a toy whistle which he blows for the attention of cops when he wants to cross a street.

Alicia Fuller, WJAS at 8:30, thinks nothing of practicing three or four hours daily. "The Moon Sprite" on tonight's concert is her own composition.

Gene Baldrige, tenor, and the Park Quartet are to do Herbert's "Sweet Mystery of Life" on KDKA tomorrow at 1:30.

Those who depend on the Sun-Telegraph for their radio news had the exclusive pleasure of hearing Andy Sannella's Soups Orchestra in a fine program last night. This feature has cast a total eclipse on other morning offerings by the networks.

BRAVO, BOYS!

WCAE pulled a clever one the other day. Ralph Federer, flutist, was in the studios on the thirteenth floor of the Grabiel Building. Ford Miller was on the eighth floor before a microphone preparing to introduce Billy Jones and Ernie Hare for the noonday audience. Came time for Miller to sing a solo and he didn't have time to dash up to the thirteenth floor. A light flashed at the microphone and he knew then that it was time for him to sing. He "opened" the mike and started in with his solo. Federer, five floors above, was signaled by the announcer to start playing the accompaniment. The two sounds were synchronized in the control room on the South Side and came to you exactly as though both artists had been in the same studio.

This was a duplication of the idea we suggested to the network a long time ago. Our plan was to have someone sing in New York to the accompaniment of a piano played in Chicago. Signal lights, accurate timing and a few rehearsals would make this possible.

Ruth Etting was not disposed to talk to the radio audience yesterday, but she will be on KDKA next Monday night at 11:15.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Now that an afternoon contemporary has made the guess that Jessica Draponette is French-Italian and a Squirrel Hill columnist conjectures that she is Jewish of Italian descent it is our pleasure to inform you accurately that Jessica is French born in Calcutta, India, reared in a convent, and had a long, lone struggle to fame. This is not a guess—it comes from Jessica herself.

Official—County 112

Official—Pittsburgh 111

CITY OF PITTSBURGH
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

1. Separate and sealed proposals will be received at the office of the City Controller, City-County Building, Pittsburgh, Pa., in Eastern Standard Time, until 10:00 A. M. on Tuesday, March 3, 1931, for furnishing all labor and materials necessary for the construction of a concrete sewer with all necessary appurtenances, in Locust alley, from Locust street to Fern alley, in the Twenty-first Ward of the City of Pittsburgh.

2. All bids must be made upon the prepared form of proposal to be obtained at the office of the Contract Clerk, Room 426 City-County Building, and after February 21, 1931. Proposals containing any additions, erasures, omissions, alterations, additions not called for or additional bids of any kind may be rejected as informal, and no bidder will be allowed to withdraw his bid.

3. Bids must be accompanied by a bond in the amount of Fifty (50%) per cent of the estimated cost of the proposed contract, duly executed with a surety or trust company which has complied with city ordinances relating thereto; said bond shall be in the form of bond furnished by the City of Pittsburgh.

5. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works reserve the right to reject any or all proposals or to accept any proposal which they deem to be for the best interest of the City.

CHARLES H. KLINK, Mayor.
EDWARD G. HANEY, Director.
Department of Public Works.

CITY OF PITTSBURGH
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

SEPARATE SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the office of the City Controller, First Floor, City-County Building until 10:00 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, March 3, 1931, and will be publicly opened and read one hour later in the City Controller's Chamber, FOR:

The installation at or near approximately fifteen (15) intersections in the City of Pittsburgh, of traffic signal equipment and appurtenances.

The installation at or near approximately four (4) intersections in the City of Pittsburgh, of traffic signal equipment and appurtenances.

Furnishing all or more or less traffic signal lanterns with the necessary brackets, pole bands and appurtenances.

Furnishing all or more or less traffic signal controllers with the necessary panels housing and control equipments.

Specifications, plans, blank proposals and bonds can be obtained at the office of the Bureau of Traffic Planning, 900 City-County Building, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Contractors will be required to leave a deposit of $10.00 (cash or certified check) for each set of plans and specifications, which will be refunded upon the return of the same to the office of the Bureau of Traffic Planning in good condition and unmarked.

Each proposal submitted must be accompanied by a bond in the sum of 10% of the estimated cost of the contract with such security trust company which has complied with the City Ordinance with reference to furnishing bonds for contracts of same, in like amount with two freeholders of Allegheny County as sureties executed before the City Clerk or Assistant City Clerk.

The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Safety reserve the right to increase or decrease the amount of any portion of the work which they deem necessary, or to reject any or all proposals, or to accept any proposal which they deem to be for the best interest of the City.

CHARLES H. KLINK, Mayor.
JAMES M. CLARK, Director.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ordinance copy of which is published herewith, was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on June 2, 1930, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 1137

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the grading, paving and curbing of Saxon way from North Homewood avenue to North Lang avenue and the construction of a storm sewer and the grading of approaches thereof, including, as may be necessary, the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby and sinking of exploratory test holes, letting a contract or contracts therefor, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby and providing further for the payment of the City's share thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh in Council assembled and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that Saxon way from North Homewood avenue to North Lang avenue be graded, paved and curbed and a storm sewer constructed for the drainage thereof, and that as may be necessary approaches be graded on streets affected thereby and exploratory test holes be sunk.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise, in accordance with the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the Ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading, paving and curbing of said street between said points, and the construction of a storm sewer in the drainage thereof, including, as may be necessary, the grading of said approaches and sinking of exploratory test holes, the contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by the said Acts of Assembly and Ordinances, and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate parts, not to exceed the sum of Nineteen Thousand ($19,000.00) Dollars which is the estimate of the whole cost as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same, and the City's share thereof shall be chargeable to and payable from Bond Fund No. 263, Street Bonds, 1928.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ordinance copy of which is published herewith, was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on December 22, 1930, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 2508

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the grading to a width of 50 feet, paving and curbing of Black street from North Euclid avenue to North Beatty street, including as may be necessary, the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby and sinking of exploratory test holes, letting a contract or contracts therefor, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against and collected from property specially benefited thereby and providing further for the payment of the City's share thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained, enacted by the City of Pittsburgh in Council assembled and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that Black street from North Euclid avenue to North Beatty street be graded to a width of 50 feet, paved and curbed and that, as may be necessary approaches be graded on streets affected thereby and exploratory test holes be sunk.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise, in accordance with the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the Ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading, paving and curbing of said street between said points, and the construction of a storm sewer in the drainage thereof, including, as may be necessary, the grading of said approaches and sinking of exploratory test holes, the contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by the said Acts of Assembly and Ordinances, and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate parts, not to exceed the sum of Nineteen Thousand ($19,000.00) Dollars, which is the estimate of the whole cost as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same, and the City's share thereof shall be chargeable to and payable from Bond Fund No. 263, Street Bonds, 1928.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ordinance copy of which is published herewith, was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on February 9, 1931, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without any petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz:

BILL NO. 2843

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the grading, paving and curbing of Henrietta street from east curb line of Milton street to Locust street, including as may be necessary, the grading of approaches on streets affected thereby and sinking of exploratory test holes, letting a contract or contracts therefor, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh in Council assembled and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same that Henrietta street from east curb line of Milton street to Locust street be graded, paved and curbed, and that as may be necessary approaches be graded on streets affected thereby and exploratory test holes be sunk.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise, in accordance with the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the Ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading, paving and curbing of said street between said points, including as may be necessary, the grading of said approaches and sinking of exploratory test holes, the contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by the said Acts of Assembly and Ordinances, and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate parts, not to exceed the sum of $21,000.00, which is the estimate of the whole cost as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same, and the City's share thereof shall be chargeable to and payable from Bond Fund No. 263, Street Bonds, 1928.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

Mary Lou Bewildered When Lorrimer Collapses

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful orphan girl of the "home" type, lives with her aunt and uncle, Clara and Howard Sanderson. The former is private secretary to a publisher and the latter an engineer. Mary Lou looks after Billy, their small son. Larry Mitchell, young newspaper reporter, is Mary Lou's pal. Mary Lou is happy, but vitally restless. Larry appears on the scene, rescues Billy from peril in traffic, makes a date with Mary Lou for the next day and dashes off in his pursuit of news. Sanderson gets a chance to go to the Orient on a big engineering project and take his wife as secretary of the expedition. What Mary Lou will do is a problm, and she is to stay temporarily with Grandma Jennings, Clara's mother. Larry is eager to marry Mary Lou and take care of her, but Mary Lou refuses his offer. The Sandersons and Mary Lou go to Grandma Jennings' home for dinner and to make arrangements for the journey. The Sandersons start on the trip. Mary Lou asks Larry to help her get a job. Larry sees an advertisement calling for a companion for an invalid. Mary Lou feels she can meet all specified requirements. He guides her to the train she must take to the Lorrimer home, where application must be made. Mrs. Lorrimer is a charming woman and Mary Lou likes her. However, the semi-invalid is Mrs. Lorrimer's son and the advertisement should have read "male" companion. Mary Lou is bitterly disappointed. Mrs. Lorrimer persuades Mary Lou to remain in the Lorrimer home until train time. Mrs. Lorrimer tells how her son was wounded in the World War and has a type of shell shock. Just as Mary Lou is preparing to leave Travers enters the room. When Mary Lou is introduced he suddenly seizes her in his arms, calls her "Delight" and "wife."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

Wife!

Mary Lou's bewildered gaze raced to meet the troubled brown eyes of Mrs. Lorrimer, who came forward and put her hand on her son's shoulder.

"Dear," she began, and her voice shook pitifully and it seemed to Mary Lou that the tall, lovely woman, her poise shattered, was appealing to her in silence, for help.

"What is the matter with you both?" he almost shouted. "Or am I going mad? She sits there—" he pointed a shaking hand at Mary Lou who, perfectly white, shrank back into her chair, knowing absolute and abject fear for the first time in her life, and at the same time an overwhelming pity for this distracted man and the woman who, her arms about him, tried to comfort him. But he shook her off and went on . . . "she sits there—my wife . . . without a word . . . without an explanation . . . Delight . . ."

Ailing Boy Collapses

He staggered, caught at a chair and, without warning, pitched headlong to the long, low couch nearby and lay there, half supported, while as Mary Lou and perfectly still, his long legs dragging on the floor.

With a little sob Mrs. Lorrimer ran over to him, touching the bell in passing, bringing tall, impassive Peter to the door immediately.

"You rang—?" began Peter.

"He's fainted," said Mrs. Lorrimer unnecessarily. She turned to Mary Lou, who had risen and stood there silently, her knees weak under her and her heart thundering uncomfortably.

"Peter, take Miss Thurston up to my sitting room," ordered Mrs. Lorrimer, suddenly, "I'll telephone Dr. Mathews."

Peter turned and at an abrupt, rather peremptory gesture from Mrs. Lorrimer, Mary Lou started, docilely, to follow him.

"Hadn't I getter go . . . ? Oh, I must go!" she said, desperately.

Mrs. Lorrimer, lifting the French telephone from its stand, looked at her frowningly a moment: her frown not of unfriendliness but of deep abstraction. She gave the number before she answered.

"No — please — please," she said, definitely but rather imploringly, "not yet. I must explain to you. I must— Wait, won't you, until the doctor comes? Travers—my son—has had these nervous seizures before. Occasionally they last . . . Oh! . . ." she said, low, as the figure stirred and a deep wrenching sigh reached them—"go with Peter, I beg of you! I can manage until Doctor—" her voice trailed off and then she spoke into the transmitter sharply . . . "Dr. Mathews? Dan, this is Margaret—will you come at once?"

With no further protest Mary Lou followed Peter from the room and went with him to the broad curving stairs.

Mary Lou Bewildered

Mary Lou stood hesitant. She had never been as bewildered in all her 20 years. She said, aloud, "Oh, what on earth shall I do?"

"If I were you, Miss, I'd sit down and—rest. You've had a shock," said the elderly man, quietly . . . "Mr. Travers . . ." He stopped and said no more, realizing that it was not part of his duty to discuss family matters with an outsider. He indicated the chaise-longue, the comfortable, deep chairs . . . the many books, scattered on small tables and housed in built-in bookcases, the silver and enamel boxes of cigarets. "If you'd take a chair, Miss," he suggested, "and make yourself at home?"

Mary Lou reached up mechanically to take off her hat. Her head ached. But then she remembered that the hat lay on the floor where Lorrimer had cast it. She remembered that her coat was downstairs and her pocketbook. There was nothing to do but wait.

She rose and, at first a little timidly, wandered about the big, rather oddly shaped room. "I suppose it's what they call a boudoir," remarked Mary Lou to herself with a half giggle, her courage, color and spirits beginning to return, "I've read about 'em and I can pronounce 'em," she informed herself further, "but it's the first time I've ever come into contact with one of 'em!"

Sorry For Lorrimer

Over by one corner of the bookcase, near the great double windows which looked out over the lawns and had for its pleasure a silver glimpse of Sound as well, Mary Lou lifted her eager, book-loving eyes from the rows upon rows of volumes and looked straight into equally eager, laughing eyes which looked down on her from a photograph framed in heavy, dull silver which stood where two bookcases meeting made an angle. It was the only photograph in the room.

For a moment Mary Lou stared, conscious of a slight shock. She knew the eyes, she thought, and the face . . . a lean, laughing face under the jaunty cap of the Royal Flying Corps. She knew, too, she thought, the tall, broad-shouldered uniformed figure, sitting very negligently on some excellent photographer's bench. Knew and yet did not know. And it was a full minute before it dawned on her that here was Travers Lorrimer, the man downstairs, the man who had exposed her to so frightening and inexplicable a scene, a scene of which she was trying hard not to think, lest she become terrified again.

Lorrimer, as he had been, Lorrimer very young, Lorrimer in early 1915, so many years ago, Lorrimer just turned 18 years of age, a laughing, delightful boy.

Her heart hurt her with pity. Half unconsciously she reached up and carefully lifted down the big heavy frame and went to the couch and sat down, still holding the picture, looking at it intently, wondering about it.

For whom had he mistaken her. Someone named Delight? Odd name, pretty name, she liked it. Someone he had not seen in a long time. Someone he loved . . . and called . . . his wife. Who was she and where was she? Was she dead, were they trying to keep it from him, or had she deserted him? Where had he married her . . .? and when . . .?

Unsure of Herself

She came back again and again to that incredible and breathless moment when she had been caught up in arms grown suddenly strong, when she had been held close to this stranger's heart, when she had felt his lips on her eyelids, on her face . . .

What was the explanation? Oh, she would have to wait and hear; she owed that to Mrs. Lorrimer! But she wanted to get away somehow. She was still afraid, still very unsure of herself.

She put the picture down beside her and reached out for a magazine to distract her from her thoughts and ceaseless speculations. But, turning the pages, her eyes, fastened on picture or text, saw nothing, read nothing; the printed words made absolutely no sense. What would she do now? After she got back to Oakdale? How far away Oakdale seemed! Was it only this morning that she had left there, eaten her hasty breakfast with Billy bouncing in his chair, with Adelaide complaining from her couch and Gram bustling in from the kitchen? Only this morning, too, that she had seen Larry and he had teased her about her adventuring into the land of Those Seeking Employment? "Remember you are a lineal descendant of Queen Cleopatra," he had said. Well, she hadn't been able to remember she was anyone's descendant, today's events had stripped her of family, relatives, friends and even actual existence, so forlorn and strange, so bewildered she had been!

Shown Courtesies

Well, soon Mrs. Lorrimer would come and explain what there was to explain . . .not that it mattered, she thought, poor fellow, poor unhappy, unfortunate boy—but she'd wait and listen and then perhaps Mrs. Lorrimer would send her to the station and she would go on back to New York and Oakdale. And tomorrow she would come into town again and present the letter written by Mrs. Lorrimer for her and perhaps something would come of it, perhaps she would get a position.

There was a step in the hall. She stiffened, listening eagerly. No, not Mrs. Lorrimer's step and Mrs. Lorrimer would not have knocked.

"Come in—"

It was Peter, with a tray, the smart maidservant following him.

"Luncheon, Miss Thurston," said Peter gravely. "Mrs. Lorrimer is still with Dr. Mathews and begs you to excuse her. She said she hoped you would find everything to your liking and she will join you here presently."

While Peter arranged the luncheon on a little drop-leaf table which he drew out from the wall, the maid said, pleasantly:

"I'm Hilda, Miss. Mrs. Lorrimer asked me to show you into her room in case you wished to brush your hair and wash?"

DAILY TRUE STORY— 'Tear-Jerker!'

Joe Donegan, on the night copy desk of the Morning Blurb, nodded to the girl sitting alone two tables away.

"One of your sweeties, Joe?"

Joe's brother, a lawyer in their home city of Syracuse, who was visiting him, asked the question carelessly as he saw the nod and the girl's smile of recognition.

"That little lady?" Joe laughed. "She has no more use for sweeties than a gold fish has for a card of paper matches. She's a tear-jerker."

"Tear-jerker?"

Joe's brother eyed Sue Young again. She was nicely dressed in dark clothes, nothing ostentatious about her. She was very pretty and at the same time she had wide apart eyes, firm chin and a most practical sort of expression. She was doing full duty to a sizeable steak with baked potatoes and a large and verdant salad.

Introduces Brother

That night Sue said to Joe, "How come you have such a good looking brother, Joe—and where is he now?"

"I like his looks."

"He's down to see about an offer to go into a law firm here, if it goes through you'll be seeing plenty of him—he's already crazy about you."

Sue looked at Joe steadily and suddenly blushed because she saw that Joe was telling the truth.

Phil Donegan did come down to the Big City and go into the law firm. More than that, he and Sue Young became mighty good friends.

Phil wanted Sue to marry him.

"If we were a couple of young fools," Sue told him, "we would probably hop down to the big building and get married. As it is, we'll just let matters rest—we've both got a career," Sue always explained.

"Why not a career being Mrs. Phil Donegan?"

Blake called Sue Young over and told her.

Sue Young, who scooted around much of the time in her own little car, started on her story. The officer left there per place the dead girl had been taken away.

mitted Sue to nose about, but she did not find anything at first. And so she went down and talked with the janitor's wife. A janitor's wife is a great fund of information as to what goes on in her own little world, the apartment building.

"Sure, Miss Melody had lots of girl friends," said the janitor's wife, "but I never seen no boy friends except now and then a swell guy in a swell car would call for her. She used to go away with him, sometimes she was away for a week or so at a time, and once she was gone a month."

"Do you know any of the girl friends?"

"Only Gertie Harmon. She's married—or, for all it's any of my business, she's married, and lives up in D-6, right over where Miss Melody lived."

Sue thanked the janitor's wife and went up to D-6, where she found Mrs. Harmon at home.

"Gees," she said, "from th' Mornin' Blurb? Sure, come in—I'll slip you all I know—I seen her last—say, could you use my picture?"

Gertie forced the little snapshot on Sue. There were so many in the group that it was impossible to tell how Fawne Melody looked. Gertie then gave Sue a large picture of herself.

"Now, give me the low-down and I'll use this," Sue promised.

Informed by Woman

Sue shook her head.

"Did you know the man?"

"Sure—John Zarim—couldn't forget that name."

Zarim? The art dealer and importer?"

"Sure, he imported junk and he imported a lotta nooch. I guess he had a dozen boats."

"What was Fawne Melody's real name?"

"Search me, she told me once it wasn't her real name and that's all she said, she come from out Ohio way I guess from what she said.

"Where does this John Zarim live?"

"Swell place, he owns th' Zarim apartments and he's got a ritzy pent house, we been up there for parties a lot of times."

"And the Melody girl told you that Zarim promised to marry her?"

"Sure."

"And she told you that he was responsible for—what I mean is, she killed herself because he wouldn't marry her?"

"Sure."

Sue Young, the tear-jerker, went to the morgue rather grimly. She saw the medical examiner. It was the usual thing, or, as he explained, not so usual these days when the younger generation was so wise.

And then she went in to see Fawne Melody. It was dark, except for the one bright light.

"Know her?" she was asked.

"No."

Then she saw the belongings held by the authorities.

Sue Young paid no attention to the diamonds or the ruby pendant, she was looking at a little yelllow gold ring all chased around with four-leaf clovers.

"Not very lucky for th' poor kid—good stuff for your story," the official remarked.

Sue nodded. She went out and got into her car. It must have been two hours later that she went up to the city room of the Morning Blurb.

"Yes."

"Absolutely — regular tear jerker."

Sue Young sat down and wrote her story.

Resigns Position

"When Sue looks hard as nails like that," the city editor whispered to the head of the copy desk, "you can bet she's writing a tear-jerker—all the heart she's got is in the ends of her fingers that hit the typewriter keys."

Sue turned in the story and went into the telephone booth. She got Phil Donegan.

"Instantly, darling!" Phil assured her.

"Look here, Sue," the night city editor said when she came out of the booth, "you're crazy to resign. The Big Boss is going to send you abroad on those international scandals."

"I'm through tear-jerking—it isn't so funny for the people who have tears," she answered.

"Look here, Sue—there's been no report on John Zarim being killed by a hit-and-run driver tonight, are you sure about that?"

"A newspaperman is known by what he has sense enough not to print," she said, "here's something you can't print—Fawne Melody was my kid sister from Toledo. As for Zarim—well, I've got to go and have a big dent taken out of my front fender."

And so all you read about this case was that by a most strange coincidence John Zarim was killed by a hit-and-run driver the same day that one of his former sweethearts committed suicide.

Tusks of ivory which have been dug out of prehistoric ice in Siberia were recently sold by auction in London. Their age has been estimated as at least 50,000 years, but the ivory itself is discolored and cracked.

Young Heiress Deals Swift Blow to Censorship

Above picture from Police Gazette shows how censorship was rebuffed by quick thinking on the part of a beautiful heiress in 1879. When a committee of self-appointed censors objected because a young man was putting on her skate in public, she handed out a card, especially printed for the occasion, which said: "I AM ENGAGED."

Improve the Water Front

Now Is Good Time to Beautify Wharves and Increase Parking Capacity—Comment on Local News.

The executive committee of the Helping Hand, the local organization which has been taking care of thousands of homeless men this winter, has hit upon a happy idea in the suggestion that the unemployed be put to work in the improvement of the water front. The project would fit admirably into the program of the city for public works to be carried out with the funds raised under the Pittsburgh Plan by the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

*The waterfront should be an attractive place. In*stead it is shabby and ill-kept, even in spots a dumping place for junk. Pittsburghers who have seen the beautiful esplanades and parkways along the river front of cities like Paris and Prague are ashamed of the condition of the local wharves. Now is a good time to beautify them. While they are being improved additional accommodations will be provided, under the plan, for the parking of automobiles, and thus two birds will be killed with one stone. The proposal has strong appeal, and there seems to be no good reason for questioning its practicalness.

Augustine C. Haller's proposal that Pittsburgh make an effort to secure the National glider contests this year has much to commend it. Mr. Haller believes conditions are ideal for gliding. He expresses the opinion that the wind often blows in such a way that a glider could soar all the way up the Allegheny River into New York state. Mr. Haller is qualified to express an opinion on the subject, for he studied gliding in Germany and holds the National distance record for the United States—a record which he established last autumn by soaring from Elmira, N. Y., to Ulster, Pa.—21 miles in an air line.

Gliding is steadily increasing in importance as a method of training for airplane pilots. It would be a fine thing for Pittsburgh to become known as a great gliding center. The National gliding competition, if held here, would add to the city's prestige and compensate somewhat for our failure to get the National airplane races this year. The Chamber of Commerce and the Aero Club might well look into Mr. Haller's proposal and assist him in carrying it out.

*The coming to Pittsburgh tomorrow of the libra-*rians of special business and research libraries in various cities has brought to public attention the fact that we have 30 such libraries here. Every well equipped lawyer's and physician's office has from time immemorial had a collection of books as part of the equipment. But libraries are also coming to be an essential feature of chemists' and engineers' equipment. The plans for the new Mellon Institute of Industrial Research look to the accumulation of hundreds of thousands of books on technical subjects.

*The first thing that is done when a problem in in-*dustrial research is started is to consult the literature on the subject. This may be an immense task. A year or more may be consumed in examining the books, reports and magazine articles dealing with the matter under investigation, and making digests of them. The services of research librarians are coming more and more into demand. It is an inviting field for persons looking for a profession, and Pittsburgh, with its library school and technical institutes, is one of the best places in the world in which to train for such work.

The sentence of three years in the workhouse, plus $300 fine, imposed by Judge McConnell on a "hit and run" driver, was severe, but not too severe. The sooner motorists learn that it is a grave offense to run away after striking someone the safer the highways will become. And no more effective way of teaching the lesson is available than to send the heartless culprits to prison.

Menace to Civilization

Read Dope News During Narcotic Education Week and Learn Unpleasant Truth About It.

This is Narcotic Education Week—or in the plain English that plain people understand—Dope Week.

What does Dope Week mean to you and your children, and the children of your neighbors?

What does it mean to the world in general and to the United States of America in particular?

Not a thing in the world—perhaps that's what you think. Don't be too sure of that.

Do you realize that in the last six months the new Federal Bureau of Narcotics has seized:

No. 1: One ton of narcotics which had started from Europe to the United States, via China.

No. 2: Three million dollars worth of dope in New York City.

No. 3: Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of dope floating in oiled silk bags in San Francisco Bay.

No. 4: At least half a million dollars worth of opium, morphine, heroin and cocaine in six other large cities in this country.

We might as well face the truth once and for all—we Americans.

The dope ring has been making a dumping ground of the United States for the past 10 years.

We have made drastic laws, limiting quite effectively the legitimate importation of narcotics for medical purposes, and when we did that we sat back and folded our hands with a smug smile of satisfaction.

But the dope came right along across the ocean from Europe and across the ocean from China and Japan and India, and across the border from Canada and from Mexico just the same.

Uncle Sam has waked up at last.

The American delegates to the opium conference in Geneva have just succeeded in calling a conference in London for May.

At that conference will be discussed—not only the legal limitation of dope—but the entire control of the whole manufacture of all sorts of narcotics.

Do you want to feel that you yourself have a hand in this business of crushing out the infamous drug traffic which is the worst menace to world civilization today?

Mrs. Solomon Says—

My son, thou hast said in thy heart, "I am through with women! For, woman was sent into the world for the distinction and torment of man. But as for me, I require NO woman to brighten my life—and command my days!"

* * *

But I say unto thee, better a dinner of spinach, and a woman to quarrel with, thereover, than a stalled ox, eaten in peace and quiet!

* * *

For, what do all the viands of imported chefs delight a man's palate, if there be no dish amongst them which his wife hath told him is BAD for him?

Go to. What doth a house full of hand-carved ash-trays profit a man, if there be no potted fern wherein to scatter his ashes, no satin-lined waste basket wherein to throw lighted matches and no mahogany piano, whereon to leave his burning cigaret?

* * *

How doth it gladden him, though all the world bow down before his wisdom, if he hath no wife to harken unto his priceless advice? And no woman will permit him to "tell her how to do things?"

* * *

What doth it signify, though he have the freedom of all the world wherein to roam in search of diversion and adventure, if no woman careth whither he goeth nor when he returneth, nor waiteth up to admonish him?

* * *

What availeth it any man, though he possess all the wealth of princes and racketeers, and have no woman nigh with whom to argue concerning the saving or the spending thereof?

* * *

What doth it rejoice him though he possess all the beauty of Adonis and the charms of Apollo, if two women be not struggling for his smiles and breaking their hearts with jealousy over him.

What comfort doth a bachelor find in a soft collar and an unshaven chin? What joy hath he, in flinging his clothes to the four winds and scattering his bath towels upon the floor?

* * *

For, alas, he hath no woman to chide him nor to blush for him, nor to go about gathering up his things and imploring him to be more tidy.

* * *

Go to. What doth any sin or any folly or any diversion avail a man, if no woman hath FORBIDDEN it?

Molecule Holds Secrets of the Universe

By Archibald Henderson

Mars lies somewhere between the atom and the star. Our natural powers of observation have to be magnified and sharpened a million fold in some cases, that we may obtain the information we desire. The microscope searches out the secrets of the infinitesimal, the telescope and the spectroscope stretch out toward fathoming the secrets of the infinite. If we only knew exactly what was taking place inside the molecule, inside the atom even; if we could only determine what was occurring on Mars, or Pluto, or on the celestial bodies which constitute one of the vast island universes at the verge of outer space, we should have surprised some of the deeper problems and more baffling enigmas of the universe.

A famous East Indian scientist, Sir Chandrasekhar Venkataram Raman, has recently been awarded the Nobel prize in physics for 1930. The chief scientific discovery for which the prize was awarded is known as the Raman effect. Light scattered by a liquid or solid from a beam of light is observed through a prism specroscope. Mercury arc light containing only single wave lengths was used. There are, of course, certain recognizable lines in the ordinary mercury spectrum. In the scattered radiation obtained in the Raman spectrum, subsidiary frequencies are noted, and these are found to be due to vibrations of parts within the molecule.

During the past few years there has been a drift among the more advanced physicists against reliance upon physical models to represents molecular, intermolecular, and interatomic behavior.

The newer mathematical physicists prefer to rely upon mathematical equations which embody the laws of behavior, rather than upon pictorial representations or mechanical models purporting to exhibit that behavior.

However, models are never to be scorned, especially by teachers of science, who welcome all aids which have a useful pedagogical value. Recent inventions by Dr. C. F. Kettering, general director of General Motors Research Laboratories; L. W. Schutts, of the same laboratories, and Prof. D. H. Andrews, of Johns Hopkins University, exhibit in an impressive way the motions occurring in actual molecules, which are far too small to be seen.

We know, of course, that certain sorts of atomic vibrations are occurring inside molecules. Is it conceivable that these atomic vibrations might be shown by mechanical models?

The question has now been happily answered in the affirmative. The new models have attracted the attention of physicists all over the world. The models are constructed of steel balls connected by spiral springs. The balls are of the same relative weights as the atoms they represent.

The web of balls and springs is freely suspended and connected to a vibrating rod whose speed can be varied by an electric motor. At definite frequencies of vibration, which are recorded on a counter, the model takes up a characteristic motion. Models of benzine, toluene, ethylene, acetylene and a number of other substances have been made. The rates at which the model resonates, for any particular substance, agree remarkably with the frequencies observed in light scattered by the substance.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Keep This in Mind

Keep this in mind:
To someone you are all things good and kind,
You will not shrink from any gruelling test,
To someone you are wise and brave and true,
Someone has boundless faith and trust in you!

You are the first to someone's loyal breast:
Whatever doubts and fears the days may bring
Remember this, and cares will lose their sting.
All tasks that come, you will have strength to do
If you hold fast to someone's hope of you!

Keep this in mind, and ever as you go
More like that someone's vision you will grow;
You will be gentler, you will be more just,
Less quick to anger, worthier of trust;
You will find ways to shape your life anew
'Til it shines forth like someone's thought of you!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I am writing this for you—against the day when you must go into the desert.

You do not know now that your life will ever become a desert. You do not believe that you can ever come to a place where little joys and small comforts will fail to please you . . . where the most precious love and trust will no longer sustain you . . . when everything in life will fail you, even yourself. But you will come to that place. Some day the years—or dreadful lasting tears—will bring you to that place. And when you come to it, these words may help you as they once helped me.

They are words of a man who lived the greater part of his life in just such loneliness and desolation—Abraham Lincoln. We know much about the difficulty and danger of Lincoln's life, but little about his inner suffering, for he was not given to discussing himself. But once he said this—which tells more than whole volumes of self-analysis:

"I have been forced to my knees many times because I had no place else to go."

Everything had failed Abraham Lincoln. Friends had failed him. Loved ones had failed him. Country had failed him. Even his own courage and shrewdness, which had carried him through so much hardship and peril, had failed him. He had no place to go for help. He was all alone—in his desert. So he went on his knees. And help came to him. A help that held him upright to the end.

I do not know what Lincoln found, when he went on his knees. He called it "God." I call it "God." You—when your turn comes—will call it "God." But Lincoln's idea of God and my idea of God are all different. And none of us can explain what we really mean by that word. Nor does the wisest man on earth know what God really is. But this we do know—

We do know that behind our little, brief life looms a greater life—a life that goes on and on forever—the life of all mankind. And behind that moving, immortal stream of life there is Something! A creative force . . . or a personal god . . . call it what you will. Something is there. Something from which streams all life. Something that weaves all life into a pattern. Something that bends all life to an end . . . that wastes nothing . . . that has a purpose for everything.

Behind our littleness, behind our confusion and weakness—Something. Something great and steady and strong and serene. And when everything else fails us we can go—THERE. We can go back, as a tired child goes home. We can go back on our knees—out of our littleness, into our greatness . . . out of our weakness into the strength . . . out of our bitterness and confusion, our ignorance and vacillation, into the serene wisdom which holds the stars in their courses.

When there is no place else to go—we can go THERE.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

You like to criticize others, but you won't stand for criticism of your own words and actions.

For reasons that none is able to understand you have unwarranted faith in your own opinions.

Notwithstanding the opportunities that others have had to gain information and experience, you give little attention to their opinions if they are at variance with your own.

Have you not often been in error?

Certainly, and yet you arrogantly support only your own decisions.

You may be in a position that enables you to be dictatorial.

But you miss many opportunities for knowledge by your attitude.

If you seek to inject your positive ideas into the affairs of others you overstep your rights.

This is when you arouse the antagonism of those whom you seek to browbeat.

An Interesting Report

Public Service Commission of New York Points Out Facts Concerning Public Utilities.

By BAINBRIDGE COLBY.

THE annual report, just filed with the Legislature, by the Public Service Commission of New York, will be interesting to readers throughout the country.

It deals with conditions and problems which are not confined to any one of the states, but are equally vital and pressing in all.

The steady decline in railroad traffic, both freight and passenger, as the result of auto transportation is discussed with a recognition of its gravity to the railroads, but also of its inevitability.

The automobile bus and truck are taking the traffic which is the most profitable—"skimming the cream," as the report expresses it—and some "comprehensive plan" must be devised, which "will do justice to the vast sums which have been invested in railroad properties and devoted to the service of the public."

IN remarking that special inducements must be offered to regain lost freight traffic and passenger patronage, the commission calls attention to the fact that NO railroad in the State of New York has tried REDUCED RATES, although the experiment has been deemed worthy of trial in other sections of the country.

The constitutional right of the railroads to a return on the cost of reproducing their properties, computed on the basis of the prevailing high prices for materials and labor, regardless of the MUCH LOWER FIGURE which represents the ACTUAL INVESTMENT in their properties has been upheld by the courts.

This right, however, the commission observes, may become in the light of changed economic conditions, an "INTERESTING FICTION OF LITTLE PRACTICAL VALUE."

Referring to electric power, the commission notes the continuing and uninterrupted trend towards unification—the absorption of the smaller and local companies into the large holding company unit.

IN all the applications for authority to acquire properties, much is said regarding the economies which would result from the consolidation or merger of such properties into larger systems.

Much testimony has been presented to show that unification would be in the public interest, but, the commission adds, "seldom has any definite proposal or statement been made regarding reduced rates," and it concludes:

"THERE IS NO REASON WHY THESE BENEFITS SHOULD ALL BE RETAINED BY THE COMPANIES OR THAT THE PUBLIC SHOULD WAIT FOR AN INDEFINITE TIME FOR ITS SHARE OF THE BENEFITS."

HERE is where the elaborate propaganda of the power trusts strikes a snag!

The companies are NOT ON THE LEVEL WITH THE PUBLIC.

And all the little radio speeches by the Insulls, and the little articles of self-laudation which are industriously circulated throughout the country, filtering into newspaper offices, and even finding their way into school books, will not alter the fact,

The public utility company is a public undertaking.

ITS OFFICERS ARE QUASI-PUBLIC OFFICERS.

Some day they are going to learn that they cannot conduct their company as if it were a private exploitative enterprise—issuing securities as fast as they can be absorbed, with their resultant burden to the consumer in the form of higher rates for service; charging as much as the traffic will bear; achieving all the economies which the march of science makes possible in construction and operation, and CONVERTING THOSE SAVINGS INTO PROFITS FOR BANKERS AND "A KILLING" FOR THE INSIDERS.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—I don't know precisely how he got in, but his card revealed him as a field agent for a new fangled school of self-analysis. Peek into your own mind and be a wow, or something like that. In times like this no one can afford to overlook a bet.

By asking questions and charting replies he seemed to think he could not only speed up efficiency, put one en rapport with the best people, triple your salary, but perhaps sharpen your skates. He began by asking me how I regarded my own intelligence.

I told him I had practically one of the leading minds out of Gallipolis, O. He put something down and rubbed it out. It looked like cheating. His method was very disconcerting. Sitting silently a few moments he would pop a query—that's what he was, a query popper—with the speed of a bullet.

"Name some prominent business men," he exclaimed. I called off Batten, Barton, Durstine, Osborne, Black, Starr, Frost and was just about to mention Park and Tilford when he interrupted with: "Never mind. What is the number of your safety deposit box and where is the key?"

I can't even remember how old I am except it is sufficient. All I could do was shake my head. He gave me a quizzical look and wrote down something. From where I sat it looked like "Nuts." Then he got up, walked over to a wall light and turned it off.

By this time I got my feet clear of my desk. A guy changing his mind so suddenly and often might start wrestling any minute. Pacing back and forth with his brow furrowed he snapped: "A has six marbles. B has two. Divide by 3 and multiply the quotient by 17."

Now he was playing marbles. And I am only a rope skipper! Just then the phone rang. As I reached for the receiver he cried: "Remember you can shorten phone conversation by a simple yes or no." It was a soandso from a collection service and did I pry him off a skimpy no!

* * *

I don't know if all complex tinkerers run to type, but this one had an expertly professorial eye and a pedantic poise that gave all his asinine questions a gloss. Most of the time I was trying to figure out his racket. I made up my mind if he wound up trying to blindfold me and make me smoke a cigaret I was going to crown him with my big bottle of red ink. They trick you into indorsements scientifically these days.

* * *

A friend of mine was recently invited to a clinic where he did a little sitting and standing coughing in high and low registers with a dingbat around his throat to register results. He went in response to a telephone message that he was wanted for a bronchial examination. He supposed, of course, his doctor made the appointment. When they began taking photographs he discovered he was to be smeared bare chested across the country in a cough drop advertisement. He still has red i his eye and a gun on his hip.

* * *

These trivial digressions might lead one to believe the analys just asked a few questions and was off. Not that bird. He wa around practically all morning. He told me not to pay attention to him. He would sit around, observe and ask an occasional question. I'd almost forgotten he was there when he suddenly inquired: "Do you lace your shoes criss cross or horizontal?" I replied with a fast one: "Neither. They are laced when I buy them. I merely give them a yank and tie a bow knot." That must have meant something terrible for he put a number of notations on the chart. And all was quiet again. Tick, tock. Tick, tock.

* * *

Finally he wanted to know what I knew about music. I explained it was little, but if he wanted to hum I'd chord for him on the piano. That was the last question. He glanced at his watch and departed, announcing he would send me a complete report later.

* * *

I am still foggy over what it is all about. It looks like a monkey business. But if it is for lunacy commission I think they ought to put him wherever they put me.
